U.S. Demands Hungarian Probe

Charges Soviet With Violating Big Three Pact

Coup Blamed On USSR; Bulgaria Is Blasted

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP) — The United States blamed Russia tonight for engineering, by "flagrant interference," the Communist rise to power in Hungary. It almost simultaneously blasted the Soviet-dominated government of Bulgaria for the arrest of the strongest opposition leader in that country.

These were the actions taken:

1. The State Department made public a hotly-worded note of protest on the Communist upset of the Hungarian government recently. It (A) charged the Soviet Union with violating the Yalta agreement and the Hungarian armistice agreement and (B) demanded an American-British-Russian investigation of political conditions in Hungary "as a matter of urgency."

Unless this or other "adequate investigation" is agreed to, the United States note asserted, the American government will consider "further action" which almost certainly would be an appeal to the United Nations.

Bulgarian Regime Assailed

2. In a formal statement the department charged that the Bulgarian government had "arbitrarily arrested" the chief leader of its opposition, Nicola Petkov. The statement declared that in putting him on trial on a charge of treason the Bulgarian regime will be putting itself on trial with many of its own people and "in the opinion of all freedom supporting peoples outside Bulgaria."

One common line of argument linked the note of protest on Hungary and the public statement on Bulgaria. This was the charge that in both instances the Big Three Yalta pact, guaranteeing democracy and political freedom to the peoples of liberated and ex-enemy satellite countries, had been violated with injury to democracy in both instances.

The two actions represented the first official countermove by the State Department to check, if possible, what officials regard as Soviet-sponsored consolidations of Communist power in Eastern Europe. Russia, it is said, wants to move now before the satellite peace treaties become effective and she thereby ceases to have direct control as the chief one of the occupation authorities in that region.

Proposals For Probes Rejected

The note said that on March 5 and again on March 17 the Russians rejected American proposals in the Allied Control Commission at Budapest for joint investigation by the Big Three of an alleged conspiracy against the Hungarian government.

The note then said that the Soviets had acted by themselves in this instance and eventually had supplied the information they obtained to the Communist deputy

Immigration Activities Called Off By Hagana

JERUSALEM, June 11 (AP) — A spokesman for Hagana, Jewish underground group which has been sponsoring the smuggling of Jews from Europe into Palestine, said today it was halting its immigration activities temporarily "because of new difficulties at ports of embarkation."

The spokesman told the Associated Press that no ships were en route to the Holy Land with uncertified immigrants and that "none are due in the immediate future."

Measures taken at European ports to thwart the exodus of Jews to Palestine, he said, have made it "virtually impossible to provision ships for long sea voyages."

"There are, however, many ships and thousands of Jews awaiting a chance for the journey, and they will sail as soon as we surmount these new obstacles," he declared.

Crudely-Masked Gunman Slays Storekeeper, Boy

Kentucky Authorities Searching For Killer

MOREHEAD, Ky., June 11 (AP) — A country storekeeper and a 16-year old boy were slain today 12 miles from here by an unidentified man wearing a crude mask, Sheriff Sam Green announced.

The sheriff identified the victims as Eddie Johnson, 52, and Robert Rowe, 16, of adjoining Elliott County, who happened to be in the store at the time.

Four witnesses, all in their 'teens, said the assailant bolted for the front door of the establishment after shooting the man and boy—on the Christy Creek Road—and disappeared.

Story Pieced Together

The story, as pieced together by the sheriff and County Attorney Elijah Hogge, was that young Rowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rowe, was seated on the counter when the man entered, his face covered by a sack in which two holes had been cut for eyes.

"What are you doing, trying to kid somebody?" the boy asked.

In answer, the man fired one blast which struck young Rowe in the left side, then fired another that hit Johnson in the right shoulder.

A jury headed by Coroner James Brown said the man and boy were "killed by an unknown assailant," but other county officials indicated he was known, and a "John Doe" warrant was issued for his arrest.

The sheriff, his deputies and State Patrolman Bob Tackett, Lloyd Eldridge and Erwin Booth, with bloodhounds obtained from Lexington, left for the Christy Creek district late today to search for the killer.

Possible Motive Indicated

Green said that witnesses could not be certain, but that the weapon used was either an automatic or a double-barreled shotgun.

The police disavowed knowledge of a motive for the slayings, but other sources indicated there had been differences between families in the district following the return of indictments in several gun-toting and moonshining cases by the recent grand jury.

The Christy Creek district was once a hotbed of illicit distilling activities.

SIX-DAY-OLD FRENCH RAILROAD TIEUP ENDS

PARIS, Thursday, June 12 (AP) —The six-day-old French railroad strike ended today when the government, the national railroad management and union leaders of rail workers agreed upon a wage increase formula.

The costly tieup, which brought all rail transport throughout the nation to a halt, ended formally after Premier Paul Ramadier accepted the formula and the French railroad workers union ordered its striking employes to return to work at 8 a. m., GMT (3 a. m., EST) today.

Sources at Ramadier's residence said the accord split a 4,000,000,000 franc ($33,600,000) difference which separated the government and the workers on the wage issue.

Davis Convicted; Faces Life Term

HAGERSTOWN, Md., June 11. (AP)—Bruce Davis, 32-year-old aircraft mechanic, was convicted today by a Washington County Circuit Court jury of first degree murder—without capital punishment—in the hammer slaying of his sweetheart.

The verdict, returned at 5:15 p. m. after 50 minutes of deliberation, calls for life imprisonment of the tall, quiet Tennessean tried in the death of Mrs. Florence McAllister, 29.

Imposition of sentence was deferred after Davis' counsel filed a motion for a new trial. The court will hear arguments at 10 a. m. next Wednesday, June 18.

Davis, who emphatically denied on the witness stand that he killed Mrs. McAllister, accepted the jury's decision calmly, a pose he had maintained throughout the trial which began Monday.

The battered body of the woman was found half nude last December 10 by relatives in a second-floor bedroom of a little-used farmhouse owned by her family near Burtonsville, Md.

Davis denied that he ever had as much as quarrel with Mrs. McAllister and said he had never seen before a broken, blood-stained hammer found near the body.

House Cuts $5,000,000 Out Of FPHA Budget

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—The House cut $5,000,000 out of the $7,200,000 budget for the Federal Public Housing Authority today, and with another swing of the axe ordered Housing Expediter Frank Creedon to start closing up his agency July 1.

It acted after investigators for the Appropriations Committee reported that the EPHA has "failed miserably" and that Creedon's efforts to spur building for veterans likewise have been fruitless.

The double blow at the administration's housing program came with passage of a $36,097,580 bill to finance government corporations during the 12 months beginning July 1.

Truman Says U. S. Will Aid Nations That Want Peace

Viewed As Doctrine Extension Proposal

OTTAWA, June 11 (AP)—President Truman told a hand-clapping, desk-thumping Canadian Parliament today that the United States intends to aid those nations who seek to live at peace and proposes to "expend our energies and invest our substance" in promoting world recovery.

The American Chief Executive drew round after round of applause as he drove home to the legislators of this "good neighbor" to the north his oft-repeated challenge to aggression.

Extension Of Doctrine?

"We intend to aid those who seek to live at peace, without coercing or being coerced, without intimidation or being intimidated," he declared.

The President's speech was interpreted by many as a proposed extension of the Truman Doctrine beyond the $400,000,000 Greek-Turkish aid program and the $350,000,000 relief measure for other devastated countries.

Mr. Truman also called for completion of the St. Lawrence Waterway project, which has long been the subject of controversy in the United States.

Asserting that the hope of the future was "to multiply the fruitfulness of the earth and to diffuse its benefits among all mankind," the President added:

U. S. To Meet Challenge

"At this crucial point in history, we of the United States are deeply conscious of our responsibilities to the world. We know that in this trying period, between a war that is over and a peace that is not yet secure, the destitute and the oppressed of the earth look chiefly to us for sustenance and support until they can again face life with self-confidence and self-reliance.

"We are keenly aware that much depends upon the internal strength, the economic stability and the moral stamina of the United States. We face this challenge with determination and confidence. x x x

"We seek a peaceful world, a prosperous world, a free world, a world of good neighbors, living on terms of equality and mutual respect, as Canada and the United States have lived for generations."

Rent Measure Is Completed By Conferees

Extends Modified Control; Veto Urged

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—A Senate-House conference committee today agreed on legislation extending modified rent controls through next February 29 but permitting 15 per cent increases where landlord and tenant sign leases carrying through 1948.

While the final form of the bill was agreed upon, Sen. Buck (R-Del) told newsmen that the conferees will meet once more to inspect the completed version. The bill must still be approved by both House and Senate before going to the President for approval or possible veto.

Taylor Calls For Veto

Another of the Senate conferees, Sen. Taylor (D-Idaho), called for a veto.

He said in a statement that the bill "for all practical purposes ends effective rent control for 16,000,000 families in the United States who have relied on its protection."

Buck, who headed the Senate conferees, said the committee also agreed to knock out all controls over building materials except for amusement construction.

In addition, the bill provides for the release from controls of all houses completed or converted to housing purposes after last February 1.

Housing Expediter Heads Program

The Office of the Housing Expediter is authorized to administer the rent program, although earlier today the House approved an appropriation bill ordering that the office be liquidated, starting July 1.

Buck said he does not believe this action will affect the administration of the rent law, since "they extended him for a year." (The expediter was given a year to liquidate.) Buck added, however, that sufficient funds to administer the new law will have to be provided.

He said the form in which the conferees agreed to the bill provides that the Housing Expediter shall issue rules governing rents. Presumably, he said, this will enable him to continue old OPA rules.

China May Seek Truce In Invasion

NANKING, June 11. (AP)—Chinese officials, alarmed by an Outer Mongolian invasion of Sinkiang Province, today were reported ready to seek a diplomatic truce rather than a military victory to end the outbreak.

China's armies already are committed to the worsening civil war and she has only a comparatively small force in Sinkiang, in the remote northwest.

A government spokesman declared "this is no ordinary frontier incident" and accused Russia of partial responsibility. Outer Mongolia, a republic bordering Sinkiang, is Russian-dominated.

Central News, the official agency through which the government belatedly announced the invasion, said military officials in Sinkiang reported four warplanes bearing Soviet emblems bombed and strafed ahead of the invaders.

The Central Daily News, organ of the Kuomintang (government party) quoted an unnamed high government official as saying uranium deposits were discovered a few months ago in the Chitai area of Northern Sinkiang. That is the area over which Mongolian and native Sinkiang troops now are fighting.

Uranium is essential in the production of atomic bombs.

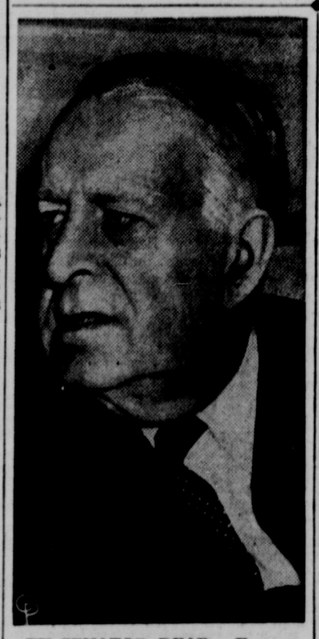
David Walsh, Who Served Massachusetts In Senate For 26 Years, Dies At 74



EX-SENATOR DEAD—Former United States Sen. David I. Walsh (above), 74, of Massachusetts, died yesterday at Boston after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage.

Headed Naval Affairs Group During Wartime

BOSTON, June 11 (AP) — Former United States Senator David I. Walsh, wartime chairman of the powerful Naval Affairs Committee died today at St. Elizabeth's Hospital after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage.

The 74-year-old political leader, who served Massachusetts in the Senate for 26 years, 20 of them consecutively, entered the hospital a week ago today for observation of high blood pressure.

His condition became serious on Monday and since that time little hope has been held for his recovery.

Walsh's condition became suddenly worse at 5:40 p. m. (EDT), only a few hours after funeral services were held for his sister, Mrs. Nellie E. Dooley, who died at her Boston home on Sunday.

With the former Senator when he died at 5:45 p. m., was his lifelong friend and law partner, Judge Thomas H. Connelly and several relatives.

Walsh leaves two sisters, the Misses Julia and Mary Walsh, with whom he made his home in Clinton.

Second youngest of 10 children, Walsh rose in the popular American tradition from a poor newsboy to national political prominence. His political career extended over a span of 47 years and he was one of the biggest vote-getters in Massachusetts.

The first political post he held was Democratic town chairman at Clinton in 1898.

In 1918, he became the first Democrat since before the Civil War to be elected to the Senate from Massachusetts and prior to his defeat last year he had led his party's ticket in every campaign.

He retired from politics last November after Republican Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., grandson of Woodrow Wilson's old Senate foe, wrested the Senate seat from him in a one-sided victory.

As chairman of the Naval Affairs committee, Walsh played an important part in building the United States fleet into the strongest the world has ever known.

Walsh was the first son of immigrant parents to become Governor of Massachusetts.

Always independent, he broke often with his party.

During the Roosevelt administration, he was one of the first to bolt the President's leadership in opposing the Chief Executive's proposal to increase the size of the Supreme Court.

Rep. Meyer Calls For Crackdown On Henry Wallace

Labels Him Renegade In Urging Indictment

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—Rep. Herbert A. Meyer (R-Kas) today called Henry A. Wallace "the evil tool of those who would destroy America," and he asked the House:

"When will the Attorney General of the United States do his duty and indict this renegade?"

Meyer's attack provided an explosive prelude to the appearance of the former Commerce Secretary and Vice President here Monday night.

It followed announcement by the House Committee on Unamerican Activities that it plans to issue a weekend report on the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which is sponsoring Wallace's speech in the nation's capital.

Dr. Clark Foreman, of Atlanta, president of the conference, expressed hope that the report will be "based on fact" and will not be "a report of smear-by-inuendo in an attempt to discredit Henry Wallace."

In his House speech, Meyer asserted that Wallace "has disgraced his citizenship," and declared:

"Mr. Speaker: Webster's dictionary defines treason as 'the offense of attempting by overt acts to overthrow the government of the state to which the offender owes allegiance.' Treason against the United States is defined by the Constitution (Art. III, Sec. 3) to consist 'only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving aid and comfort to them.'"

The Kansan said the Washington Post yesterday printed the following:

"NEWARK, N. J., June 9—Henry A. Wallace said tonight that 'the United States has become the center of world reaction' and 'the common man more and more looks to Russia for ideas, help and inspiration.'"

Meyer ended his speech by saying, "Let it not be forgotten that this Henry Wallace is one of the heritages left us by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Sen. Pepper, (D-Fla) is scheduled to introduce Wallace at the Monday night program arranged by the conference.

The Unamerican Activities Committee, in an official report to the House on March 29, 1944, listed the conference as a Communist front. Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) has called committee members to a meeting Thursday to approve and sign the new report. The Conference has denied any Communist affiliation or sympathies, as has Wallace.

House Group Approves Security Tax Freeze

WASHINGTON, June 11—(AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee today unanimously approved a two-year freeze of the Social Security tax at one per cent each on wages and payrolls. That is the present rate.

Without this action the tax would jump automatically next year to 2.5 per cent against employer and employe.

Soviet-Hungarian Alliance Reported

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 11—(AP)—A reliable informant said today that Russia is negotiating a new peacetime alliance designed to align the Hungarian and Russian armies in the event of war.

This source asserted the Russians already had agreed to train top Hungarian officers at the Russian War College in Moscow, and that top Hungarian military and police officers had signed up to take the course.

Maj. Gen. Laszlo Solyom, former chief of police of Budapest, will be among the first Hungarian contingent to be trained by the Soviet army, the informant said. Others will include Gyorgy Palffy-Osterreicher, chief of the political section of the War Ministry.

Officials of the War Ministry would neither confirm nor deny reports that the army would be trained by the Russians, and that Hungarian officers and non-commissioner officers already were attending Russian army maneuvers in Transdanubia as observers.

Several Hungarians said that the warning that any persons discussing Russian army maneuvers would be Hungarian radio had broadcast a subject to arrest.

Coupon Ordeal Is Ended; Price Control Stays

Rationing Continues For Industrial Users

WASHINGTON, June 11. (AP)—The nation's housewives reached the end of a five-year coupon ordeal tonight when the government ended rationing of sugar for households, hotels and restaurants, effective at midnight.

Last of a multitude of things that once could not be bought with money alone, sugar was freed from ration controls because larger quantities are available.

However, price controls remain. So does rationing of industrial sugar. (All sugar controls are due to end October 31 unless Congress says otherwise.)

Tonight's announcement came from Secretary of Agriculture Anderson. His action ended all rationing of articles for ultimate consumers for the first time since April 28, 1942. Sugar, last food to be removed from rationing, was the first to be rationed.

Congress Caught By Surprise

Today's move caught Congress by surprise. The House was prepared to consider a bill to end rationing at tomorrow's session. Similar legislation has been called for in the Senate, but no action has resulted there.

The Agriculture Secretary announced the end of sugar rationing at a news conference. When a reporter asked whether pending congressional action had anything to do with the step, he said:

"A better way to put it would be: Did Congress hurry it because it knew this action was coming?"

He gave three reasons for the move:

1. The International Emergency Food Council said today the United States will get 350,000 extra tons of sugar from Cuba.

2. Cuba has still more surplus sugar which is expected to help cut down demands from other parts of the world.

3. Some 200,000 tons of Javanese sugar—availability of which was in doubt—will definitely be offered to world users now.

Anderson said he "did not dare" end rationing until he received news of the extra sugar from Cuba.

He warned industrial users that they still need ration checks to get sugar from wholesalers or retailers.

Congress Welcomes Move

In addition, he said, retailers will be required to keep records of the name and address of each industrial buyer, the address to which the sugar is delivered, and other information.

But the records of wholesalers and stores selling to household users will be greatly simplified.

The handling of about 1,800,000 gummed sheets of ration stamps is eliminated by today's action.

The end of rationing was welcomed in Congress.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) who has been calling for an end to rationing, said: "That's fine. That's what we asked for three months ago.

"What I was anxious about was that the housewives would get enough sugar to take care of the fruit and vegetable crops. This will do it."

Sen. Tobey (R-NH), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, which has been considering legislation to end rationing, said Anderson's decision was a "good" one, and that he had been expecting it.

Coal For Industrial Use Exempt From Sales Tax

BALTIMORE, June 11 (AP) — Walter E. Kennedy, director of the Sales Tax Collection Division of the State Comptroller's Office, announced today that coal for use in industry will be exempt from the retail sales tax.

The exemption does not extend to coal for domestic consumption.

The state sales tax law specifically exempts fuel oil, natural gas, electricity, and steam for industrial use, but makes no mention of coal. However, the collection division has issued a regulation interpreting the portion of the law defining retail sales to exclude tangible property which is consumed in manufacturing or processing.

Lane Requests Legislative Council To Survey Md. Government Structure

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 11—(AP)—A complete survey of Maryland's governmental structure was asked today by Gov. Lane of the Legislative Council, which held its organization meeting in the Senate chamber.

The Chief Executive appeared before the council briefly and listed items he thought would be suitable subjects for council study during the next two years.

His study suggestions included:

1. Greater representation for Baltimore City. He offered the assistance of a commission he had named headed by former Judge William C. Walsh which previously studied the propsal.

2. The state system of parole and probation.

3. The budget, with a view to reducing and streamining it.

4. Planning the state roads program.

5. The election laws—with special reference to the Corrupt Practices Act.

Of the roads program, the Governor said while a huge and costly plan had been authorized by the Legislature, "it probably would not be the better part of wisdom to start pitching a lot of dirt to show we are on our way, spending $2 where $1 should do the job."

Senate President Joseph R. Byrnes, of Baltimore, who by virtue of his office is chairman of the Legislative Council, convened the session and appointed 10 commit-

Congress Is Requested To Have Pity On Juke Box, "Poor Man's Opera"

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP) — Congress was asked today .have pity on the "poor man's opera," the juke box.

The juke box industry, said the industry's lawyer, Sidney H. Levine, "is in a sad plight today." And if Congress doesn't watch out, he continued, things may get even worse.

Maybe you wonder why your congressman would be fretting his pretty head over this nation's 400,000 juke boxes.

Well, it all started when the 1909 copyright law was passed. This specifically excluded coin operated music machines from copyright provisions.

In previous hearings before a House Judiciary Subcommittee composers and orchestra leaders who own or share in copyrights have plugged for legislation to knock out this section of the law.

They said they'd like—and they think they have a right to—some of the juke joint nickels.

Speaking for the Automatic Music Operators' Association, Levine said: Nothing doing. Even now, he said, the juke box operator's life is not a happy one.

The operator buys the machine ($1,000), puts it in a tavern or drug store, buys the records, keeps the phonograph repaired, and hires the fellow who collects the kitty. (That's usually split, 50-50, with the tavern operator.)

But Levine said the records don't last long—"only 45 to 50 times"—and business is off 35 per cent since the war.

We know that in this trying period, between a war that is over and a peace that is not yet secure, the destitute and the oppressed of the earth look chiefly to us for sustenance and support until they can again face life with self-confidence and self-reliance.

"We are keenly aware that much depends upon the internal strength, the economic stability and the moral stamina of the United States. We face this challenge with determination and confidence. x x x

"We seek a peaceful world, a prosperous world, a free world, a world of good neighbors, living on terms of equality and mutual respect, as Canada and the United States have lived for generations."

Rent Measure Is Completed By Conferees

Extends Modified Control; Veto Urged

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—A Senate-House conference committee today agreed on legislation extending modified rent controls through next February 29 but permitting 15 per cent increases where landlord and tenant sign leases carrying through 1948.

While the final form of the bill was agreed upon, Sen. Buck (R-Del) told newsmen that the conferees will meet once more to inspect the completed version. The bill must still be approved by both House and Senate before going to the President for approval or possible veto.

Taylor Calls For Veto

Another of the Senate conferees, Sen. Taylor (D-Idaho), called for a veto.

He said in a statement that the bill "for all practical purposes ends effective rent control for 16,000,000 families in the United States who have relied on its protection."

Buck, who headed the Senate conferees, said the committee also agreed to knock out all controls over building materials except for amusement construction.

In addition, the bill provides for the release from controls of all houses completed or converted to housing purposes after last February 1.

Housing Expediter Heads Program

The Office of the Housing Expediter is authorized to administer the rent program, although earlier today the House approved an appropriation bill ordering that the office be liquidated, starting July 1.

Buck said he does not believe this action will affect the administration of the rent law, since "they extended him for a year." (The expediter was given a year to liquidate.) Buck added, however, that sufficient funds to administer the new law will have to be provided.

He said the form in which the conferees agreed to the bill provides that the Housing Expediter shall issue rules governing rents. Presumably, he said, this will enable him to continue old OPA rules.

China May Seek Truce In Invasion

NANKING, June 11. (AP)—Chinese officials, alarmed by an Outer Mongolian invasion of Sinkiang Province, today were reported ready to seek a diplomatic truce rather than a military victory to end the outbreak.

China's armies already are committed to the worsening civil war and she has only a comparatively small force in Sinkiang, in the remote northwest.

A government spokesman declared "this is no ordinary frontier incident" and accused Russia of partial responsibility. Outer Mongolia, a republic bordering Sinkiang, is Russian-dominated.

Central News, the official agency through which the government belatedly announced the invasion, said military officials in Sinkiang reported four warplanes bearing Soviet emblems bombed and strafed ahead of the invaders.

The Central Daily News, organ of the Kuomintang (government party) quoted an unnamed high government official as saying uranium deposits were discovered a few months ago in the Chital area of Northern Sinkiang. That is the area over which Mongolian and native Sinkiang troops now are fighting.

Uranium is essential in the production of atomic bombs.

David Walsh, Who Served Massachusetts In Senate For 26 Years, Dies At 74

Headed Naval Affairs Group During Wartime

BOSTON, June 11 (AP) — Former United States Senator David I. Walsh, wartime chairman of the powerful Naval Affairs Committee died today at St. Elizabeth's Hospital after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage.

The 74-year-old political leader, who served Massachusetts in the Senate for 26 years, 20 of them consecutively, entered the hospital a week ago today for observation of high blood pressure.

His condition became serious on Monday and since that time little hope has been held for his recovery.

Walsh's condition became suddenly worse at 5:40 p. m. (EDT), only a few hours after funeral services were held for his sister, Mrs. Nellie E. Dooley, who died at her Boston home on Sunday.

With the former Senator when he died at 5:45 p. m., was his life-long friend and law partner, Judge Thomas H. Connelly and several relatives.

Walsh leaves two sisters, the Misses Julia and Mary Walsh, with whom he made his home in Clinton.

Second youngest of 10 children, Walsh rose in the popular American tradition from a poor newsboy to national political prominence. His political career extended over a span of 47 years and he was one of the biggest vote-getters in Massachusetts.

The first political post he held was Democratic town chairman at Clinton in 1898.

In 1918, he became the first Democrat since before the Civil War to be elected to the Senate from Massachusetts and prior to his defeat last year he had led his party's ticket in every campaign.

He retired from politics last November after Republican Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., grandson of Woodrow Wilson's old Senate foe, wrested the Senate seat from him in a one-sided victory.

As chairman of the Naval Affairs committee, Walsh played an important part in building the United States fleet into the strongest the world has ever known.

Walsh was the first son of immigrant parents to become Governor of Massachusetts.

Always independent, he broke often with his party.

During the Roosevelt administration, he was one of the first to bolt the President's leadership in opposing the Chief Executive's proposal to increase the size of the Supreme Court.

Rep. Meyer Calls For Crackdown On Henry Wallace

Labels Him Renegade In Urging Indictment

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—Rep. Herbert A. Meyer (R-Kas) today called Henry A. Wallace "the evil tool of those who would destroy America," and he asked the House: "When will the Attorney General of the United States do his duty and indict this renegade?"

Meyer's attack provided an explosive prelude to the appearance of the former Commerce Secretary and Vice President here Monday night.

It followed announcement by the House Committee on Unamerican Activities that it plans to issue a weekend report on the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which is sponsoring Wallace's speech in the nation's capital.

Dr. Clark Foreman, of Atlanta, president of the conference, expressed hope that the report will be "based on fact" and will not be "a report of smear-by-inuendo in an attempt to discredit Henry Wallace."

In his House speech, Meyer asserted that Wallace "has disgraced his citizenship," and declared:

"Mr. Speaker: Webster's dictionary defines treason as 'the offense of attempting by overt acts to overthrow the government of the state to which the offender owes allegiance.' Treason against the United States is defined by the Constitution (Art. 111, Sec. 3) to consist 'only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving aid and comfort to them.'"

The Kansan said the Washington Post yesterday printed the following:

"NEWARK, N. J., June 9—Henry A. Wallace said tonight that 'the United States has become the center of world reaction' and 'the common man more and more looks to Russia for ideas, help and inspiration.'"

Meyer ended his speech by saying, "Let it not be forgotten that this Henry Wallace is one of the heritages left us by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Sen. Pepper, (D-Fla) is scheduled to introduce Wallace at the Monday night program arranged by the conference.

The Unamerican Activities Committee, in an official report to the House on March 29, 1944, listed the conference as a Communist front. Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) has called committee members to a meeting Thursday to approve and sign the new report. The Conference has denied any Communist affiliation or sympathies, as has Wallace.

House Group Approves Security Tax Freeze

WASHINGTON, June 11—(AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee today unanimously approved a two-year freeze of the Social Security tax at one per cent each on wages and payrolls. That is the present rate.

Without this action the tax would jump automatically next year to 2.5 per cent against employer and employe.

Soviet-Hungarian Alliance Reported

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 11—(AP)—A reliable informant said today that Russia is negotiating a new peacetime alliance designed to align the Hungarian and Russian armies in the event of war.

This source asserted the Russians already had agreed to train top Hungarian officers at the Russian War College in Moscow, and that top Hungarian military and police officers had signed up to take the course.

Maj. Gen. Laszlo Solyom, former chief of police of Budapest, will be among the first Hungarian contingent to be trained by the Soviet army, the informant said. Others will include Gyorgy Palffy-Osterreicher, chief of the political section of the War Ministry.

Officials of the War Ministry would neither confirm nor deny reports that the army would be trained by the Russians, and that Hungarian officers and non-commissioner officers already were attending Russian army maneuvers in Transdanubia as observers.

Several Hungarians said that the warning that any persons discussing Russian army maneuvers would be Hungarian radio had broadcast a subject to arrest.

Coupon Ordeal Is Ended; Price Control Stays

Rationing Continues For Industrial Users

WASHINGTON, June 11. (AP) — The nation's housewives reached the end of a five-year coupon ordeal tonight when the government ended rationing of sugar for households, hotels and restaurants, effective at midnight.

Last of a multitude of things that once could not be bought with money alone, sugar was freed from ration controls because larger quantities are available.

However, price controls remain. So does rationing of industrial sugar. (All sugar controls are due to end October 31 unless Congress says otherwise.)

Tonight's announcement came from Secretary of Agriculture Anderson. His action ended all rationing of articles for ultimate consumers for the first time since April 28, 1942. Sugar, last food to be removed from rationing, was the first to be rationed.

Congress Caught By Surprise

Today's move caught Congress by surprise. The House was prepared to consider a bill to end rationing at tomorrow's session. Similar legislation has been called for in the Senate, but no action has resulted there.

The Agriculture Secretary announced the end of sugar rationing at a news conference. When a reporter asked whether pending congressional action had anything to do with the step, he said:

"A better way to put it would be: Did Congress hurry it because it knew this action was coming?"

He gave three reasons for the move:

1. The International Emergency Food Council said today the United States will get 350,000 extra tons of sugar from Cuba.

2. Cuba has still more surplus sugar which is expected to help cut down demands from other parts of the world.

3. Some 200,000 tons of Javanese sugar—availability of which was in doubt—will definitely be offered to world users now.

Anderson said he "did not dare" end rationing until he received news of the extra sugar from Cuba.

He warned industrial users that they still need ration checks to get sugar from wholesalers or retailers.

Congress Welcomes Move

In addition, he said, retailers will be required to keep records of the name and address of each industrial buyer, the address to which the sugar is delivered, and other information.

But the records of wholesalers and stores selling to household users will be greatly simplified.

The handling of about 1,800,000 gummed sheets of ration stamps is eliminated by today's action.

The end of rationing was welcomed in Congress.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) who has been calling for an end to rationing, said: "That's fine. That's what we asked for three months ago.

"What I was anxious about was that the housewives would get enough sugar to take care of the fruit and vegetable crops. This will do it."

Sen. Tobey (R-NH), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, which has been considering legislation to end rationing, said Anderson's decision was a "good" one, and that he had been expecting it.

Coal For Industrial Use Exempt From Sales Tax

BALTIMORE, June 11 (AP) — Walter E. Kennedy, director of the Sales Tax Collection Division of the State Comptroller's Office, announced today that coal for use in industry will be exempt from the retail sales tax.

The exemption does not extend to coal for domestic consumption.

The state sales tax law specifically exempts fuel oil, natural gas, electricity, and steam for industrial use, but makes no mention of coal. However, the collection division has issued a regulation interpreting the portion of the law defining retail sales to exclude tangible property which is consumed in manufacturing or processing.

Davis Convicted; Faces Life Term

HAGERSTOWN, Md., June 11. (AP)—Bruce Davis, 32-year-old aircraft mechanic, was convicted today by a Washington County Circuit Court jury of first degree murder—without capital punishment—in the hammer slaying of his sweetheart.

The verdict, returned at 5:15 p. m. after 50 minutes of deliberation, calls for life imprisonment of the tall, quiet Tennessean tried in the death of Mrs. Florence McAllister, 29.

Imposition of sentence was deferred after Davis' counsel filed a motion for a new trial. The court will hear arguments at 10 a. m. next Wednesday, June 18.

Davis, who emphatically denied on the witness stand that he killed Mrs. McAllister, accepted the jury's decision calmly, a pose he had maintained throughout the trial which began Monday.

The battered body of the woman was found half nude last December 10 by relatives in a second-floor bedroom of a little-used farmhouse owned by her family near Burtonsville, Md.

Davis denied that he ever had as much as quarrel with Mrs. McAllister and said he had never seen before a broken, blood-stained hammer found near the body.

SIX-DAY-OLD FRENCH RAILROAD TIEUP ENDS

PARIS, Thursday, June 12 (AP) —The six-day-old French railroad strike ended today when the government, the national railroad management and union leaders of rail workers agreed upon a wage increase formula.

The costly tieup, which brought all rail transport throughout the nation to a halt, ended formally after Premier Paul Ramadier accepted the formula and the French railroad workers union ordered its striking employes to return to work at 8 a. m., GMT (3 a. m., EST) today.

Sources at Ramadier's residence said the accord split a 4,000,000,000 franc ($33,600,000) difference which separated the government and the workers on the wage issue.

House Cuts $5,000,000 Out Of FPHA Budget

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—The House cut $5,000,000 out of the $7,200,000 budget for the Federal Public Housing Authority today, and with another swing of the axe ordered Housing Expediter Frank Creedon to start closing up his agency July 1.

It acted after investigators for the Appropriations Committee reported that the EPHA has "failed miserably" and that Creedon's efforts to spur building for veterans likewise have been fruitless.

The double blow at the administration's housing program came with passage of a $36,097,580 bill to finance government corporations during the 12 months beginning July 1.

Lane Requests Legislative Council To Survey Md. Government Structure

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 11—(AP)—A complete survey of Maryland's governmental structure was asked today by Gov. Lane of the Legislative Council, which held its organization meeting in the Senate chamber.

The Chief Executive appeared before the council briefly and listed items he thought would be suitable subjects for council study during the next two years.

His study suggestions included:

1. Greater representation for Baltimore City. He offered the assistance of a commission he had named headed by former Judge William C. Walsh which previously studied the propsal.

2. The state system of parole and probation.

3. The budget, with a view to reducing and streamining it.

4. Planning the state roads program.

5. The election laws—with special reference to the Corrupt Practices Act.

Of the roads program, the Governor said while a huge and costly plan had been authorized by the Legislature, "it probably would not be the better part of wisdom to start pitching a lot of dirt to show we are on our way, spending $2 where $1 should do the job."

Senate President Joseph R. Byrnes, of Baltimore, who by virtue of his office is chairman of the Legislative Council, convened the session and appointed 10 commit-

Congress Is Requested To Have Pity On Juke Box, "Poor Man's Opera"

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP) — Congress was asked today have pity on the "poor man's opera," the juke box.

The juke box industry, said the industry's lawyer, Sidney H. Levine, "is in a sad plight today." And if Congress doesn't watch out, he continued, things may get even worse.

Maybe you wonder why your congressman would be fretting his pretty head over this nation's 400,000 juke boxes.

Well, it all started when the 1909 copyright law was passed. This specifically excluded coin operated music machines from copyright provisions.

In previous hearings before a House Judiciary Subcommittee composers and orchestra leaders who own or share in copyrights have plugged for legislation to knock out this section of the law.

They said they'd like—and they think they have a right to—some of the juke joint nickels.

Speaking for the Automatic Music Operators' Association, Levine said: Nothing doing. Even now, he said, the juke box operator's life is not a happy one.

The operator buys the machine ($1,000), puts it in a tavern or drug store, buys the records, keeps the phonograph repaired, and hires the fellow who collects the kitty. (That's usually split, 50-50, with the tavern operator.)

But Levine said the records don't last long—"only 45 to 50 times"—and business is off 35 per cent since the war.

Reds Offer Atom Plan But Do Not Relent On Veto

LAKE SUCCESS, June 11 (AP) — Russia put before the United Nations today the first detailed Soviet plan for an international control commission to regulate atomic energy.

But she did not back down from vital disagreements with the United States over the veto, and several delegates to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission frankly were puzzled over what Russia's new pronouncement meant.

It was referred to the commission's working committee for study.

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, warned against optimism at this stage and pointed to several points in the new Soviet plan that must be cleared up.

Gromyko Makes Two Speeches

Andrei A. Gromyko, Deputy Foreign Minister, laid down the Soviet details in A. B. C. fashion this morning to the United Nations Atimic Energy Commission in a 15-minute speech this morning.

He followed this with a 20-minute talk in the afternoon to the United Nations Commission for Conventional Armaments, contending that it is impossible "to solve the question of reduction of arms without prohibition of atomic weapons."

Gromyko has sought vainly to persuade the arms commission to link atomic weapons with the reduction of arms and armed forces.

There was confusion among the delegates after Gromyko spoke. Several thought he meant Russia favored two conventions to take effect simultaneously. One would prohibit atomic weapons, the other would set up controls.

Russian Plan Outlined

Questioned after the meeting, Gromyko said that was not the case. He said Russia believed a prohibition convention should be first and controls should come afterwards.

He outlined Russia's idea of an international control commission which could:

1. Inspect facilities for mining atomic raw materials and for production of atomic materials and atomic energy.
2. Check up on existing stocks of atomic materials.
3. Recommend to the Security Council (where the veto exists) action against violators of control agreements.
4. Carry out scientific research activities to keep abreast of latest developments.

Railroad Fireman Who Wants To Be Sociable Telephones Molotov

OELWEIN, Ia., June 11. (AP)—M. E. (Smoky) Schroeder, fireman on the Chicago Great Western Railway, has his own system for finding out about the Russians.

Schroeder told today how he picked up a telephone and put through a long distance call to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov at the Kremlin in Moscow.

"Molotov sounded surprised, asked me if I was in politics, and wondered if I wanted to talk about international affairs," Schroeder related.

"I told him, 'No, I'm just an ordinary fellow who wants to be sociable'."

Schroeder, a 36-year-old bachelor, said he and Molotov talked about railroading and the Midwest until some girls in the diplomats office "butted in" and wanted to know about Hollywood.

18-Year-Old Mother Admits Killing Baby

RACINE, Wis., June 11 (AP) — A grieving 18-year-old mother who summoned Burlington officers yesterday with a telephoned cry that "I've killed my baby and I want to die too," was in custody today, District Attorney Edward A. Krenke said, while the death of her three-week-old child was investigated.

"We both wanted the baby," said a statement given officers by the girl, whom the district attorney identified as Mrs. Frances Stowell, whose husband, 20, is a milk plant employe. "But after it came, I thought it might have been better if we had waited until I was a couple of years older.

"I didn't know anything about taking care of a baby. But I was learning."

Krenzke said that no charge had been filed against Mrs. Stowell and he was awaiting a coroner's report on cause of little Linda Marlene's death.

Radio Actress Is Beaten Insensible By Intruder

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—Mrs. Madge Tucker Miller, 42-year-old radio actress, was beaten insensible today in her apartment by an intruder posing as a window washer but regained consciousness long enough to phone her husband: "Rush home; I'm dying!"

The actress, who as Madge Tucker takes part Sunday mornings in the "Coast to Coast on a Bus" radio program for children, was removed to a hospital where her condition was reported serious.

Police, who found Mrs. Miller on her living room floor, said the rug was wet with blood. Chairs were overturned and tables upset.

The assault apparently was the result of an attempted robbery, by a man believed to be a negro, detectives said.

tees which will take up the various proposals as they come before the council.

After lunching at the executive mansion, the group returned to take up its suggested agenda set forth by Dr. Horace E. Flack, secretary.

Flack explained that the 20 suggested measures he offered were those that had been dealt with by previous councils and Legislature but for various reasons were rejected.

The issue of taxing co-operatives arose in the council with Sen. Stromberg (D-Howard) losing his motion to have the subject excluded for the present from the council agenda.

Another controversial issue — that of regulating building and Loan associations—was put on the agenda at the behest of Sen. Bolton (D-Balto. County), who said no matter what the council did, he was sure such a measure would be presented at the next Senate session.

Among the measures suggested for study by Dr. Flack were those:

To provide for a state department of weights and measures, to regulate prison employment, regulate the cancellation of registration of voters who have failed to vote for a period of five years, to provide for motor vehicle inspection stations, to set up a department of vocational licensing, to amend the constitution to abolish the Orphans Court and to establish state clinics for alcoholics.

St. John's Lutheran Defeats Zion, 13-6; Cops Playoff Spot

St. John's Lutheran earned a spot in the Central Y.M.C.A. Sunday School Softball League's playoff series by defeating Zion Reformed yesterday at Fort Hill by the score of 13 to 6.

Through its victory, St. John's clinched fourth place in the circuit.

First Methodist finished on top with eleven wins and no defeats. Emmanuel Episcopal and Grace Methodist were the other teams to gain playoff berths.

St. John's played yesterday's game without the services of Gary Moler, Jimmie Manges and Bobby Goss.

Rich Cunningham and Ronnie Cage hit home runs and each player had three hits. Drew hit a four-bagger for the losers.

The oddity of the day occurred in the seventh inning with Kreiger on third and Cage on second. Lewis skied to Shortstop Lee, who fell down going after the ball and was unable to recover in time to make a throw to stop either base runner from scoring. Two men raced home on a fly to shortstop with no error charged.

Edgar "Barney" Tucker came up with several sensational stops and made nice throws across the diamond. Score:

Speculation Of Tax Cut Veto Raised By Snyder

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said today that "we must know what out expenditures are going to be before we cut our revenues," thereby raising new speculation of a veto for the income tax reduction bill.

Snyder, the President's chief adviser on taxes and government finance, told a news conference that Congress acted "hastily" in voting to cut taxes before it "set the pattern of expenditures."

He observed that so far Congress has not completed action on "a single appropriations bill."

Baby Survives Wild Ride In Runaway Carriage

NEW YORK, June 11 (AP)—A year-old boy, rolling over and over in the perambulator to which he was strapped as the carriage plunged 100 feet down a ravine with a 60-degree incline, escaped today with minor cuts and bruises.

The baby, Owen Kelly, Jr., was in the carriage near the edge of the ravine in Upper Manhattan while his mother, Margaret, was talking to friends. The carriage suddenly began to roll down the incline, struck a tree in the ravine, toppled over, and rolled down the hill, finally coming to rest against a tree.

Miner Walkouts Appear Near End

PITTSBURGH, June 11. (AP)—Wildcat strikes among bituminous coal diggers irked over prospective labor legislation appeared near an end today as the work stoppages began to affect the coal-sensitive steel industry.

Nearly half of the 14,800 miners who joined in the walkouts in Southwestern Pennsylvania pits returned to work today at the behest of AFL-United Mine Workers leaders. The Coal Mine Administration office here reported eight of 23 closed pits reopened and about 6,640 miners back.

This left about 8,160 idle with today's production loss about 47,600 tons, the CMA said.

As the miners trooped back to work, the United States Steel Corporation announced that two more blast furnaces in the Pittsburgh district have been shut down because of coke shortages. This raised United States Steel's district curtailment to the equivalent of 3½ blast furnaces. The nation's biggest steel producer earlier had reduced the equivalent of 1½ blast furnaces in an effort to build up coke stockpiles for the miners' vacation at the end of this month.

Reds Offer Atom Plan But Do Not Relent On Veto

LAKE SUCCESS, June 11 (AP) — Russia put before the United Nations today the first detailed Soviet plan for an international control commission to regulate atomic energy.

But she did not back down from vital disagreements with the United States over the veto, and several delegates to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission frankly were puzzled over what Russia's new pronouncement meant.

It was referred to the commission's working committee for study.

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, warned against optimism at this stage and pointed to several points in the new Soviet plan that must be cleared up.

Gromyko Makes Two Speeches

Andrei A. Gromyko, Deputy Foreign Minister, laid down the Soviet details in A. B. C. fashion this morning to the United Nations Atimic Energy Commission in a 15-minute speech this morning.

He followed this with a 20-minute talk in the afternoon to the United Nations Commission for Conventional Armaments, contending that it is impossible "to solve the question of reduction of arms without prohibition of atomic weapons."

Gromyko has sought vainly to persuade the arms commission to link atomic weapons with the reduction of arms and armed forces.

There was confusion among the delegates after Gromyko spoke. Several thought he meant Russia favored two conventions to take effect simultaneously. One would prohibit atomic weapons, the other would set up controls.

Russian Plan Outlined

Questioned after the meeting, Gromyko said that was not the case. He said Russia believed a prohibition convention should be first and controls should come afterwards.

He outlined Russia's idea of an international control commission which could:

1. Inspect facilities for mining atomic raw materials and for production of atomic materials and atomic energy.
2. Check up on existing stocks of atomic materials.
3. Recommend to the Security Council (where the veto exists) action against violators of control agreements.
4. Carry out scientific research activities to keep abreast of latest developments.

Railroad Fireman Who Wants To Be Sociable Telephones Molotov

OELWEIN, Ia., June 11. (AP)—M. E. (Smoky) Schroeder, fireman on the Chicago Great Western Railway, has his own system for finding out about the Russians.

Schroeder told today how he picked up a telephone and put through a long distance call to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov at the Kremlin in Moscow.

"Molotov sounded surprised, asked me if I was in politics, and wondered if I wanted to talk about international affairs," Schroeder related.

"I told him, 'No, I'm just an ordinary fellow who wants to be sociable'."

Schroeder, a 36-year-old bachelor, said he and Molotov talked about railroading and the Midwest until some girls in the diplomats office "butted in" and wanted to know about Hollywood.

18-Year-Old Mother Admits Killing Baby

RACINE, Wis., June 11 (AP) — A grieving 18-year-old mother who summoned Burlington officers yesterday with a telephoned cry that "I've killed my baby and I want to die too," was in custody today, District Attorney Edward A. Krenke said, while the death of her three-week-old child was investigated.

"We both wanted the baby," said a statement given officers by the girl, whom the district attorney identified as Mrs. Frances Stowell, whose husband, 20, is a milk plant employe. "But after it came, I thought it might have been better if we had waited until I was a couple of years older.

"I didn't know anything about taking care of a baby. But I was learning."

Krenzke said that no charge had been filed against Mrs. Stowell and he was awaiting a coroner's report on cause of little Linda Marlene's death.

Radio Actress Is Beaten Insensible By Intruder

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—Mrs. Madge Tucker Miller, 42-year-old radio actress, was beaten insensible today in her apartment by an intruder posing as a window washer but regained consciousness long enough to phone her husband: "Rush home; I'm dying!"

The actress, who as Madge Tucker takes part Sunday mornings in the "Coast to Coast on a Bus" radio program for children, was removed to a hospital where her condition was reported serious.

Police, who found Mrs. Miller on her living room floor, said the rug was wet with blood. Chairs were overturned and tables upset.

The assault apparently was the result of an attempted robbery, by a man believed to be a negro, detectives said.

tees which will take up the various proposals as they come before the council.

After lunching at the executive mansion, the group returned to take up its suggested agenda set forth by Dr. Horace E. Flack, secretary.

Flack explained that the 20 suggested measures he offered were those that had been dealt with by previous councils and Legislature but for various reasons were rejected.

The issue of taxing co-operatives arose in the council with Sen. Stromberg (D-Howard) losing his motion to have the subject excluded for the present from the council agenda.

Another controversial issue — that of regulating building and Loan associations—was put on the agenda at the behest of Sen. Bolton (D-Balto. County), who said no matter what the council did, he was sure such a measure would be presented at the next Senate session.

Among the measures suggested for study by Dr. Flack were those:

To provide for a state department of weights and measures, to regulate prison employment, regulate the cancellation of registration of voters who have failed to vote for a period of five years, to provide for motor vehicle inspection stations, to set up a department of vocational licensing, to amend the constitution to abolish the Orphans Court and to establish state clinics for alcoholics.

St. John's Lutheran Defeats Zion, 13-6; Cops Playoff Spot

St. John's Lutheran earned a spot in the Central Y.M.C.A. Sunday School Softball League's playoff series by defeating Zion Reformed yesterday at Fort Hill by the score of 13 to 6.

Through its victory, St. John's clinched fourth place in the circuit.

First Methodist finished on top with eleven wins and no defeats. Emmanuel Episcopal and Grace Methodist were the other teams to gain playoff berths.

St. John's played yesterday's game without the services of Gary Moler, Jimmie Manges and Bobby Goss.

Rich Cunningham and Ronnie Cage hit home runs and each player had three hits. Drew hit a four-bagger for the losers.

The oddity of the day occurred in the seventh inning with Kreiger on third and Cage on second. Lewis skied to Shortstop Lee, who fell down going after the ball and was unable to recover in time to make a throw to stop either base runner from scoring. Two men raced home on a fly to shortstop with no error charged.

Edgar "Barney" Tucker came up with several sensational stops and made nice throws across the diamond. Score:

ZION	000	150	0	6	5	4

Century A.C. Tossers Edge Aristocrats, 3-2

FROSTBURG, June 11—The Century Athletic Club edged the Aristocrats, 3-2, at Y.M.I. Park and Chubby's downed the Eagles to the tune of 8-2 at State Teachers College Field today in Frostburg Softball League games.

Kreitzburg led the Century offensive with a homer, double and single while Junior Cole paced the Aristocrats with two hits.

Highlighting the Eagles-Chubby's game was Chaney's sensational catch of Kreider's line drive with the bases loaded in the fourth inning. Bevans, B. Carter, Goldsworthy and Connor banged out two hits each for Chubby's.

The game between Peck's and Chubby's scheduled for Thursday at State Teachers' field has been transferred to Y.M.I. Park. Scores:

Speculation Of Tax Cut Veto Raised By Snyder

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said today that "we must know what out expenditures are going to be before we cut our revenues," thereby raising new speculation of a veto for the income tax reduction bill.

Snyder, the President's chief adviser on taxes and government finance, told a news conference that Congress acted "hastily" in voting to cut taxes before it "set the pattern of expenditures."

He observed that so far Congress has not completed action on "a single appropriations bill."

The library at Alexandria, Egypt, under the Ptolemies, is said to have contained 700,000 volumes.

Baby Survives Wild Ride In Runaway Carriage

NEW YORK, June 11 (AP)—A year-old boy, roiling over and over in the perambulator to which he was strapped as the carriage plunged 100 feet down a ravine with a 60-degree incline, escaped today with minor cuts and bruises.

The baby, Owen Kelly, Jr., was in the carriage near the edge of the ravine in Upper Manhattan while his mother, Margaret, was talking to friends. The carriage suddenly began to roll down the incline, struck a tree in the ravine, toppled over, and rolled down the hill, finally coming to rest against a tree.

prime minister of Hungary, Matyas Rakosi "in such circumstances as to force the resignation of the Hungarian Prime Minister and other important leaders of the majority Small Holders' Party and to bring about the reorganization of the Hungarian government."

The United States said bluntly that while the Soviets had prevented joint investigation by the Big Three of the alleged conspiracy it had acted single-handedly and that the result had been "a most flagrant interference in Hungarian affairs."

Miner Walkouts Appear Near End

PITTSBURGH, June 11. (AP)—Wildcat strikes among bituminous coal diggers irked over prospective labor legislation appeared near an end today as the work stoppages began to affect the coal-sensitive steel industry.

Nearly half of the 14,800 miners who joined in the walkouts in Southwestern Pennsylvania pits returned to work today at the behest of AFL-United Mine Workers leaders. The Coal Mine Administration office here reported eight of 23 closed pits reopened and about 6,640 miners back.

This left about 8,160 idle with today's production loss about 47,600 tons, the CMA said.

As the miners trooped back to work, the United States Steel Corporation announced that two more blast furnaces in the Pittsburgh district have been shut down because of coke shortages. This raised United States Steel's district curtailment to the equivalent of 3½ blast furnaces. The nation's biggest steel producer earlier had reduced the equivalent of 1½ blast furnaces in an effort to build up coke stockpiles for the miners' vacation at the end of this month.

Here's A Ray Of Hope After 12 Long Years

Finally breaking through the fog of paid propaganda in the press and radio and clouds of oratory on the Senate floor, the labor-control bill has been sent to the President for his signature or veto.

Opposition of the "labor-right-or-wrong" school in the Senate is typified by the charge of Senator Murray of Montana that the bill would "give the workers and trade unions no new right or privilege." The hysterical charge that this bill means "serfdom for the American worker" is absurd on its face.

Labor leaders and lawmakers like Senator Murray do not seem to understand that the temper of Congress and the country has changed during the past dozen years under the pressure of bitter experience. When a measure to control flagrant abuses of labor's power receives a 320 to 79 majority in the House, and a 54-to-17 margin in the Senate, it is ridiculous to say that this is the work of "a handful of labor-baiters and economy royalists."

There isn't much doubt that the past 12 years of labor-management strife could have been avoided if Senator Wagner and his friends had used just a little restraint. When the Labor Relations bill came up for a vote in the Senate in the spring of 1935, Senator Tydings, of Maryland, a Democrat, urged an "amendment" to prohibit coercion from any source," management or labor. The amendment was thrown out, 63-to-12. In the House, Rep. Hartley, of New Jersey, a Republican, offered the same amendment. It was howled down by a voice vote.

There is little doubt if that one phrase had been included in the Wagner Act, and faithfully carried out by the NLRB, a world of industrial grief might have been averted. The essence of the Taft-Hartley bill is to prevent coercion from any source. It is a fair, democratic measure which would protect the rights of all, including the American public, and which would interfere with no privileges except those which have been abused by certain unions and labor bosses. After 12 long years the country finally has a chance to restore, to the vital field of labor-management relations, the principles of its Constitution. Whether this is done or not is squarely up to President Truman—and you can bet your last dollar if he vetoes the bill it will be purely for political reasons.

A friend of ours who got through that long Memorial Day weekend in pretty fair shape is now worrying about the Fourth of July which will be another "triple-threat" holiday.

There's Serious Shortage Now Of Graduate Nurses

From many sources we are informed that a serious shortage of graduate nurses is one of the most pressing health problems facing the country today. More than 32,000 badly-needed hospital beds now are closed primarily as the result of the shortage of nurses in hospitals and planned expansion of existing hospital facilities will only make the present shortage more acute.

It is also true at this time, when more nurses are needed than ever before, that schools of nursing report a sharp drop in enrollments for 1946, after the peak years of the Cadet Nurse Recruitment program. Enrollments now are down below prewar levels.

To combat the shortage of graduate and student nurses, the American Hospital Association, The Advertising Council, Inc., the American Red Cross and national nursing organizations are conducting a nation-wide program to recruit student nurses. The goal of the drive is enrollment of 45,000 student nurses in 1947.

It is estimated that as many as 100,000 additional graduate nurses are needed immediately. About 75,000 could be placed in hospitals, the rest in public health, government agencies, schools, institutions, industry and other non-hospital fields.

Young women interested in finding out more about the opportunities and advantages offered by a professional nursing career are urged to communicate with schools of nursing and hospitals in their local areas.

Those who maintain that the world is making some progress toward normalcy despite evidence to the contrary, can now point to a revolution in Nicaragua as proof.

Still Growing

The immediate economic future of this nation may be clouded but the stars in the farther distance are bright, according to a Twentieth Century Fund survey that has just been completed. On the basis of this three-year study, it is the conclusion of Dr. J. Frederick Dewhurst, economist for the fund, that the American economy is not "mature" but still growing and holds great possibilities for further growth.

Some of the findings in the report, which is to be published under the title "America's Needs and Resources," offer striking comparisons. For example, the net output of the economy in 1944 was 27 times larger than in 1850, although it was produced by a labor force only nine times greater working 43 hours a week instead of 70. In 1944 dollars, it rose from $6,000,000,000 to $161,000,000,000 and the average income per person climbed from $270 to approximately $1,170.

As for the future, the report says that output could reach $177 billion in 1950 and $202 billion in 1960, operating at levels attained in the last half of the 1920s. These estimates are based on probable demand and past performance. If the economy is to supply a minimum desirable living standard, it says, output would be $200 billion in 1950 and $219 billion in 1960.

This is to say that the economy does not now provide such a standard. But it comes fairly close to it. Moreover, if it is to be reached, there are great opportunities for public and private investment in schools, roads, businesses and manufacturing plants. Whether these investments will be made is a question still to be answered. But the record shows that tremendous progress has been made in the past and that is reason to believe it will continue.

Sixty-seven per cent of all men's ties, statistics show, are purchased by women. What the mere male thinks is an ornament is really a yoke around his neck.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

ACCIDENTS TO CRILDREN

ANY one reading the statistics on accidents cannot help but horrified by the high mortality. It is unfortunate that fifth ranking killer does not receive the publicity it deserves in these days when so many campaigns are waged against diseases that kill far fewer people. Accidents are the leading cause of death of boys of school age. According to some statisticians, in the five to 14 age group they take more than twice the total due to childhood diseases, tuberculosis, pneumonia, rheumatic fever, and appendicitis.

How can this dreadful situation be prevented? Children are naturally heedless and, unless the parents devote much time and energy to training and discipline, they will follow their natural impulses and run wild. This means striking matches, tinkering with firearms, strolling along railroad tracks, hitching rides on the backs of autos or trucks, and playing ball in the street. In other words, fathers and mothers must give as much attention to instructing their offspring on how to be careful as in teaching them proper eating habits, manners and good diction. Mere talk will not be successful; they must enforce their orders. All too often, parents permit their progeny to wander where they will, with little or no supervision. To keep control is not easy but this is the price of parenthood.

City streets are dangerous and motor vehicles account for many disasters. These risks will probably continue so long as youngsters are allowed to cross alone or play on the streets and motorists drive like fury thru residential districts. But the home is not entirely safe and some tots have a genius for getting into trouble even tho they are right under mother's eyes. A great many mishaps occur in the kitchen. Pans of boiling water are tipped, roasting pots and dishes are lifted, or little fingers touch hot stoves. Others fall from porches or windows, slip in bathtubs, or skid on small rugs.

Drownings also take their toll. In boys this catastrophe was outranked only by automobile deaths. Altho most of these mishaps are encountered while swimming, wading, or boating, some fall into the water while playing on docks, bridges, rails, rock ledges, or overhanging trees. If youngsters are taught how to swim, as well as to be careful, many of these fatalities can be prevented.

Bicycle riding is an excellent form of exercise that is enjoyed by most children and many grownups. But certain precautions must be taken or the pastime cannot be considered safe. In 1941, 900 deaths from this cause was recorded. The majority collided with automobiles; others fell from the bike or ran into curbs, trees, or street cars.

During the war the number of such casualties was reduced markedly because of the shortage of wheels and the decreased motor traffic. Now that both forms of vehicles are more plentiful we may expect the rate to rise unless education in safety can be made effective. The bike should be kept in good repair and the rider must obey traffic signals and stay off the main highways. Night riding ought to be prohibited. Every motorist knows how difficult it is to see a cyclist after dark even tho the lights and reflectors are part of the equipment.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I was recently made the guest editor of a national woman's magazine. I can't figure out why they picked on me . . . and who told them I used to pose for corset ads?

But I visited the office and I really enjoyed it . . . There I was surrounded by all those women . . . Nothing but women everywhere I looked . . . How does that poem go? "Water, water, everywhere and not a drop to drink."

Bu tthe real reason they made me editor was because all the girls on the staff were so crazy about me . . . They told me I was their idol . . . Of course I liked being their idol, but it was a little embarrassing sitting on top of the desk with my legs crossed while they burned incense in my lap . . .

The offices on a women's magazine are a little different. The typewriters there all have rear-vision mirrors so the reporters can see who's talking behind their backs . . .

And what typewriters they have! I sat down at one and pressed a key I didn't recognize and a hand came out and plucked my eyebrows . . .

And the women reporters always write out all their notes in eyebrow pencil . . . I suggested printing the whole magazine in eyebrow pencil and callngi it "wink." (They didn't think it was very humorous either.)

But being editor of a women's magazine, you really get around. I covered a lot of social events, new books, plays . . . And I interviewed Gypsy Rose Lee. It was the first time she'd been covered in years . . .

But it was wonderful being the only man in a woman's world. After three hours, I was out of this world . . . And after I was there a half a day I really charmed the assistant editor. She told me I was her pin-up boy . . . But what a place to put the pin. I haven't been able to sit down since.

WEIGHTING THE DYNAMITE

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Attorney General Replies To Whitewash Charge; Wife Of Minister To Ireland Has Sweepstakes Headaches; Housing Debate Delays Vets Housing

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.—Attorney General Tom Clark was listening to a barrage of criticism from Republican Senators during the hearing on the Kansas City vote scandals—particularly criticism from the junior GOP Senator from Missouri, James Kem. Specifically, Kem accused the Attorney General of whitewashing Democrats.

"Whitewashing!" snapped Clark. "Was it whitewashing when I prosecuted the Democratic Congressman from Massachusetts, Mayor Curley, and convicted him?

"And was it whitewashing when I prosecuted Congressman May of Kentucky, another Democrat?" continued Clark. "And was it whitewashing when I prosecuted an assistant to President Roosevelt for incometax evasion? Is that what you call whitewashing Democrats?"

Irish Headaches

It is sometimes said among diplomats that relations between Ireland and the USA are so salubrious that the only job of the American Minister to Ireland is to attend the Dublin horse show and help friends get sweepstakes tickets. This, of course, is a slight exaggeration.

But the other day, delightful Mrs. George Garret, wife of the newly appointed Minister to Ireland, was complaining to a friend about the headaches involved in becoming hostess of the American legation in Dublin.

"You know," she said, "few people realize how much work I'll have in Dublin. And my biggest headache is keeping track of all my friends who want tickets on the Irish sweepstakes. I've got a list this long . . .

"Certainly, darling, I'll be glad to add your name," continued Mrs. Garret. "I'll put you at the top of the list."

Secret Housing Squabbles

Without benefit of much publicity, Congressional conferences have been taking place which affect housing for several million veterans, and the rents paid by several million others — both vets and non-vets.

Part of these talks have been held secretly inside the joint House-Senate Conference Committee, of which two veterans with opposite points of view are members. One is Senator Bill Knowland of California, who has worked for veterans' housing. The other is Senafor Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin, who sides with the real-estate lobby against veterans' housing. Both are Republicans.

Before the housing bill got to secret conference, however, another Senator who is not a veteran had dealt it a body blow on the Senate floor. He is affable Senator Douglas Buck of Delaware, who married a daughter of the millionaire duPonts, and who made the amazing proposal to substitute the House housing bill for the Senate bill — except for the Senate provision to raise rents 15 per cent. (The House bill contained no housing controls in favor of veterans.)

Several Senators who had been closely following the housing debate immediately protested, among them Flanders of Vermont, a Republican, and Sparkman of Alabama, Democrat. They pointed out that the Senate Banking Committee had not even considered ending housing controls. Nevertheless, the Buck proposal was passed. This meant the end of housing controls in favor of veterans.

At this point, war vet Knowland of California tried to undo the work of his non-vet Republican colleague from Delaware. He offered an amendment that housing controls be continued until December with the Office of Housing Expediter also continued.

Behind this move is the fact that at present the Housing Expediter can hold up materials for unnecessary building and allocate them to veterans' housing. About two billions of commercial construction was diverted to home construction as a result of these controls last year. Knowland wanted to continue this preference for veterans. And the Senate voted to support him.

However, when the housing bill went from the Senate floor to the secret House-Senate conference, some strange things happened.

In the secrecy of committee, Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, long close to the big real-estate interests, knocked out most of the work of his fellow Republican from California.

At the first meeting of the conference, Wolcott paused significantly as he came to the Knowland amendment continuing housing controls. He turned inquiringly to Senator Buck as if to ask: "Do you really want to hold on to this?"

The duPont son-in-law did not reply. But Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin volunteered that the Republican Senators didn't want it. Knowland was not a member of the committee, so could not be present to defend his amendment. And his GOP colleague from the neighboring state of Washington, Harry Cain, did not support him.

Discussion has seesawed back and forth for some days since, with Democrats Sparkman of Alabama and Taylor of Idaho trying to put housing controls back into the bill.

Wolcott Keeps Word

Back in February, Rep. Wolcott spoke in Chicago before the National Association of Home Builders, one of the most effective of the real-estate lobbies. Said he: "I know that you feel at liberty now, as you perhaps never have before, to sit down with the members of the House and Senate Banking and Currency Committees. I know that we can be mutually helpful.

"It is my purpose to introduce legislation within the next week which will repeal, with two minor exceptions, the Veterans Emergency Housing Act of 1946 . . ."

Significantly, the Congressman added: "I know that you appreciate the seriousness of the problem, how necessary it is that we proceed cautiously."

It looks as if the Congressman from Michigan has now kept his word.

Capital Chaff

If the Taft-Hartley Bill becomes law, unions won't be able to hire radio commentators any more, though the National Association of Manufacturers can. The law prohibits use of union funds for political purposes. Almost anything commentators say can be called "political." . . . Boss of the Bronx Ed Flynn may name the next Ambassador to Uruguay . . . Though the war is long over, France, England and Russia are still hoarding hundreds of thousands of German prisoners of war . . . Iowa's Republican Congressman, Karl Le Compte, Chairman of a House Election Subcommittee, is hushing up a vote scandal in an Atlanta Congressional District where Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin was knocked out of her Congressional seat although she got most of the votes. Ku Kluxers and Columbians burned down 30 acres of Mrs. Mankin's farmland recently because of her vigorous opposition to the hooded order . . . Meanwhile GOP Congressional committees probe West Virginia and Maryland, but shun Georgia.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

The Far East

WHILE attention is being focused on the European situation, Soviet Russia is making marked advances in the Far East. Chinese Communists, a direct arm of the Soviet international armed forces, retreated from their war capital at Yenan and entered upon a military career in Manchuria.

Manchuria is bounded on the North by Soviet Russia. On the West, it touches upon Mongolia much of which since 1921 has been under the indirect control of Soviet Russia through the Mongolian Socialist Soviet Republic. On the East, Manchuria is bounded by Korea, the northern half of which is held by Soviet Russia; the southern half by the United States.

At the Cairo Conference, the United States and Great Britain agreed with China that Manchuria was to be returned to China after it was taken from Japan. The exact words were:

"It is their purpose that Japan shall be stripped of all the islands in the Pacific . . . and that all the territories that Japan has stolen from the Chinese, such as Manchuria . . . shall be restored to the Republic of China."

The Far Eastern terms of the Yalta Conference were kept secret but actually Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill agreed that Soviet Russia was to become the successor to Japan's economic and political advantages prior to September 19, 1931. If some State Department offilcial challenges such wording, I shall be glad to show what those advantages were on that date and what Soviet Russia's advantages are today. They happen to coincide. The fact bespeaks a secret agreement.

Furthermore, I note in a private letter which I received from China this reference:

"It is to be hoped that, although the Yalta Agreement mentioned the 'preeminent interests of the Soviet Union . . .'"

Now that phrase "preeminent interests" is something new. The Japanese held that they had special interests in Manchuria because of propinquity and the United States once recognized Japan's paramount interests in the Lansing-Ishii Agreement which did not long hold. In fact, the American policy in Manchuria since 1899 was generally based upon the John Hay "Open Door Policy" which insisted that all countries had the same rights in Manchuria that any country enjoyed. Japan fought three wars over this question; the Sino-Japanese War in 1894; the Russo-Japanese War of 1904, and the recent war with China which lasted from 1931 to 1945.

If all this blood was shed to deny to Japan "preeminent interests," why were they granted to Soviet Russia? And who had the right to grant them? As a matter of fact, the United States and Great Britain are obligated by the Nine Power Treaty signed in Washington in 1921 to deny "preeminent interests." Had Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Churchill the legal right at Yalta to break a treaty and to vitiate the obligations of their countries?

Be that as it may, they did it. They handed to Stalin precisely what they took from Japan.

General Marshall was sent to China to effect a peace between Chiang Kai-Shek and the Communists. Had he succeeded, Soviet Russia would by now be as completely in the saddle in China as it is in Hungary. Mercifully he failed in his mission with the result that the Chinese Communists are fighting for Manchuria but they are not in control in Nanking. China still has some chance. It has a chance only, however, as long as the Civil War continues. Peace in China would mean the appeasement of Soviet Russia and the acceptance of a Communist regime.

The Soviet imperialist movement in Asia parallels the Soviet imperial movement in Europe. Both utilize native forces to do the Russian business. Both prevent the liquidation of the war and keep cast areas in turmoil. Both are fanatically managed by members of the Third International who are ideologically concerned with the establishment of One World—a Soviet World—a Bolshevik world.

Both regard the United States as their principal enemy, the stumbling block to their goal. Those who believe that they can employ the Truman Doctrine in parts of Europe but not of Asia, fail to understand the horrible future that Ameican policy faces in both areas. To the Russians, the problem is one. To us, it must be one.

Effect Of President's Action On Tax, Labor Bills Studied

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 11 — Just what effect will President Truman's action on the tax reduction and labor regulation bills have on his political future?

This question is uppermost in conversation here as official Washington continues to guess whether one or both measures will be vetoed. There are, to be sure, separate political effects likely to flow from action on each measure, as follows:

1. Effect of signing of Labor bill: upsurge of sentiment on the conservative side and particularly a gain among independent voters sending the popularity curve of President Truman above any previous levels this year. Mr. Truman could argue, either in letting the bill become law or by signing it, that apparently the measure has substantial support within both parties and he could note that a majority of the Democrats of the House voted for the measure when it came back from the joint conference committee.

2. Effect of a veto of Labor bill: Enthusiastic support from labor-union leaders and a promise of considerable help in the 1948 presidential campaign when presumably Mr. Truman will be a candidate to succeed himself; loss of certain indepedent voters and also a trend on the part of conservative Democratic voters to look to the Republican Party in 1948.

3. Effect of signing of the Tax bill or letting it become law without signature will be the same: An increase in popularity for the president with taxpayers, large and small. His argument could be that Congress has primary responsibility for the raising of revenue and for imposing tax rates. Comparatively little or no loss of votes is entailed by presidential approval of the tax bill.

4. Effect of a veto of the Tax bill: Loss of many independent votes and loss also of many conservatives in the Democratic Party who will feel that the president has committed himself to a resumption of New Deal spending and high budgets. An issue will be made of the inflationary significance of the president's attitude. No corresponding gain among radicals or independents is foreseen to offset the loss of votes and disappointment in both the Republican and Democratic parties over the failure of the Tax bill to become law. For in this there are not enough votes to override a veto. Hence, unlike the case of the Labor bill, a presidential veto will mean the killing of tax-reduction legislation this year.

To summarize: Mr. Truman will lose considerable political support by vetoing both the labor and tax-reduction bills. His loss will not be as much if he signs the Tax bill and vetoes the Labor bill because the net effect would be that both bills would, in the end, become law and the public would have the benefits of both.

The impression in the last few days is that a veto of the Tax bill is certain and that while there are advisers who want the President to sign the Labor bill he will, in the final analysis, realize that the measure is going to become law anyway, no matter what he does. He is expected to retain labor-union support by a veto.

There are other political consequences to the nation, however, which will arise from a presidential veto of both labor and tax-reduction bills. The Republican majority will go to the country with the charge that Mr. Truman has adopted the unsound fiscal policies of the New Deal with more spending and more government extravagance and that the only way to a sound fiscal position is to elect a Republican president. Unfortunately for Mr. Truman, while he may argue that any surplus should be credited to debt reduction, neither he nor his associates have helped to reduce the national budget this year. The Republicans, on the other hand, have made a sizable cut in the budget. If the surplus attributable to this is used wholly for debt reduction, it will not inure to Mr. Truman's political advantage but to the Republicans. Likewise if it had not been for the stimulating spur of tax reduction as an objective there would have been little budget-cutting at this session of Congress.

The most important political consequence of a veto of the Tax bill will be a declaration of war by the Republicans on President Truman for refusing to accept majority will on tax measures.

Some Unions Are Ganging Up On Little Business In USA

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Here's what little business is up against. It tells why Mr. Truman had better not veto that labor bill.

In Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the Meat Cutters Local 170 put the heat on the Pfaff food store to sign as a closed shop. Pfaff's employees did not want to join. But, if Pfaff signed, they would be forced to join or he would have to fire them.

Pfaff refused. Then the Meat Cutters Local ganged up on the Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers Locals to give Pfaff "the business" or as it is sometimes called, "the works." They put a picket line around the store. This, they claimed, was under the "sacred right of free speech" to advertise that a labor dispute existed. None, in fact, did exist as none of Pfaff's employees was in the union.

The next turn of the thumbscrews was to blockade Pfaff from getting merchandise. This required that the food wholesalers and meat packers join the conspiracy. Big Business was black-jacked to gang up with Big Unions to ruin a little business.

Now, I will let Judge Thompson have the floor. The Judge said:

"We have the spectacle of two powerful labor unions (Meat Cutters and Truckers), in alliance with many large business concerns, combining to ruin a small shopkeeper whose only fault was that he refused to sign a closed shop contract at the dictation of one of the unions (Meat Cutters), with which neither he nor his employees had any connection. . . . It matters little whether this be called a combination in restraint of trade, a criminal conspiracy, or a secondary boycott. Under any view of the matter it is morally and legally wrong. . . . It seems unthinkable that this form of economic strangulation could be approved by any court."

Well-said, Judge, but you are wrong. You are too kind to some courts I've read about.

However, it was unthinkable to Judge Thompson. He issued a permanent injunction against the picket line. He said the cry of free speech was a "phoney" to sprinkle perfume on a conspiracy.

Such is the "alliance" that threatens to put little business in the squeeze. The giants of business and of labor may make their industry-wide bargains and survive. But little business finds the going tough when the giants gang up. And, as oaks grow only from acorns, we have got to make sure that little business men have their chance to sprout, and put forth the budding leaves of hope. Ex-G.I.'s, please take note if you plan to go into business.

It is probable that some of the wholesalers and packers who entered the conspiracy did so unwillingly. They were under the gun, too. If they refused, they could expect trouble at their other outlets. So, they may have decided it was wiser to throw Pfaff to the wolves to save their other retailers.

On the other hand, if the wholesalers had retail outlets of their own, or otherwise wanted to liquidate Pfaff as a competitor, as the elder Rockefeller ganged up with the railroads in the early days of Standard Oil, this was a smooth way to do it.

Anyhow, that sword will hang over little business until national and state governments deal effectively with this menace. What little business faces today is a situation similar to those that aroused Congress to pass the Sherman Anti-Trust Act in 1890 and the Clayton Act in 1914. It requires similar treatment.

In closing, my compliments to a brave judge!

Keep Discovering!

There is no more fascinating study than that of discovery. The early history of a country is the most absorbing. A child's life should be its happiest period for it is one of constant discovery. Each new discovery a thrill.

We have continual progress in the world for men and women give their lives to this business of discovery. The scientist, the researcher, the explorer, and the experimenter, all are benefactors. Material rewards mean little to such for they are constantly being repaid through the satisfaction of each new discovery.

The collector's greatest joy lies in the discovery. Then he goes on to something else.

The naturalist counts no cost too great in order to discover some new phase of his objective. For hours and days he will seek out the habits of a bird or animal. He will take note of every creation in nature and make note of it. New revelations spring to his notice on every hand. There are no limits to his perseverance. W. H. Hudson, commenting upon the return of the Chiffchaff, allows his mind to speculate upon the greatest of all problems—life and death.

Watching those small red squirrels, at my summer island retreat in Nova Scotia, I learned more than to look upon them as just squirrels. I saw them with habits, creatures of instincts. I scented many a human trait in them. I discovered many things about them that I have never read or heard about. For example, one day I noted with my field glasses that one of them was cleaning the pine pitch from his face, by wiping it with dry leaves! He might have been a "she," however—beauty particular!

There isn't a day that dawns that cannot be a discovery day. I am constantly discovering new facts and interesting items in the thousands of books in my library. But the best of all discoveries is to discover something good in people—and in ourselves.

Here's A Ray Of Hope After 12 Long Years

Finally breaking through the fog of paid propaganda in the press and radio and clouds of oratory on the Senate floor, the labor-control bill has been sent to the President for his signature or veto.

Opposition of the "labor-right-or-wrong" school in the Senate is typified by the charge of Senator Murray of Montana that the bill would "give the workers and trade unions no new right or privilege." The hysterical charge that this bill means "serfdom for the American worker" is absurd on its face.

Labor leaders and lawmakers like Senator Murray do not seem to understand that the temper of Congress and the country has changed during the past dozen years under the pressure of bitter experience. When a measure to control flagrant abuses of labor's power receives a 320 to 79 majority in the House, and a 54-to-17 margin in the Senate, it is ridiculous to say that this is the work of "a handful of labor-baiters and economy royalists."

There isn't much doubt that the past 12 years of labor-management strife could have been avoided if Senator Wagner and his friends had used just a little restraint. When the Labor Relations bill came up for a vote in the Senate in the spring of 1935, Senator Tydings, of Maryland, a Democrat, urged an "amendment" to prohibit coercion from any source," management or labor. The amendment was thrown out, 63-to-12. In the House, Rep. Hartley, of New Jersey, a Republican, offered the same amendment. It was howled down by a voice vote.

There is little doubt if that one phrase had been included in the Wagner Act, and faithfully carried out by the NLRB, a world of industrial grief might have been averted. The essence of the Taft-Hartley bill is to prevent coercion from any source. It is a fair, democratic measure which would protect the rights of all, including the American public, and which would interfere with no privileges except those which have been abused by certain unions and labor bosses. After 12 long years the country finally has a chance to restore, to the vital field of labor-management relations, the principles of its Constitution. Whether this is done or not is squarely up to President Truman—and you can bet your last dollar if he vetoes the bill it will be purely for political reasons.

A friend of ours who got through that long Memorial Day weekend in pretty fair shape is now worrying about the Fourth of July which will be another "triple-threat" holiday.

There's Serious Shortage Now Of Graduate Nurses

From many sources we are informed that a serious shortage of graduate nurses is one of the most pressing health problems facing the country today. More than 32,000 badly-needed hospital beds now are closed primarily as the result of the shortage of nurses in hospitals and planned expansion of existing hospital facilities will only make the present shortage more acute.

It is also true at this time, when more nurses are needed than ever before, that schools of nursing report a sharp drop in enrollments for 1946, after the peak years of the Cadet Nurse Recruitment program. Enrollments now are down below prewar levels.

To combat the shortage of graduate and student nurses, the American Hospital Association, The Advertising Council, Inc., the American Red Cross and national nursing organizations are conducting a nation-wide program to recruit student nurses. The goal of the drive is enrollment of 45,000 student nurses in 1947.

It is estimated that as many as 100,000 additional graduate nurses are needed immediately. About 75,000 could be placed in hospitals, the rest in public health, government agencies, schools, institutions, industry and other non-hospital fields.

Young women interested in finding out more about the opportunities and advantages offered by a professional nursing career are urged to communicate with schools of nursing and hospitals in their local areas.

Those who maintain that the world is making some progress toward normalcy despite evidence to the contrary, can now point to a revolution in Nicaragua as proof.

Still Growing

The immediate economic future of this nation may be clouded but the stars in the farther distance are bright, according to a Twentieth Century Fund survey that has just been completed. On the basis of this three-year study, it is the conclusion of Dr. J. Frederick Dewhurst, economist for the fund, that the American economy is not "mature" but still growing and holds great possibilities for further growth.

Some of the findings in the report, which is to be published under the title "America's Needs and Resources," offer striking comparisons. For example, the net output of the economy in 1944 was 27 times larger than in 1850, although it was produced by a labor force only nine times greater working 43 hours a week instead of 70. In 1944 dollars, it rose from $6,000,000,000 to $161,000,000,000 and the average income per person climbed from $270 to approximately $1,170.

As for the future, the report says that output could reach $177 billion in 1950 and $202 billion in 1960, operating at levels attained in the last half of the 1920s. These estimates are based on probable demand and past performance. If the economy is to supply a minimum desirable living standard, it says, output would be $200 billion in 1950 and $219 billion in 1960.

This is to say that the economy does not now provide such a standard. But it comes fairly close to it. Moreover, if it is to be reached, there are great opportunities for public and private investment in schools, roads, businesses and manufacturing plants. Whether these investments will be made is a question still to be answered. But the record shows that tremendous progress has been made in the past and that is reason to believe it will continue.

Sixty-seven per cent of all men's ties, statistics show, are purchased by women. What the mere male thinks is an ornament is really a yoke around his neck.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

ACCIDENTS TO CRILDREN

ANY one reading the statistics on accidents cannot help but horrified by the high mortality. It is unfortunate that fifth ranking killer does not receive the publicity it deserves in these days when so many campaigns are waged against diseases that kill far fewer people. Accidents are the leading cause of death of boys of school age. According to some statisticians, in the five to 14 age group they take more than twice the total due to childhood diseases, tuberculosis, pneumonia, rheumatic fever, and appendicitis.

How can this dreadful situation be prevented? Children are naturally heedless and, unless the parents devote much time and energy to training and discipline, they will follow their natural impulses and run wild. This means striking matches, tinkering with firearms, strolling along railroad tracks, hitching rides on the backs of autos or trucks, and playing ball in the street. In other words, fathers and mothers must give as much attention to instructing their offspring on how to be careful as in teaching them proper eating habits, manners and good diction. Mere talk will not be successful; they must enforce their orders. All too often, parents permit their progeny to wander where they will, with little or no supervision. To keep control is not easy but this is the price of parenthood.

City streets are dangerous and motor vehicles account for many disasters. These risks will probably continue so long as youngsters are allowed to cross alone or play on the streets and motorists drive like fury thru residential districts. But the home is not entirely safe and some tots have a genius for getting into trouble even tho they are right under mother's eyes. A great many mishaps occur in the kitchen. Pans of boiling water are tipped, roasting pots and dishes are lifted, or little fingers touch hot stoves. Others fall from porches or windows, slip in bathtubs, or skid on small rugs.

Drownings also take their toll. In boys this catastrophe was outranked only by automobile deaths. Altho most of these mishaps are encountered while swimming, wading, or boating, some fall into the water while playing on docks, bridges, rails, rock ledges, or overhanging trees. If youngsters are taught how to swim, as well as to be careful, many of these fatalities can be prevented.

Bicycle riding is an excellent form of exercise that is enjoyed by most children and many grownups. But certain precautions must be taken or the pastime cannot be considered safe. In 1941, 900 deaths from this cause was recorded. The majority collided with automobiles; others fell from the bike or ran into curbs, trees, or street cars.

During the war the number of such casualties was reduced markedly because of the shortage of wheels and the decreased motor traffic. Now that both forms of vehicles are more plentiful we may expect the rate to rise unless education in safety can be made effective. The bike should be kept in good repair and the rider must obey traffic signals and stay off the main highways. Night riding ought to be prohibited. Every motorist knows how difficult it is to see a cyclist after dark even tho the lights and reflectors are part of the equipment.

Of course I liked being their idol, but it was a little embarrassing sitting on top of the desk with my legs crossed while they burned incense in my lap . . .

The offices on a women's magazine are a little different. The typewriters there all have rear-vision mirrors so the reporters can see who's talking behind their backs . . .

And what typewriters they have! I sat down at one and pressed a key I didn't recognize and a hand came out and plucked my eyebrows . . .

And the women reporters always write out all their notes in eyebrow pencil . . . I suggested printing the whole magazine in eyebrow pencil and callingi t "wink." (They didn't think it was very humorous either.)

But being editor of a women's magazine, you really get around. I covered a lot of social events, new books, plays . . . And I interviewed Gypsy Rose Lee. It was the first time she'd been covered in years . . .

But it was wonderful being the only man in a woman's world. After three hours, I was out of this world . . . And after I was there a half a day I really charmed the assistant editor. She told me I was her pin-up boy . . . But what a place to put the pin. I haven't been able to sit down since.

WEIGHTING THE DYNAMITE

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.—Attorney General Tom Clark was listening to a barrage of criticism from Republican Senators during the hearing on the Kansas City vote scandals—particularly criticism from the junior GOP Senator from Missouri, James Kem. Specifically, Kem accused the Attorney General of whitewashing Democrats.

"Whitewashing!" snapped Clark. "Was it whitewashing when I prosecuted the Democratic Congressman from Massachusetts, Mayor Curley, and convicted him?

"And was it whitewashing when I prosecuted Congressman May of Kentucky, another Democrat?" continued Clark. "And was it whitewashing when I prosecuted an assistant to President Roosevelt for incometax evasion? Is that what you call whitewashing Democrats?"

Irish Headaches

It is sometimes said among diplomats that relations between Ireland and the USA are so salubrious that the only job of the American Minister to Ireland is to attend the Dublin horse show and help friends get sweepstakes tickets. This, of course, is a slight exaggeration.

But the other day, delightful Mrs. George Garret, wife of the newly appointed Minister to Ireland, was complaining to a friend about the headaches involved in becoming hostess of the American legation in Dublin.

"You know," she said, "few people realize how much work I'll have in Dublin. And my biggest headache is keeping track of all my friends who want tickets on the Irish sweepstakes. I've got a list this long . . .

"Certainly, darling, I'll be glad to add your name," continued Mrs. Garret. "I'll put you at the top of the list."

Secret Housing Squabbles

Without benefit of much publicity, Congressional conferences have been taking place which affect housing for several million veterans, and the rents paid by several million others — both vets and non-vets.

Part of these talks have been held secretly inside the joint House-Senate Conference Committee, of which two veterans with opposite points of view are members. One is Senator Bill Knowland of California, who has worked for veterans' housing. The other is Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin, who sides with the real-estate lobby against veterans' housing. Both are Republicans.

Before the housing bill got to secret conference, however, another Senator who is not a veteran had dealt it a body blow on the Senate floor. He is affable Senator Douglas Buck of Delaware, who married a daughter of the millionaire duPonts, and who made the amazing proposal to substitute the House housing bill for the Senate bill — except for the Senate provision to raise rents 15 per cent. (The House bill contained no housing controls in favor of veterans.)

Several Senators who had been closely following the housing debate immediately protested, among them Flanders of Vermont, a Republican, and Sparkman of Alabama, Democrat. They pointed out that the Senate Banking Committee had not even considered ending housing controls. Nevertheless, the Buck proposal was passed. This meant the end of housing controls in favor of veterans.

At this point, war vet Knowland of California tried to undo the work of his non-vet Republican colleague from Delaware. He offered an amendment that housing controls be continued until December with the Office of Housing Expediter also continued.

Behind this move is the fact that at present the Housing Expediter can hold up materials for unnecessary building and allocate them to veterans' housing. About two billions of commercial construction was diverted to home construction as a result of these controls last year. Knowland wanted to continue this preference for veterans. And the Senate voted to support him.

However, when the housing bill went from the Senate floor to the secret House-Senate conference, some strange things happened.

In the secrecy of committee, Rep. Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, long close to the big real-estate interests, knocked out most of the work of his fellow Republican from California.

At the first meeting of the conference, Wolcott paused significantly as he came to the Knowland amendment continuing housing controls. He turned inquiringly to Senator Buck as if to ask: "Do you really want to hold on to this?"

The duPont son-in-law did not reply. But Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin volunteered that the Republican Senators didn't want it. Knowland was not a member of the committee, so could not be present to defend his amendment. And his GOP colleague from the neighboring state of Washington, Harry Cain, did not support him.

Discussion has seesawed back and forth for some days since, with Democrats Sparkman of Alabama and Taylor of Idaho trying to put housing controls back into the bill.

Wolcott Keeps Word

Back in February, Rep. Wolcott spoke in Chicago before the National Association of Home Builders, one of the most effective of the real-estate lobbies. Said he: "I know that you feel at liberty now, as you perhaps never have before, to sit down with the members of the House and Senate Banking and Currency Committees. I know that we can be mutually helpful.

"It is my purpose to introduce legislation within the next week which will repeal, with two minor exceptions, the Veterans Emergency Housing Act of 1946 . . ."

Significantly, the Congressman added: "I know that you appreciate the seriousness of the problem, how necessary it is that we proceed cautiously."

It looks as if the Congressman from Michigan has now kept his word.

Capital Chaff

If the Taft-Hartley Bill becomes law, unions won't be able to hire radio commentators any more, though the National Association of Manufacturers can. The law prohibits use of union funds for political purposes. Almost anything commentators say can be called "political." . . . Boss of the Bronx Ed Flynn may name the next Ambassador to Uruguay . . . . Though the war is long over, France, England and Russia are still hoarding hundreds of thousands of German prisoners of war . . . Iowa's Republican Congressman, Karl Le Compte, Chairman of a House Election Subcommittee, is hushing up a vote scandal in an Atlanta Congressional District where Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin was knocked out of her Congressional seat although she got most of the votes. Ku Kluxers and Columbians burned down 30 acres of Mrs. Mankin's farmland recently because of her vigorous opposition to the hooded order . . . . Meanwhile GOP Congressional committees probe West Virginia and Maryland, but shun Georgia.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

The Far East

WHILE attention is being focused on the European situation, Soviet Russia is making marked advances in the Far East. Chinese Communists, a direct arm of the Soviet international armed forces, retreated from their war capital at Yenan and entered upon a military career in Manchuria.

Manchuria is bounded on the North by Soviet Russia. On the West, it touches upon Mongolia much of which since 1921 has been under the indirect control of Soviet Russia through the Mongolian Socialist Soviet Republic. On the East, Manchuria is bounded by Korea, the northern half of which is held by Soviet Russia; the southern half by the United States.

At the Cairo Conference, the United States and Great Britain agreed with China that Manchuria was to be returned to China after it was taken from Japan. The exact words were:

"It is their purpose that Japan shall be stripped of all the islands in the Pacific . . . and that all the territories that Japan has stolen from the Chinese, such as Manchuria . . . shall be restored to the Republic of China."

The Far Eastern terms of the Yalta Conference were kept secret but actually Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill agreed that Soviet Russia was to become the successor to Japan's economic and political advantages prior to September 19, 1931. If some State Department offilcial challenges such wording, I shall be glad to show what those advantages were on that date and what Soviet Russia's advantages are today. They happen to coincide. The fact bespeaks a secret agreement.

Furthermore, I note in a private letter which I received from China this reference:

"It is to be hoped that, although the Yalta Agreement mentioned the 'preeminent interests of the Soviet Union . . .'"

Now that phrase "preeminent interests" is something new. The Japanese held that they had special interests in Manchuria because of propinquity and the United States once recognized Japan's paramount interests in the Lansing-Ishii Agreement which did not long hold. In fact, the American policy in Manchuria since 1899 was generally based upon the John Hay "Open Door Policy" which insisted that all countries had the same rights in Manchuria that any country enjoyed. Japan fought three wars over this question; the Sino-Japanese War in 1894; the Russo-Japanese War of 1904, and the recent war with China which lasted from 1931 to 1945.

If all this blood was shed to deny to Japan "preeminent interests," why were they granted to Soviet Russia? And who had the right to grant them? As a matter of fact, the United States and Great Britain are obligated by the Nine Power Treaty signed in Washington in 1921 to deny "preeminent interests." Had Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Churchill the legal right at Yalta to break a treaty and to vitiate the obligations of their countries?

Be that as it may, they did it. They handed to Stalin precisely what they took from Japan.

General Marshall was sent to China to effect a peace between Chiang Kai-Shek and the Communists. Had he succeeded, Soviet Russia would by now be as completely in the saddle in China as it is in Hungary. Mercifully he failed in his mission with the result that the Chinese Communists are fighting for Manchuria but they are not in control in Nanking. China still has some chance. It has a chance only, however, as long as the Civil War continues. Peace in China would mean the appeasement of Soviet Russia and the acceptance of a Communist regime.

The Soviet imperialist movement in Asia parallels the Soviet imperial movement in Europe. Both utilize native forces to do the Russian business. Both prevent the liquidation of the war and keep cast areas in turmoil. Both are fanatically managed by members of the Third International who are ideologically concerned with the establishment of One World—a Soviet World—a Bolshevik world.

Both regard the United States as their principal enemy, the stumbling block to their goal. Those who believe that they can employ the Truman Doctrine in parts of Europe but not of Asia, fail to understand the horrible future that Ameican policy faces in both areas. To the Russians, the problem is one. To us, it must be one.

Effect Of President's Action On Tax, Labor Bills Studied

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 11 — Just what effect will President Truman's action on the tax reduction and labor regulation bills have on his political future?

This question is uppermost in conversation here as official Washington continues to guess whether one or both measures will be vetoed. There are, to be sure, separate political effects likely to flow from action on each measure, as follows:

1. Effect of signing of Labor bill: upsurge of sentiment on the conservative side and particularly a gain among independent voters sending the popularity curve of President Truman above any previous levels this year. Mr. Truman could argue, either in letting the bill become law or by signing it, that apparently the measure has substantial support within both parties and he could note that a majority of the Democrats of the House voted for the measure when it came back from the joint conference committee.

2. Effect of a veto of Labor bill: Enthusiastic support from labor-union leaders and a promise of considerable help in the 1948 presidential campaign when presumably Mr. Truman will be a candidate to succeed himself; loss of certain indepedent voters and also a trend on the part of conservative Democratic voters to look to the Republican Party in 1948.

3. Effect of signing of the Tax bill or letting it become law without signature will be the same: An increase in popularity for the president with taxpayers, large and small. His argument could be that Congress has primary responsibility for the raising of revenue and for imposing tax rates. Comparatively little or no loss of votes is entailed by presidential approval of the tax bill.

4. Effect of a veto of the Tax bill: Loss of many independent votes and loss also of many conservatives in the Democratic Party who will feel that the president has committed himself to a resumption of New Deal spending and high budgets. An issue will be made of the inflationary significance of the president's attitude. No corresponding gain among radicals or independents is foreseen to offset the loss of votes and disappointment in both the Republican and Democratic parties over the failure of the Tax bill to become law. For in this there are not enough votes to override a veto. Hence, unlike the case of the Labor bill, a presidential veto will mean the killing of tax-reduction legislation this year.

To summarize: Mr. Truman will lose considerable political support by vetoing both the labor and tax-reduction bills. His loss will not be as much if he signs the Tax bill and vetoes the Labor bill because the net effect would be that both bills would, in the end, become law and the public would have the benefits of both.

The impression in the last few days is that a veto of the Tax bill is certain and that while there are advisers who want the President to sign the Labor bill he will, in the final analysis, realize that the measure is going to become law anyway, no matter what he does. He is expected to retain labor-union support by a veto.

There are other political consequences to the nation, however, which will arise from a presidential veto of both labor and tax-reduction bills. The Republican majority will go to the country with the charge that Mr. Truman has adopted the unsound fiscal policies of the New Deal with more spending and more government extravagance and that the only way to a sound fiscal position is to elect a Republican president. Unfortunately for Mr. Truman, while he may argue that any surplus should be credited to debt reduction, neither he nor his associates have helped to reduce the national budget this year. The Republicans, on the other hand, have made a sizable cut in the budget. If the surplus attributable to this is used wholly for debt reduction, it will not inure to Mr. Truman's political advantage but to the Republicans. Likewise if it had not been for the stimulating spur of tax reduction as an objective there would have been little budget-cutting at this session of Congress.

The most important political consequence of a veto of the Tax bill will be a declaration of war by the Republicans on President Truman for refusing to accept majority will on tax measures.

Some Unions Are Ganging Up On Little Business In USA

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Here's what little business is up against. It tells why Mr. Truman had better not veto that labor bill.

In Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the Meat Cutters Local 170 put the heat on the Pfaff food store to sign as a closed shop. Pfaff's employees did not want to join. But, if Pfaff signed, they would be forced to join or he would have to fire them.

Pfaff refused. Then the Meat Cutters Local ganged up on the Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers Locals to give Pfaff "the business" or as it is sometimes called, "the works." They put a picket line around the store. This, they claimed, was under the "sacred right of free speech" to advertise that a labor dispute existed. None, in fact, did exist as none of Pfaff's employees was in the union.

The next turn of the thumbscrews was to blockade Pfaff from getting merchandise. This required that the food wholesalers and meat packers join the conspiracy. Big Business was black-jacked to gang up with Big Unions to ruin a little business.

Now, I will let Judge Thompson have the floor. The Judge said:

"We have the spectacle of two powerful labor unions (Meat Cutters and Truckers), in alliance with many large business concerns, combining to ruin a small shopkeeper whose only fault was that he refused to sign a closed shop contract at the dictation of one of the unions (Meat Cutters), with which neither he nor his employees had any connection. . . . It matters little whether this be called a combination in restraint of trade, a criminal conspiracy, or a secondary boycott. Under any view of the matter it is morally and legally wrong. . . . It seems unthinkable that this form of economic strangulation could be approved by any court."

Well-said, Judge, but you are wrong. You are too kind to some courts I've read about.

However, it was unthinkable to Judge Thompson. He issued a permanent injunction against the picket line. He said the cry of free speech was a "phoney" to sprinkle perfume on a conspiracy.

Such is the "alliance" that threatens to put little business in the squeeze. The giants of business and of labor may make their industry-wide bargains and survive. But little business finds the going tough when the giants gang up. And, as oaks grow only from acorns, we have got to make sure that little business men have their chance to sprout, and put forth the budding leaves of hope. Ex-G.I.'s, please take note if you plan to go into business.

It is probable that some of the wholesalers and packers who entered the conspiracy did so unwillingly. They were under the gun, too. If they refused, they could expect trouble at their other outlets. So, they may have decided it was wiser to throw Pfaff to the wolves to save their other retailers.

On the other hand, if the whole salers had retail outlets of their own, or otherwise wanted to liquidate Pfaff as a competitor, as the elder Rockefeller ganged up with the railroads in the early days of Standard Oil, this was a smooth way to do it.

Anyhow, that sword will hang over little business until national and state governments deal effectively with this menace. What little business faces today is a situation similar to those that aroused Congress to pass the Sherman Anti-Trust Act in 1890 and the Clayton Act in 1914. It requires similar treatment.

In closing, my compliments to a brave judge!

Keep Discovering!

There is no more fascinating study than that of discovery. The early history of a country is the most absorbing. A child's life should be its happiest period for it is one of constant discovery. Each new discovery a thrill.

We have continual progress in the world for men and women give their lives to this business of discovery. The scientist, the researcher, the explorer, and the experimenter, all are benefactors. Material rewards mean little to such for they are constantly being repaid through the satisfaction of each new discovery.

The collector's greatest joy lies in the discovery. Then he goes on to something else.

The naturalist counts no cost too great in order to discover some new phase of his objective. For hours and days he will seek out the habits of a bird or animal. He will take note of every creation in nature and make note of it. New revelations spring to his notice on every hand. There are no limits to his perseverance. W. H. Hudson, commenting upon the return of the Chiffchaff, allows his mind to speculate upon the greatest of all problems—life and death.

Watching those small red squirrels, at my summer island retreat in Nova Scotia, I learned more than to look upon them as just squirrels. I saw them with habits, creatures of instincts. I scented many a human trait in them. I discovered many things about them that I have never read or heard about. For example, one day I noted with my field glasses that one of them was cleaning the pine pitch from his face, by wiping it with dry leaves! He might have been a "she," however—beauty particular!

There isn't a day that dawns that cannot be a discovery day. I am constantly discovering new facts and interesting items in the thousands of books in my library. But the best of all discoveries is to discover something good in people—and in ourselves.

If You Want to Win Somebody, Start Being Winning Yourself

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Over and over again, the same plaintive question is voiced in letters from girls and young women.

Sometimes it's asked in connection with boys or young men they've only just met but for whom they fell so promptly and so hard that they're sure all their future happiness depends on having these glamorous gentlemen fall for them in return. So "How can I win him?" they beg to know.

Or perhaps it's about a boy friend whose attentions seem to be straying. He doesn't come around as often as he used to. Or he hasn't telephoned for a week. Or the rumor has reached the girl's ears that he's been seen at the movies with some other girl. Then the question goes: "How can I win him back?"

There is, for instance, the 18-year-old girl who writes me that before she began having dates with her current heart throb, he was taking another girl out. This girl went away for awhile, leaving the field clear, but she came back recently and "Now," my correspondent tells me, "he doesn't phone any more. If there's a way I can win him back, I would like to know it."

And another girl, who says she heard from a friend that the boy she admires likes her also, complains that, in spite of this testimony, when the boy is with her he doesn't show any feeling of this kind very clearly.

"After he leaves me," she writes, "he sometimes goes out with another girl. I would be very grateful if you would tell me some helpful hints on how to win this boy."

Now this matter of "winning" a boy is very much like catching a fish. There is a great element of chance, or luck, or whatever you want to call it about the thing. You may be successful and you may not.

Sometimes a man after a fish—or a maid after a man—may devote a great deal of time and thought to figuring out a sure-fire method of luring and landing it—or him. But there is no possible way of predicting what's going to come of his method. Good fortune may be on his side and it may just happen that the fish is easy prey and he reels him in with no trouble at all. But there's just as much likelihood that he may never get a single bite, or, after a few tentative nibbles, the fish may depart, to sample somebody else's bait.

Worst of all, of course, is the experience of getting the fish hooked, hauled all the way out of the water and right up to the boat, when through some inexplicable occurrence, he wriggles off the hook, drops back into the water with the other fish, and swims merrily off.

All of which leads up to the fact that I can't give the writers of the two letters quoted, or anybody else, any fool-proof rules or even any very "helpful hints" for winning a specific young man.

I can say this though, with a great deal of certainty. The person you want to work on chiefly, when you're aiming at acquiring "winning" ways, is not half so much the lad you've got your eye on, as it is yourself. You've got to make yourself attractive, in looks, personality and character, if you want to attract others to you. You've got to be scrupulously particular about your personal appearance. You've got to be healthy and full of pep. You've got to be good at dancing and skating and other things that enable you to fit easily into any social group in which you find yourself.

And most of all, you've got to cultivate a sweet disposition, an unselfish nature, and a genuine interest in other people. All of these things together will give you the sparkling eyes, the alert, eager look, the lovely expression on your face that, more than anything else, will make any boy who catches sight of you think to himself: "That's the girl for me—she's a winner!"

So if you want to win somebody, start being winning yourself!

And another girl, who says she heard from a friend that the boy she admires likes her also, complains that, in spite of this testimony, when the boy is with her he doesn't show any feeling of this kind very clearly.

"After he leaves me," she writes, "he sometimes goes out with another girl. I would be very grateful if you would tell me some helpful hints on how to win this boy."

Now this matter of "winning" a boy is very much like catching a fish. There is a great element of chance, or luck, or whatever you want to call it about the thing. You may be successful and you may not.

Sometimes a man after a fish—or a maid after a man—may devote a great deal of time and thought to figuring out a sure-fire method of luring and landing it—or him. But there is no possible way of predicting what's going to come of his method. Good fortune may be on his side and it may just happen that the fish is easy prey and he reels him in with no trouble at all. But there's just as much likelihood that he may never get a single bite, or, after a few tentative nibbles, the fish may depart, to sample somebody else's bait.

Wofst of all, of course, is the experience of getting the fish hooked, hauled all the way out of the water and right up to the boat, when through some inexplicable occurrence, he wriggles off the hook, drops back into the water with the other fish, and swims merrily off.

All of which leads up to the fact that I can't give the writers of the two letters quoted, or anybody else, any fool-proof rules or even any very "helpful hints" for winning a specific young man.

I can say this though, with a great deal of certainty. The person you want to work on chiefly, when you're aiming at acquiring "winning" ways, is not half so much the lad you've got your eye on, as it is yourself. You've got to make yourself attractive, in looks, personality and character, if you want to attract others to you. You've got to be scrupulously particular about your personal appearance. You've got to be healthy and full of pep. You've got to be good at dancing and skating and other things that enable you to fit easily into any social group in which you find yourself.

And most of all, you've got to cultivate a sweet disposition, an unselfish nature, and a genuine interest in other people. All of these things together will give you the sparkling eyes, the alert, eager look, the lovely expression on your face that, more than anything else, will make any boy who catches sight of you think to himself: "That's the girl for me—she's a winner!"

So if you want to win somebody, start being winning yourself!

TWO CURE ALLS

I've shopped aound plenty in this world.

Shopped for what?

All the usual things, all the gadgets that we grown folk use as toys. All the notions that we chaw as so much candy. All the fool things that we seek to kill our time and waste ourselves. And then—I've shopped for something more. For something that's taken plenty of your time and hope and fear and tears as well, pardner. I've shopped for a cure to all the pain and fear and confusion among us folks. And I've shopped for the makings of hope.

Sixty four years of shopping around in this changing world trying to make it click. And out of all that time . . . out of the power and wealth and wonder that I've seen . . . out of the pain and poverty and heartbreak that I've known . . . out of the loneliness . . . out of the fear, I've found just two cure-alls that fit our human life.

And one is love. There are endless ways of getting on with your neighbors . . . endless tricks and maneuvers from kicking their shins to tickling their vanity. But there's only one thing that will reach any man anywhere in the place where he lives—and that's love.

Hate and malice, envy and shrewdness and ruthless power—they're all old stuff. There's just one thing that works with the human heart, and that's love. And even if it seems to be wasted or betrayed, you're the richer for having given it, and the safer for the use of it.

But folks aren't everything. Wipe out all the folks in the world and you'd still have to tangle with your own loneliness and cussedness and terrible haunting fear. Well, I've found the answer to that too. And the answer to that is faith. Faith in the God Who made you. Faith He won't let you down.

No, I'm not trying to tell you what that God is like. Maybe, to you, He's a person. Maybe a Force. Or maybe an ingrowing Presence who'll answer whenever you call, humbly and honestly, out of your deep need.

So after all my shopping I've found just two things that pay. Sure, I've tried all the others, and some of them weren't so nice. But on these two things you can bank your last effort and hope. . . . there isn't a problem on earth where love and faith won't work.

Wanda Wageley, Former Keyser Girl, Is Wed

Also attending were Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Seiver, uncle and aunt of the bride, former residents of Keyser, who are now living in Delray Beach, Florida.

The couple will reside at Fayetteville, Fort Bragg, where Capt. Forbes is stationed.

Prospect Of More Rain Worsens Flood Outlook

ST. LOUIS, June 11 (AP) — The prospect of additional rain in the Missouri Rier watershed worsened the outlook along the flooding river in Central Missouri today, but the flood picture improved gradually in Northeastern Missouri and Northern Illinois as the Mississippi continued to fall in that ravaged area.

Army engineers, government agencies and the Red Cross estimated the two rivers already had flooded a million acres in the two states, adding 5,700 homeless to the total of 18,500 driven from their homes by other floods in Iowa and Nebraska.

Further inundation was predicted as the Missouri and Mississippi crests moved toward the confluence of the two rivers about 20 miles north of here.

Lead poisoning in cattle is often caused by not disposing of old paint buckets and cans, or allowing the cattle to have access to recently painted structures.

Regulations Provide For Locking Schools

Standing regulations of the Board of Education provide for all doors and windows of public schools to be consistently locked daily, Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, said last night after Police Commissioner William V. Keegan appealed to school principals and custodians to co-operate with the Police Department by making certain that all doors and windows are locked each night.

In all probability, Kopp said someone is slipping up on the job.

Keegan said police found the main entrance at Allegany High School and a rear entrance at Gephart School unlocked early yesterday morning.

He added that the department does not have enough men to permit assigning of an officer to each school.

"It's not surprising that five or six schools have been robbed in recent months," said Keegan, "When scarcely a week passes without officers reporting to me that they have found doors and windows of the buildings unlocked."

Tired, "All-In"—Listless Feeling Brought To Halt

As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Frostburg State Seeks Houses For Faculty Members

Committee Is Named To Find Quarters

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, June 11.—Miss Lillian C. Compton, president of Frostburg State Teachers' College, made a suggestion at the Commencement exercises last week that persons interested in the welfare of the college, could render the institution a great service by aiding in finding housing facilities, either residences or apartments, for the new faculty members who will be here for the opening of the college in September.

The suggestion of Miss Compton was brought to the attention of the Frostburg Rotary Club Monday evening and also to the attention of Frostburg Lodge, No. 470, B. P. O. Elks Tuesday evening.

The committee appointed by the Mayor and City Commissioners to aid Frostburg State Teachers' College, is also on the lookout for living quarters for new members of the college . Persons knowing of homes or apartments to be vacated at any time, may render the college and the community a service by reporting such vacancies to Michael J. Byrnes, chairman of the Citizens committee, to any member of the Frostburg Elks, the Frostburg Rotary Club, or to the college office, phone number 296—Frostburg.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Here's to the Women-Folk!

There's a line at the heading of the Woman's Column in my paper that reads:

"Women through the years have stood Keepers of the flame . . ."

Pretty easy to see what it means; whether it's the flame on the hearth, or the candle in the window, or the feeling of warmth that surrounds a home.

It's the women who are guardians of the things we cherish about homelife—who are tolerant of ashes on the rug; the rings a glass of beer can leave on tables; or the comfortable but too-worn chair that we can't bear to throw away.

From where I sit, those little satisfactions become more and more important in this world of strife and change. Smoke rings curling from a mellow pipe; a glass of beer; a comfortable chair before the fire. And I'd like to salute the housewives — "keepers of the flame" — whose tolerance and understanding helps preserve them!

Joe Marsh

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Here's to the Women-Folk!

There's a line at the heading of the Woman's Column in my paper that reads:

"Women through the years have stood Keepers of the flame . . ."

Pretty easy to see what it means; whether it's the flame on the hearth, or the candle in the window, or the feeling of warmth that surrounds a home.

It's the women who are guardians of the things we cherish about homelife—who are tolerant of ashes on the rug; the rings a glass of beer can leave on tables; or the comfortable but too-worn chair that we can't bear to throw away.

From where I sit, those little satisfactions become more and more important in this world of strife and change. Smoke rings curling from a mellow pipe; a glass of beer; a comfortable chair before the fire. And I'd like to salute the housewives — "keepers of the flame" — whose tolerance and understanding helps preserve them!

Ordinance No. 1815

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND, ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE TO REGULATE THE EMISSION OF DENSE SMOKE FROM INDUSTRIAL PLANTS, HEATING PLANTS, OPEN FIRES, DOMESTIC FIRES AND STEAM LOCOMOTIVES WITHIN THE LIMITS OF THE CITY OF CUMBERLAND."

SECTION 1. BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, That there shall be appointed by the Mayor, subject to the approval of the City Council, a Smoke Abatement Engineer who shall be a member of, or eligible to become a member of, The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and who shall be qualified by technical training and experience in the theory and practice of construction and operation of furnaces and combustion devices and in the theory and practice of smoke abatement, and who shall be further qualified by broad experience for conferring with, soliciting the cooperation of, and stimulating the efforts of, all sections of the community of Cumberland in the reduction of Smoke. The Mayor may appoint such inspectors, clerks and other assistants as may be necessary and as approved by the said City Council who, together with the Smoke Abatement Engineer, shall receive such compensation as may be fixed by the Mayor and City Council. All appointments made under the provisions of this section shall be subject to all the laws, rules and regulations governing the classified city service. The duties of the Smoke Abatement Engineer shall include the preparation and execution of educational and cooperative plans and undertakings for securing the compliance of the public of Cumberland in the reduction of the emission of smoke, the performance of such examinations, inspections and issuance of permits, as are instituted by the Advisory and Appeal Board to insure that new or remodeled fuel and/or material burning installations are suited for the prevention of the emission of smoke to the prescribed degree, and the inauguration of prosecutions for non-compliance with the provisions of this ordinance.

The Smoke Abatement Engineer shall make an annual report of the work of his office to the Mayor and City Council.

SECTION 2. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That there shall be appointed by the Mayor, with the approval of the City Council, an Advisory and Appeal Board consisting of three persons whose terms of office shall be for periods of three years, except that for the initially appointed Board, one member shall be appointed for one year, one for two years and one for three years. The members of this Board shall receive no compensation for their services. One member shall be chosen who shall represent business and administrative experience, one who shall have had broad engineering experience in the design and operation of fuel and/or material burning installations, and one shall be chosen who shall preferably have no connection with the ownership or design of fuel burning plants but who in his professional attainments and experience shall have exhibited intellectual competence and judicial capacity.

The Advisory and Appeal Board shall be an agency for adjudicating the various technical and economic problems that occur in the formulation of the type and kind of supervisory control to be exercised by the Smoke Abatement Engineer over new and remodeled installations of combustion equipment insofar as the emission of smoke to the atmosphere is concerned. The Board shall determine after investigation and consultation, the methods of examination and inspection and the factors to be considered to insure that new or remodeled fuel and/or material burning installations will be suited for the prevention of the emission of smoke to the degree prescribed in the ordinance, but the Board shall have no authority to inquire regarding the manufacturing processes of metallurgical, chemical, oil refining processes, ceramic or other commodity manufacturing industries involving the combustion of fuel and/or material, beyond the requiring of evidence that the installation will be suited in the prevention of the emission of smoke to the degree prescribed in this ordinance.

SECTION 3. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That the emission of smoke within the City from the smoke stack of any roller, derrick, pile driver, tar kettle or other similar machine or contrivance, or from any open fire, or from the smoke stack or chimney of any building, roundhouse or premises, except for a period of or periods aggregating nine minutes or less in any one hour of a density of No. 2 smoke as defined by the Ringleman Chart, or six minutes or less of a density in excess of No. 2 smoke as defined by the Ringleman Chart in any one hour at a time when the firebox is being cleaned out or a new fire being built therein, or from the stack of any locomotive smoke of a density in excess of No. 2 smoke as defined by the Ringleman Chart for a period or periods aggregating one minute in any four minutes at a time when the firebox of said locomotive is being cleaned or a new fire built therein, or for a period in excess of eight minutes or more in any period of thirty minutes after said locomotive is in or ready for service, is prohibited and is hereby declared to be a nuisance and may be summarily abated by the Smoke Abatement Engineer. Such abatement may be in addition to the fine hereinafter provided. For the purpose of grading the density of smoke, the Ringleman Chart as now published and used by the United States Bureau of Mines, which is hereby made a part of this sub-title by reference, shall be the standard. Smoke shall be considered dense when it is equal to or of greater density than No. 2 of said chart. Any person or persons, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall upon conviction be fined as hereinafter provided, and each violation of this section shall constitute a separate offense for each and every day on which such violation shall continue. All persons participating in any such violation, either as owners, proprietors, lessees, agents, tenants, managers, superintendents, engineers, firemen or janitors, or otherwise, shall severally be liable therefor and subject to the penalties fixed by this ordinance.

SECTION 4. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That no person, firm or corporation, shall cause, suffer or allow to be discharged into the atmosphere, ashes, cinders, dust, soot or fly ash from chimneys, flues and smoke stacks of any building, roundhouse or premises where the quantity of solids emitted exceeds 0.75 grains per cubic foot of flue gas at a stack temperature of 500 degrees Fahrenheit, of which amount not to exceed 0.2 of a grain per cubic foot shall be of such size as to be retained on a 325 mesh U.S. Standard sieve. These conditions are to be conformed to when the percentage of excess air in the stack does not exceed fifty per cent at full load. The foregoing requirements shall be measured by the methods outlined in the Tentative Test Code for dust separating apparatus of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, which is hereby made a part of this ordinance by reference, a copy of which shall remain on file in the office of the Smoke Abatement Engineer.

Any person or persons, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall upon conviction be fined as hereinafter provided, and each violation of this section shall constitute a separate offense for each and every day on which such violation shall continue. All persons participating in any such violation, either as owners, proprietors, lessees, agents, tenants, managers, superintendents, engineers, firemen or janitors, or otherwise, shall severally be liable therefor and subject to the penalties fixed in this ordinance.

SECTION 5. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That it shall be unlawful on or after the first day of January, 1948, for any person, firm or corporation to operate, or cause, or suffer, or allow to be operated at any place in Cumberland, any steam locomotive fired by bituminous coal unless the same is equipped with overfire jets or some other smoke consuming device conforming in efficiency of operation to a degree equal to, or greater than, the overfire jets referred to in this section. Any person or persons in charge of locomotives equipped with a smoke consuming device shall be required to use and operate said device during the whole of any time or period when smoke emission is equal to, or of greater density, than No. 2 of the Ringleman Chart, whether locomotive is operating, standing or ready for operation within the limits of the City of Cumberland.

SECTION 6. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That no new fuel burning plants nor reconstruction, nor remodeling of any existing fuel burning plants for producing power and heat, or either of them, nor refuse burning equipment, nor any chimney or furnace connected with such fuel or refuse burning equipment, shall be installed, erected, reconstructed or remodeled in the City of Cumberland until plans and specifications of the same have been filed by the owner, contractor, installer or other person in the office of and approved by the Smoke Abatement Engineer as being so designed that same can be managed and operated to conform to the provisions of this ordinance and prevent air pollution, and a permit issued by him for such installation, erection, reconstruction or remodeling. Plans and specifications so filed with the said engineer shall show the type of installation, the amount of work and the amount of heating to be done by such fuel or refuse burning plant, and all appurtenances thereto, including all provisions made for the purpose of securing complete combustion of the fuel or refuse to be used and the manner in which it is to be burned for the purpose of preventing air pollution. Said plans and specifications shall also contain a statement of the rate of burning and kind of fuel or refuse proposed to be used and the manner in which it is to be burned and shall also show that the room or premises in which fuel or refuse burning plants shall be located is provided with doors, windows, airshafts, fans or other means of ventilation sufficient to prevent the temperature of such room, basement or other portion of building wherein such fuel or refuse burning apparatus is to be used, from rising to a point higher than 120 degrees Fahrenheit; and sufficient also to provide that the atmosphere of any such room, basement or other portion of the building wherein such fuel or refuse burning apparatus may be located may be changed at least every ten minutes. Such plans shall further show the dimensions of such room in which such fuel or refuse burning apparatus is to be located, the location and dimensions of all chimneys and smoke stacks used in connection with or as a part of said fuel or refuse burning plant. Upon the inspection and approval of said plans and specifications by the Smoke Abatement Engineer and upon the payment of the fees as hereinafter provided, and if such plans and specifications shall show that adequate and approved provisions for the purpose of securing complete combustion of the fuel or refuse to be used and for the purpose of preventing and eliminating smoke, soot, fly ash, dust or noxious acids have been made, a permit for the installation or for the construction, erection, reconstruction or remodeling of such fuel or refuse burning plant shall be issued. As soon as the Smoke Abatement Engineer has issued the permit as above provided, it shall be the duty of the various departments having charge of the inspection of the premises wherein said fuel or refuse burning apparatus is located to cooperate with the said Smoke Abatement Engineer to see that the execution of the work so authorized by said permit shall be done in conformity with the plans and specifications submitted and approved, and with the standards, rules and regulations fixed by the Smoke Abatement Engineer. Any person, firm or corporation who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be subject to the penalties hereinafter provided. If such plans and specifications as described above are not submitted to the Smoke Abatement Engineer for approval previous to the installation of any new fuel burning plant, or the reconstruction or remodeling of any existing fuel burning plant, for producing power, heat, or either of them, or refuse burning plant, or any chimney connected with such fuel or refuse burning plant, the Smoke Abatement Engineer shall be authorized to seal immediately such equipment until the owner, contractor, installer or other person has complied with the provisions of this section.

SECTION 7. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That it shall be unlawful for any person to use any new, reconstructed or remodeled plant, or any plant duly sealed under the provisions of this ordinance, for the production and generation of heat and power, or either of them, or for the burning of refuse, until he shall have first procured a certificate from the Smoke Abatement Engineer certifying that the plant is so constructed that it will do the work required with the type of fuel and equipment used; and that, in the opinion of the Smoke Abatement Engineer, it can consistently be so managed in burning the type of fuel in the manner specified in the permit that no dense smoke shall be emitted from the chimney connected with the furnace or firebox in violation of the provisions of this ordinance; and a notice of the size, type, kind and manner of burning the fuel as specified in the permit has been prominently displayed and permanently attached to said plant. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall be subject to the penalties prescribed in this ordinance. The issuance and delivery by the Smoke Abatement Engineer of any permit or certificate for the construction, reconstruction or remodeling of any plant or chimney connected with a plant shall not be held to exempt any person, firm or corporation to whom any such permit or certificate has been issued and delivered, or who is in possession of any such permit or certificate, from prosecution on account of the emission of dense smoke, fly ash, soot, cinders, dust or noxious acids caused or permitted by any such person, firm or corporation.

7-A. PERMIT FOR ERECTION OF BUILDING PROHIBITED—WHEN. The Building Engineer shall not issue a permit for the erection, construction, reconstruction or alteration of any building or structure wherein the plans for such building or structure show any chimney or smoke stack in connection with such building or structure, until such plans have been submitted to the Smoke Abatement Engineer and the dimensions of such chimney or chimneys approved by him as having sufficient capacity and suitable for the type of equipment and fuel to be used.

7-D. BOILERS OR OTHER HEATING APPARATUS TO BE SEALED—WHEN. After any owner, agent, occupant, manager or lessee of any premises who has been previously notified of three or more violations of this ordinance within any consecutive twelve-month period either before or after its amendment, in respect to the emission of dense smoke, soot, cinders, fly ash, dust or noxious acids, the owner or agent of said premises shall be notified to show cause before the Smoke Abatement Engineer on a day certain, not less than ten days from the date of notice, why the equipment causing such violations should not be sealed. The notice herein provided for may be given by mail directed to the last known address of the party to be notified, or if said party or his whereabouts is unknown, then by posting a notice on or near the premises at which the violations shall have occurred. Upon said date said owner or agent may appear and be heard. Upon such hearing, if the Smoke Abatement Engineer finds that adequate corrective means and methods have not been employed to correct the cause of such conditions, then it shall be his duty to seal said equipment until such time as a permit and certificate as herein provided have been applied for and issued for said plant. The owner or agent may, within ten days of said decision, appeal said finding to the Advisory and Appeal Board, and said appeal shall stay the sealing pending said appeal. In any proceeding under this ordinance, it shall be a good defense, if the person, firm or corporation charged with the unlawful emission of smoke, fly ash, soot, cinders, dust or noxious acids shall show to the satisfaction of the court or jury trying the same that there is no known practicable device, appliance, means or method by application of which to his building, establishment, premises, locomotive or equipment the emission or discharge of the dense smoke, fly ash, soot, cinders, dust or noxious acids complained of in such proceeding could have been prevented. In the general performance of their duties, or for the purpose of obtaining the facts with respect to any such defense, the Smoke Abatement Engineer and the Smoke Inspectors are hereby authorized to enter at all reasonable hours upon and into any buildings, establishments, premises or enclosures in or from which they have reason to believe that the provisions of this ordinance are being violated, and to inspect or examine such building, establishments, premises or enclosures; and the Smoke Abatement Engineer and the Smoke Inspectors shall collect and preserve evidence of all facts as to any violations of this ordinance. Upon written complaint to the Smoke Abatement Engineer by the owner or operator of any fuel burning plant described in this ordinance against any decision or ruling or order of the Smoke Abatement Engineer, setting forth that it is impossible in the operation of said apparatus either by alteration, repair or addition thereto, to operate the same in complete compliance with the requirements of this ordinance, and upon filing such complaint with such Smoke Abatement Engineer the Engineer shall thereupon and in any event not later than ten days from the receipt of such written complaint cause the same to be filed with the Advisory and Appeal Board, which shall thereafter set a time and hearing for such complaint and give notice thereof by mail to the parties interested, and after such hearing the Advisory and Appeal Board may vary or modify the application of any of the regulations or provisions of this ordinance relating to said fuel burning plant so that the spirit of this ordinance shall be observed, the public health, welfare and safety secured and substantial justice done. Ordinance No. 1815

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND, ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE TO REGULATE THE EMISSION OF DENSE SMOKE FROM INDUSTRIAL PLANTS, HEATING PLANTS, OPEN FIRES, DOMESTIC FIRES AND STEAM LOCOMOTIVES WITHIN THE LIMITS OF THE CITY OF CUMBERLAND."

SECTION 1. BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, That there shall be appointed by the Mayor, subject to the approval of the City Council, a Smoke Abatement Engineer who shall be a member of, or eligible to become a member of, The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and who shall be qualified by technical training and experience in the theory and practice of construction and operation of furnaces and combustion devices and in the theory and practice of smoke abatement, and who shall be further qualified by broad experience for conferring with, soliciting the cooperation of, and stimulating the efforts of, all sections of the community of Cumberland in the reduction of Smoke. The Mayor may appoint such inspectors, clerks and other assistants as may be necessary and as approved by the said City Council who, together with the Smoke Abatement Engineer, shall receive such compensation as may be fixed by the Mayor and City Council. All appointments made under the provisions of this section shall be subject to all the laws, rules and regulations governing the classified city service. The duties of the Smoke Abatement Engineer shall include the preparation and execution of educational and cooperative plans and undertakings for securing the compliance of the public of Cumberland in the reduction of the emission of smoke, the performance of such examinations, inspections and issuance of permits, as are instituted by the Advisory and Appeal Board to insure that new or remodeled fuel and/or material burning installations are suited for the prevention of the emission of smoke to the prescribed degree, and the inauguration of prosecutions for non-compliance with the provisions of this ordinance.

The Smoke Abatement Engineer shall make an annual report of the work of his office to the Mayor and City Council.

SECTION 2. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That there shall be appointed by the Mayor, with the approval of the City Council, an Advisory and Appeal Board consisting of three persons whose terms of office shall be for periods of three years, except that for the initially appointed Board, one member shall be appointed for one year, one for two years and one for three years. The members of this Board shall receive no compensation for their services. One member shall be chosen who shall represent business and administrative experience, one who shall have had broad engineering experience in the design and operation of fuel and/or material burning installations, and one shall be chosen who shall preferably have no connection with the ownership or design of fuel burning plants but who in his professional attainments and experience shall have exhibited intellectual competence and judicial capacity.

The Advisory and Appeal Board shall be an agency for adjudicating the various technical and economic problems that occur in the formulation of the type and kind of supervisory control to be exercised by the Smoke Abatement Engineer over new and remodeled installations of combustion equipment insofar as the emission of smoke to the atmosphere is concerned. The Board shall determine after investigation and consultation, the methods of examination and inspection and the factors to be considered to insure that new or remodeled fuel and/or material burning installations will be suited for the prevention of the emission of smoke to the degree prescribed in the ordinance, but the Board shall have no authority to inquire regarding the manufacturing processes of metallurgical, chemical, oil refining processes, ceramic or other commodity manufacturing industries involving the combustion of fuel and/or material, beyond the requiring of evidence that the installation will be suited in the prevention of the emission of smoke to the degree prescribed in this ordinance.

SECTION 3. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That the emission of smoke within the City from the smoke stack of any roller, derrick, pile driver, tar kettle or other similar machine or contrivance, or from any open fire, or from the smoke stack or chimney of any building, roundhouse or premises, except for a period of or periods aggregating nine minutes or less in any one hour of a density of No. 2 smoke as defined by the Ringleman Chart, or six minutes or less of a density in excess of No. 2 smoke as defined by the Ringleman Chart in any one hour at a time when the firebox is being cleaned out or a new fire being built therein, or from the stack of any locomotive smoke of a density in excess of No. 2 smoke as defined by the Ringleman Chart for a period or periods aggregating one minute in any four minutes at a time when the firebox of said locomotive is being cleaned or a new fire built therein, or for a period in excess of eight minutes or more in any period of thirty minutes after said locomotive is in or ready for service, is prohibited and is hereby declared to be a nuisance and may be summarily abated by the Smoke Abatement Engineer. Such abatement may be in addition to the fine hereinafter provided. For the purpose of grading the density of smoke, the Ringleman Chart as now published and used by the United States Bureau of Mines, which is hereby made a part of this sub-title by reference, shall be the standard. Smoke shall be considered dense when it is equal to or of greater density than No. 2 of said chart. Any person or persons, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall upon conviction be fined as hereinafter provided, and each violation of this section shall constitute a separate offense for each and every day on which such violation shall continue. All persons participating in any such violation, either as owners, proprietors, lessees, agents, tenants, managers, superintendents, engineers, firemen or janitors, or otherwise, shall severally be liable therefor and subject to the penalties fixed by this ordinance.

SECTION 4. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That no person, firm or corporation, shall cause, suffer or allow to be discharged into the atmosphere, ashes, cinders, dust, soot or fly ash from chimneys, flues and smoke stacks of any building, roundhouse or premises where the quantity of solids emitted exceeds 0.75 grains per cubic foot of flue gas at a stack temperature of 500 degrees Fahrenheit, of which amount not to exceed 0.2 of a grain per cubic foot shall be of such size as to be retained on a 325 mesh U.S. Standard sieve. These conditions are to be conformed to when the percentage of excess air in the stack does not exceed fifty per cent at full load. The foregoing requirements shall be measured by the methods outlined in the Tentative Test Code for dust separating apparatus of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, which is hereby made a part of this ordinance by reference, a copy of which shall remain on file in the office of the Smoke Abatement Engineer.

Any person or persons, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall upon conviction be fined as hereinafter provided, and each violation of this section shall constitute a separate offense for each and every day on which such violation shall continue. All persons participating in any such violation, either as owners, proprietors, lessees, agents, tenants, managers, superintendents, engineers, firemen or janitors, or otherwise, shall severally be liable therefor and subject to the penalties fixed in this ordinance.

SECTION 5. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That it shall be unlawful on or after the first day of January, 1948, for any person, firm or corporation to operate, or cause, or suffer, or allow to be operated at any place in Cumberland, any steam locomotive fired by bituminous coal unless the same is equipped with overfire jets or some other smoke consuming device conforming in efficiency of operation to a degree equal to, or greater than, the overfire jets referred to in this section. Any person or persons in charge of locomotives equipped with a smoke consuming device shall be required to use and operate said device during the whole of any time or period when smoke emission is equal to, or of greater density, than No. 2 of the Ringleman Chart, whether locomotive is operating, standing or ready for operation within the limits of the City of Cumberland.

SECTION 6. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That no new fuel burning plants nor reconstruction, nor remodeling of any existing fuel burning plants for producing power and heat, or either of them, nor refuse burning equipment, nor any chimney or furnace connected with such fuel or refuse burning equipment, shall be installed, erected, reconstructed or remodeled in the City of Cumberland until plans and specifications of the same have been filed by the owner, contractor, installer or other person in the office of and approved by the Smoke Abatement Engineer as being so designed that same can be managed and operated to conform to the provisions of this ordinance and prevent air pollution, and a permit issued by him for such installation, erection, reconstruction or remodeling. Plans and specifications so filed with the said engineer shall show the type of installation, the amount of work and the amount of heating to be done by such fuel or refuse burning plant, and all appurtenances thereto, including all provisions made for the purpose of securing complete combustion of the fuel or refuse to be used and the manner in which it is to be burned for the purpose of preventing air pollution. Said plans and specifications shall also contain a statement of the rate of burning and kind of fuel or refuse proposed to be used and the manner in which it is to be burned and shall also show that the room or premises in which fuel or refuse burning plants shall be located is provided with doors, windows, airshafts, fans or other means of ventilation sufficient to prevent the temperature of such room, basement or other portion of building wherein such fuel or refuse burning apparatus is to be used, from rising to a point higher than 120 degrees Fahrenheit; and sufficient also to provide that the atmosphere of any such room, basement or other portion of the building wherein such fuel or refuse burning apparatus may be located may be changed at least every ten minutes. Such plans shall further show the dimensions of such room in which such fuel or refuse burning apparatus is to be located, the location and dimensions of all chimneys and smoke stacks used in connection with or as a part of said fuel or refuse burning plant. Upon the inspection and approval of said plans and specifications by the Smoke Abatement Engineer and upon the payment of the fees as hereinafter provided, and if such plans and specifications shall show that adequate and approved provisions for the purpose of securing complete combustion of the fuel or refuse to be used and for the purpose of preventing and eliminating smoke, soot, fly ash, dust or noxious acids have been made, a permit for the installation or for the construction, erection, reconstruction or remodeling of such fuel or refuse burning plant shall be issued. As soon as the Smoke Abatement Engineer has issued the permit as above provided, it shall be the duty of the various departments having charge of the inspection of the premises wherein said fuel or refuse burning apparatus is located to cooperate with the said Smoke Abatement Engineer to see that the execution of the work so authorized by said permit shall be done in conformity with the plans and specifications submitted and approved, and with the standards, rules and regulations fixed by the Smoke Abatement Engineer. Any person, firm or corporation who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be subject to the penalties hereinafter provided. If such plans and specifications as described above are not submitted to the Smoke Abatement Engineer for approval previous to the installation of any new fuel burning plant, or the reconstruction or remodeling of any existing fuel burning plant, for producing power, heat, or either of them, or refuse burning plant, or any chimney connected with such fuel or refuse burning plant, the Smoke Abatement Engineer shall be authorized to seal immediately such equipment until the owner, contractor, installer or other person has complied with the provisions of this section.

SECTION 7. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That it shall be unlawful for any person to use any new, reconstructed or remodeled plant, or any plant duly sealed under the provisions of this ordinance, for the production and generation of heat and power, or either of them, or for the burning of refuse, until he shall have first procured a certificate from the Smoke Abatement Engineer certifying that the plant is so constructed that it will do the work required with the type of fuel and equipment used; and that, in the opinion of the Smoke Abatement Engineer, it can consistently be so managed in burning the type of fuel in the manner specified in the permit that no dense smoke shall be emitted from the chimney connected with the furnace or firebox in violation of the provisions of this ordinance; and a notice of the size, type, kind and manner of burning the fuel as specified in the permit has been prominently displayed and permanently attached to said plant. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall be subject to the penalties prescribed in this ordinance. The issuance and delivery by the Smoke Abatement Engineer of any permit or certificate for the construction, reconstruction or remodeling of any plant or chimney connected with a plant shall not be held to exempt any person, firm or corporation to whom any such permit or certificate has been issued and delivered, or who is in possession of any such permit or certificate, from prosecution on account of the emission of dense smoke, fly ash, soot, cinders, dust or noxious acids caused or permitted by any such person, firm or corporation.

7-A. PERMIT FOR ERECTION OF BUILDING PROHIBITED—WHEN. The Building Engineer shall not issue a permit for the erection, construction, reconstruction or alteration of any building or structure wherein the plans for such building or structure show any chimney or smoke stack in connection with such building or structure, until such plans have been submitted to the Smoke Abatement Engineer and the dimensions of such chimney or chimneys approved by him as having sufficient capacity and suitable for the type of equipment and fuel to be used.

After any owner, agent, occupant, manager or lessee of any premises who has been previously notified of three or more violations of this ordinance within any consecutive twelve-month period either before or after its amendment, in respect to the emission of dense smoke, soot, cinders, fly ash, dust or noxious acids, the owner or agent of said premises shall be notified to show cause before the Smoke Abatement Engineer on a day certain, not less than ten days from the date of notice, why the equipment causing such violations should not be sealed. The notice herein provided for may be given by mail directed to the last known address of the party to be notified, or if said party or his whereabouts is unknown, then by posting a notice on or near the premises at which the violations shall have occurred. Upon said date said owner or agent may appear and be heard. ALONG THE POTOMAC TO WASHINGTON

By J. GLENN BEALL
(Member of Congress from Maryland Sixth District)

The long discussed labor bill left the Capitol last week. The next step is up to President Truman. He must either sign or veto it by midnight of the tenth day (excluding Sundays), otherwise it will become a law automatically.

At the time this is being written there is much speculation here in Washington pointing to the attitude of Mr. Truman concerning this legislation. However, there is good evidence that the President has not made up his mind at this time.

The labor bill passed the House of Representatives last Wednesday by a vote of 320-79. On Friday the Senate passed the conference report by 54-17. This bill, I believe, will go far toward restoring peace in the industrial relations field. Furthermore, I think that every one of the items in the bill was considered carefully and written only to meet specific abuses shown to exist.

Rent Controls

I walked over to the Senate side of the Capitol on Monday to see what that group was going to do about the rent control bill. It passed its extension bill after tacking on an amendment which would permit 15 per cent increases in rent rates by mutual agreement of landlord and tenant. This was the cue for the House and Senate conferees to go into action and bring out a suitable measure. They did.

At least, it was tentatively afreed among the conferes that a 15 per cent increase be permitted where tenants and landlords enter a contract "voluntarily and in good faith"; that the rent program be turned over to Frank Creedon, the Housing Expediter and that local governments should have nothing to do with rent controls just so long as Federal powers are maintained.

The date for the termination of rent controls is June 30, 1947. This legislation left the date for terminating Federal controls undecided, although it will probably be some time between December 31, 1947 and March 31, 1948.

The Tax Bill

The first House of Representatives Resolution for this Congress (H. R. 1) has gone to the President for signature. He must sign or veto it by midnight June 16, if not, it will become law automatically. The House approved this measure on Monday by a vote of 220-99 and the Senate tallied the votes 48-28 in favor of it. It's a long-winded bill but the provisions are of interest to you.

Effective July 1, the measure provides income tax cuts graduated from 30 per cent on net incomes (after deductions and exemptions) of $1,000 or less to 10½ per cent on incomes over $302,000.

It seems to be the opinion of many here in Washington that the President will veto this tax cut bill, and according to the vote in the Senate the veto, would be sustained.

In The Shadow Of The Dome

It is my firm belief that the Savage River Dam should be completed. Therefore, I appeared before an Appropriations subcommittee with the Mayors of Cumberland, Westernport and Luke. This gave the heads of these cities an opportunity to state their reasons for urging the completion of the dam. I have already given mine to the subcommittee on numerous occasions.

It was pointed out that when this dam is completed the control of floods will be effective for the towns of Westernport and Luke, Maryland and Piedmont and Keyser, West Virginia. I hope the committee approved this request.

Often it has been called to my attention, especially during the past two weeks, that government employees thinking they were working under Civil Service suddenly found that they weren't. I have asked the Chairman of the Civil Service Commission the status of many employees whose services are being terminated. I also asked to be informed as to whether they have a permanent status.

Many persons in the Cumberland area have written me asking for assistance in maintaining the office for the Deputy Clerk of the United States District Court of Maryland at Cumberland. The office was established in 1892 and the people have become accustomed to the convenience of this office. However, the funds for the continuation of this and many other deputy clerks offices all over the country were not provided for in the budget for 1948.

It will be a great pleasure for me to attend Flag Day Ceremonies in Silver Spring this coming Saturday and to read the Elks Ritual.

I will also speak at the Annual Banquet of the Maryland-Delaware Federation of Post Office Clerks 1947 Convention at the Vindobona Hotel, Braddocks Heights, Maryland on June 14th.

Ready-mixes can save time and trouble this spring when gardening and warm weather make hours spent baking and cooking seem long and hot.

Nominating Committee Named By Local Legion

The nominating committee for the annual election of officers July 15 has been selected by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion.

Wesley H. Abrams was named chairman and Robert C. Bowers was designated co-chairman. Other members of the committee include Carl E. Wintermyer, Thomas F. Conlon and Ray Ansbach.

Miss Helen V. Kerr Joins Marine Reserve

Miss Helen Virginia Kerr, 465 Goethe Street, employed at the office of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners here, has enlisted in the Marine Corps inactive reserve as a corporal. She is the first local ex-service woman to join the reserve, and was the first local girl to enlist in the Marines during the war. She served three years, being attached to Marine Corps Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

Miss Kerr was sworn into the reserve by Major Remsen J. Cole.

Fuller returned to the United States after serving as adjutant with the 19th Bombardment Group of the 20th Air Force stationed at Guam. He is a graduate of Allegany High School class of 1943.

The Hyndman (Pa.) Firemen won a slugfest from the Frostburg V. F. W., 22 to 1, and the Westvaco Club took the Lonaconing Republican Club into camp by the score of 6 to 4 in a pair of Bi-State Baseball League.

The pace-setting Hyndman team tacked up 24 hits, including six doubles and Bob Cook's home run, to romp to its 11th victory in 12 starts in the Mountain City. The Pennsylvanians scored in every inning but the first and third and chased up six runs in the fifth and five tallies in the ninth.

Johnny Workman, who returned home last evening after receiving a trial with a farm club of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was belted for 15 hits in six frames and Hanna, his successor, yielded nine safeties.

Fred Porter topped the Hyndman batting attack with two doubles and three singles in six trips to the plate. Pete Deremer rapped out two doubles and two singles and Cloyd Miller contributed four one-base knocks. Joe Langan was the top man for Frostburg with three hits to his credit.

Glenn Evans, who was relieved by Johnny Waltman in the 7th got credit for the victory.

See Scores Eighth Win

Bill See marked up his eighth consecutive mound triumph as Westvaco topped Coney to remain one and one-half games in the rear of the league leaders.

What proved to be the deciding runs of the ball game were scored in the 7th inning, although Westvaco led throughout. See singled to left, stole second, came home on Harry Sallada's two-base wallop to left and th latter registered when Tysinger singled to center.

After six scoreless insings Coney scored three in hte seventh and one in the eighth. The 7th inning spurt was featured by singles by Johnson, Shockey and Meyers, Steele's fielder's choice and Warnick's double. Meyers drove in two of the runs.

The unbeaten See, who has scored all of Westvaco's victories in the league this season, struck out seven batsmen.

Tysinger and See headed the Westvaco offensive with three hits each. Charley Cook was Coney's batting star with three singles to his credit.

Jim Roby turned in his tenth pitching triumph against only two losses when hwe hurled Lacy's Delicatets to a 10-3 decision over the Maccabees in a City Softball League game yesterday at Campobello.

The victory was the tenth straight for the current league leaders.

A shoestring catch in centerfield by William "Bee" Orndorff with the bases loaded and two out in the third inning was the fielding highlight. "Babe" Crabtree topped Lacy's hitters with three bingles while Vern Penner and Russ Miller garnered two bingles each. Breedlove, Whitman and Deneen obtained two blows each for the Bees.

Frank Riehl's Amvets stayed right on the heels of the league leaders by subduing the Concord Clothiers at Community Park by the score of 5 to 2. Each team got five hits. Lou Bell was the "big gun" for the Amvets with a homer and single. Ray Cleggett walloped a triple for the Clothiers.

Astor Cab conquered the Virginia Avenue Merchants at Taylor Field by the score of 12 to 5. Bill Dean with three singles, Pat Algieri with a pair of doubles and Bob Ziler with two one-baggers were the chief hitters for the winning team. Taylor held the Merchants hitless until the sixth inning. Mason's double was the losers' only extra base blow.

North End defeated Reed's Electricians at Penn Avenue Field, 11 to 8, and the American Legion topped the Veterans of Foreign Wars on the Rolling Mill diamond, 9-2. The scores:

Ross Picks Tony Zale To Defeat Graziano

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 11. (AP)—Barney Ross, who won three world championships but fought his finest battles after retiring from the ring, watched Rocky Graziano finish Eddy Pinazzo, of Baltimore, in the first round here last night and still picked middleweight king Tony Zale over Rocky in their return-go next month in Chicago.

"Rocky was just too hard, too fast and too early for Eddy," the 37-year-old Marine hero said. And he should know. Barney was referring the affair that was supposed to tune-up Rocky for his bout with Zale.

HOUSE OF DAVID WINS NIGHT GAME FROM LEGION TEAM, 6-3

Tommy Powers Gets Two Circuit Drives

The House of David semi-pro baseball team invaded Community Park last night and slugged out a 6-3 win over the Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion nine before 500 fans in the first arc light affair staged in this city in several years.

Jack Kauffman, Legion twirler, had a no hitter for five innings as the locals sported a 1-0 lead, the lone tally coming as a result of Tommy Powers' line-drive home run into center field in the first inning.

In the top of the sixth the "Bearded Beauties" broke Kauffman's spell and got to the right hander for four hits and three runs. Ed Polo's searing single into right center scoring Ray Jones and Raymond Rex with the first House of David runs was the big blow of the inning.

The Legion got one run back in the last of the sixth when Tom Powers hit his second home run of the night, another smash to center field.

Jim Evans relieved Kauffman on the mound in the seventh and the "Shaveless Wonders" lost no time in belting the big righthander for two hits and three runs. Ray Jones' home run into leftfield scoring Art Campo ahead of him was the big blow and Ray Rex came home with the third tally of the inning minutes later when Tommy Powers threw wild over first on Ed Polo's grounder.

The Legion scored the final run of the night when Gaffney tallied from third on Jim Evans' fielder's choice. Pence, who had singled, was forced at second on the play.

Johnny Cox turned in a brilliant performance in the field, handling 13 chances without an error. Box:

FROSTBURGERS IRKED AS DELANEY IS LEFT OFF ALL-STAR TEAM

Frostburg, June 9.

Sports Editor,
Cumberland Daily News
Cumberland, Md.

Dear Sir:

"We the undersigned group of sports fans, believing fair play one of the cardinal points of all good sports, are anxious to find out what group of EXPERTS picked the High School All-Star team that was announced in your paper several days ago.

"Jim Delaney, a Frostburg boy, whom we all know, and are mighty proud of, led the league BOTH IN PITCHING and in BATTING, with just about a PERFECT RECORD IN BOTH, and yet he is completely ignored by this self-styled group of EXPERTS.

"We feel that it is gestures of this sort that lower the morale of sports in general in Allegany county, and that even though it seems the policy of the sports groups in Cumberland to bypass anyone who lists their address as FROSTBURG, we still feel that Jim Delaney should head the list of this year's all-stars.

"Signed:

"Walter Mackay, Harris Patton, John W. Rephann, James S. Orr, John E. Johnson, Earl M. Kerr, George W. Lemmert, Marshall L. Meagher, Richard J. Goldsworthy, Vernon Kane, Joseph E. Fatkin, Allan J. Hendrickson, Woodrow Damewood, George Lauder, Victor Wilson, Paul Haberlein, J. G. Kuhn and Harry Lewis.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The All-Star teams were selected by the coaches of the Tri-State Conference and submitted to the News for publication. The proposal that all-star teams be selected came from Frostburg and a meeting of coaches was held.

"Babe" Crabtree topped Lacy's hitters with three bingles while Vern Penner and Russ Miller garnered two bingles each. Breedlove, Whitman and Deneen obtained two blows each for the Bees.

Frank Riehl's Amvets stayed right on the heels of the league leaders by subduing the Concord Clothiers at Community Park by the score of 5 to 2. Each team got five hits. Lou Bell was the "big gun" for the Amvets with a homer and single. Ray Cleggett walloped a triple for the Clothiers.

Ross Picks Tony Zale To Defeat Graziano

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 11. (AP)—Barney Ross, who won three world championships but fought his finest battles after retiring from the ring, watched Rocky Graziano finish Eddy Pinazzo, of Baltimore, in the first round here last night and still picked middleweight king Tony Zale over Rocky in their return-go next month in Chicago.

"Rocky was just too hard, too fast and too early for Eddy," the 37-year-old Marine hero said. And he should know. Barney was referring the affair that was supposed to tune-up Rocky for his bout with Zale.

FROSTBURGERS IRKED AS DELANEY IS LEFT OFF ALL-STAR TEAM

Frostburg, June 9.

Sports Editor,
Cumberland Daily News
Cumberland, Md.

Dear Sir:

"We the undersigned group of sports fans, believing fair play one of the cardinal points of all good sports, are anxious to find out what group of EXPERTS picked the High School All-Star team that was announced in your paper several days ago.

"Jim Delaney, a Frostburg boy, whom we all know, and are mighty proud of, led the league BOTH IN PITCHING and in BATTING, with just about a PERFECT RECORD IN BOTH, and yet he is completely ignored by this self-styled group of EXPERTS.

"We feel that it is gestures of this sort that lower the morale of sports in general in Allegany county, and that even though it seems the policy of the sports groups in Cumberland to bypass anyone who lists their address as FROSTBURG, we still feel that Jim Delaney should head the list of this year's all-stars.

"Signed:

"Walter Mackay, Harris Patton, John W. Rephann, James S. Orr, John E. Johnson, Earl M. Kerr, George W. Lemmert, Marshall L. Meagher, Richard J. Goldsworthy, Vernon Kane, Joseph E. Fatkin, Allan J. Hendrickson, Woodrow Damewood, George Lauder, Victor Wilson, Paul Haberlein, J. G. Kuhn and Harry Lewis.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The All-Star teams were selected by the coaches of the Tri-State Conference and submitted to the News for publication. The proposal that all-star teams be selected came from Frostburg and a meeting of coaches was held.

HOUSE OF DAVID WINS NIGHT GAME FROM LEGION TEAM, 6-3

Tommy Powers Gets Two Circuit Drives

The House of David semi-pro baseball team invaded Community Park last night and slugged out a 6-3 win over the Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion nine before 500 fans in the first arc light affair staged in this city in several years.

Jack Kauffman, Legion twirler, had a no hitter for five innings as the locals sported a 1-0 lead, the lone tally coming as a result of Tommy Powers' line-drive home run into center field in the first inning.

In the top of the sixth the "Bearded Beauties" broke Kauffman's spell and got to the right hander for four hits and three runs. Ed Polo's searing single into right center scoring Ray Jones and Raymond Rex with the first House of David runs was the big blow of the inning.

The Legion got one run back in the last of the sixth when Tom Powers hit his second home run of the night, another smash to center field.

Jim Evans relieved Kauffman on the mound in the seventh and the "Shaveless Wonders" lost no time in belting the big righthander for two hits and three runs. Ray Jones' home run into leftfield scoring Art Campo ahead of him was the big blow and Ray Rex came home with the third tally of the inning minutes later when Tommy Powers threw wild over first on Ed Polo's grounder.

The Legion scored the final run of the night when Gaffney tallied from third on Jim Evans' fielder's choice. Pence, who had singled, was forced at second on the play.

Johnny Cox turned in a brilliant performance in the field, handling 13 chances without an error. Box:

Garden State Track Drops Daily Double

CAMDEN, June 11. (AP)—Following the policy adopted by tracks in New York, Delaware and California, Garden State Park announced today it will eliminate the daily double during the meeting opening Aug. 25.

"Experience in other state has proved the public accepts the action as an improvement that helps eliminate misunderstanding and helps to get races started promptly on schedule," said Eugene Mori, president of the track.

COURT OF APPEALS AFFIRMS CONVICTION OF TWO HORSEMEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 11 (AP) — The conviction of two Maryland horsemen on charges of substituting horses in two Pimlico races was affirmed today by the State Court of Appeals.

James S. O'Donnell had been sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary for conspiracy and Robert B. Sanner to 18 months in the House of Correction for conspiracy and obtaining money by false pretenses.

They were accused of substituting the horse "Flying Kilts" for another named "Rounco" in Pimlico races November 12, and 27, 1945. On the first occasion the horse finished third and won a $150 purse, but the second time it ran ahead of the field and won an $1,100 pot.

The appeal was based on your technical points in the lower court's procedure.

To the assertion that the lower court should have granted a motion for a new trial, the appeals court replied that a trial court's decision on such motions cannot be appealed.

Babe Zaharias Goes To Finals

Plays For British Golf Title Today

GULLANE, Scotland, June 11 (AP) —Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias, the feminine golfing machine from Denver, drove and putted her way into the finals of the British women's amateur golf championship today and became a prime favorite to win the title for the United States for the first time tomorrow.

Shooting 29 holes in today's quarter-final and semi-final rounds two strokes under even fours on the rugged Guldane course, Mrs. Zaharias first conquered little Frances "Bunty" Stephens, 3 and 2, and then routed Jean Donald, the Scottish champion, 7 and 5. Miss Donald had been touted as the lass to keep the championship at home again this year.

Against the tall, free-striding Babe in tomorrow's 36-hole final will go Jacqueline Gordon of London, a golfing "unknown" who spent five years as an ATS sergeant serving with American airmen in the midlands.

The tall, 27-year-old Miss Gordon turned back the 1937 British women's champion, Mrs. Jessie Valentine, 3 and 2 to reach the final round after eliminating Mrs. M. K. MacKean, 4 and 3, this morning.

This is the Babe's first try at the British title, which never has gone to America, after winning 15 successive tournaments in the United States, including the women's amateur championship.

Garden State Track Drops Daily Double

CAMDEN, June 11. (AP)—Following the policy adopted by tracks in New York, Delaware and California, Garden State Park announced today it will eliminate the daily double during the meeting opening Aug. 25.

"Experience in other state has proved the public accepts the action as an improvement that helps eliminate misunderstanding and helps to get races started promptly on schedule," said Eugene Mori, president of the track.

Babe Zaharias Goes To Finals

Plays For British Golf Title Today

GULLANE, Scotland, June 11 (AP)—Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias, the feminine golfing machine from Denver, drove and putted her way into the finals of the British women's amateur golf championship today and became a prime favorite to win the title for the United States for the first time tomorrow.

Shooting 29 holes in today's quarter-final and semi-final rounds two strokes under even fours on the rugged Guldane course, Mrs. Zaharias first conquered little Frances "Bunty" Stephens, 3 and 2, and then routed Jean Donald, the Scottish champion, 7 and 5. Miss Donald had been touted as the lass to keep the championship at home again this year.

Against the tall, free-striding Babe in tomorrow's 36-hole final will go Jacqueline Gordon of London, a golfing "unknown" who spent five years as an ATS sergeant serving with American airmen in the midlands.

The tall, 27-year-old Miss Gordon turned back the 1937 British women's champion, Mrs. Jessie Valentine, 3 and 2 to reach the final round after eliminating Mrs. M. K. MacKean, 4 and 3, this morning.

This is the Babe's first try at the British title, which never has gone to America, after winning 15 successive tournaments in the United States, including the women's amateur championship.

COURT OF APPEALS AFFIRMS CONVICTION OF TWO HORSEMEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 11 (AP) — The conviction of two Maryland horsemen on charges of substituting horses in two Pimlico races was affirmed today by the State Court of Appeals.

James S. O'Donnell had been sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary for conspiracy and Robert B. Sanner to 18 months in the House of Correction for conspiracy and obtaining money by false pretenses.

They were accused of substituting the horse "Flying Kilts" for another named "Rounco" in Pimlico races November 12, and 27, 1945. On the first occasion the horse finished third and won a $150 purse, but the second time it ran ahead of the field and won an $1,100 pot.

The appeal was based on your technical points in the lower court's procedure.

To the assertion that the lower court should have granted a motion for a new trial, the appeals court replied that a trial court's decision on such motions cannot be appealed.

In Russia music has always been closely associated with the people's lives. The return of spring is celebrated by a sort of choral dance, termed the "khorovod;" marriage brings forth many songs, such as "The Birchwood Splinter," "Glorification," "The Matchmaker." There are boating songs, lullabies and dance songs.

The earliest balance machines date back at least 5,000 years before the Christian era.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

In the summer of '39, the law was staging its biggest man hunt since the Lindbergh case. It was looking for Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, Enemy No. 1, who had been hiding out for two years. The State of New York had pinned a $25,000 price tag on him. On-his-way-up prosecutor Tom Dewey wanted Lepke for extortion and 50 murders. John Edgar Hoover wanted him just as badly, though only for narcotic and income-tax shenanigans.

Billy Rose

Assorted bloodhounds were breathing hard on gangland's dirty necks. High-ranking hoods finally told Lepke he'd have to do something to bring the heat down to room temperature. The fugitive figured it would be better to face the milder Federal rap. Besides, John Edgar wasn't hankering to try on the Governor's hat for size.

One night, a member of the black-fingernail set sidled up to Walter Winchell. "I hear tell," he said a little too casually, "that Lepke might turn himself in to your friend Hoover, if he knew for sure he wouldn't get roughed up. Especially if there was a delivery boy around he could trust."

The newspaperman inhaled the heady aroma of a page-one scoop. "Well, I'm a pretty trustworthy fellow," said Walter.

For the next three weeks, a different go-between made contact with the columist every night. Walter, who knew everybody, had never seen any of these side-talking ambassadors before. Sometimes they'd pop out of doorways. Sometimes they'd get him on one of the pay phones at the Stork Club. Most of these powwows were conducted between 4:00 and 6:00 in the morning. Winchell would relay these fragments of talk to Hoover, who had moved into the Waldorf to be on tap.

After three weeks of this, Hoover got impatient. One night he told Winchell, "If Lepke doesn't surrender in the next 24 hours, I'm going to give my men orders to shoot him on sight."

That did it. Next morning, Winchell got a phone message. "Take your wife's car, the one with the fog lights, and be at Proctor's Theatre in Yonkers at 7:00 tonight." Walter's wife, June, the only person he had confided in, was terrified. She had visions of her husband in a machine-gun crossfire. That afternoon she scattered carpet tacks on the drive, hoping Walter would get a flat when he backed the car out of the garage.

But the tacks didn't take. At a few minutes to seven, Winchell stopped for a traffic light outside Yonkers. A car eased up alongside his. A man slipped out of it and climbed in next to the columnist. "Drive back to town," he said. "Don't be nervous. We only brought you up here to see if there were any cops tailing you."

Back in Manhattan, his passenger told Winchell to park. "Telephone Mr. Hoover," he said. "He's in Room — at the Waldorf. Tell him to be at 28th Street and Fifth Avenue, southeast side, between 10:10 and 10:20."

After the phone call, Walter and the intermediary cruised around to kill time. At 10:00, the man said, "Stop. Let me out here. You go to Madison Square Park and stop at 24th Street. And do me a favor. Give this rabbit's foot to Lepke. Tell him it's from me."

As Walter drove up to the bit of greenery which is Madison Square Park, he saw the light burning on top of the Metropolitan Life Insurance building. "Hope my premiums are up to date," he mumbled. As he leaned forward to snap off the ignition, someone said, "Hello, Walter."

It was Lepke. He had grown a Groucho Marx mustache, mint julep sideburns, and was wearing dark glasses and a topcoat. The killer got in the back seat and Walter pointed the car for 28th Street. His nerves were now twanging like harp strings. He knew 18,000 city cops had memorized the wanted man's face. He was afraid some stool pigeon might have tipped off Dewey's men and that the story of the year would be snatched away from him.

As they rounded a corner, Walter heard what he thought was a tremendous crash of glass. Lepke had thrown away the dark glasses he had used for disguise. But to the jumpy columnist it sounded like a truck going through a store window.

At 28th Street, Winchell pulled up behind the parked FBI car. Hoover was sitting alone in the back seat. Walter led Lepke over. "Get in, Mr. Buchalter," said the G-man, who never addresses a criminal by his nickname. "Where are your high and mighty friends now?"

"I'm beginning to wonder," muttered Lepke, as the driver turned south toward Foley Square and FBI headquarters.

At 13th Street, Hoover nudged Winchell and said, "Get out of the car."

"What do you mean, get out?" snapped the columnist, not getting it. "I thought this was my . . ."

"Right," said the G-man. "If the newspaper guys around headquarters see me with you and Lepke they'll beat you to your own story."

"Thanks, John," said Walter, and got out.

The columnist found himself in a deserted business section. He ran for blocks before he found an open bar with a phone booth. Finally he got his night city editor on the wire.

"This is Winchell," he panted. "Here's your page one story. Lepke has surrendered! I just turned him over to John Edgar Hoover!"

"Take it easy, Walter," said the man at the desk. "Your yarn isn't making the front page tonight. Stalin just signed a pact with Adolf Hitler."

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Ed and Pegeen Fitzgerald are a married couple who claim to have invented the idea of broadcasting ad lib chatter from the breakfast table. They say this without shame or any evidence of remorse. All in all they chatter about an hour a day—45 minutes every morning (8:15 a. m.) and 15 minutes every evening (6:45 p. m.) over WJZ in New York — and earn fountains of money. They have more sponsors than I care to think about and about half a million devoted followers. So much for the vital statistics.

John Crosby

As to their conversation, the Fitz Gees Honey (that what they call each other) are geniuses at non sequitur. They are both persons of staggering volubility; neither is ever at a loss for words but rarely ever do they talk about the same subject even in adjoining sentences. This gives the conversation—if that's the word for it — an air of charming aimlessness as if Noel Coward had dropped into the Mad Hatter's for tea. It would be totally impossible to reproduce this conversation exactly but below I should like to offer a sort of condensed version of it, 90 per cent of which was taken right out of their broadcasts. All set?

"Good evening, Mrs. Fitz Gee Honey."

"Hello."

"Let me tell you—I saw an exhibition today. It was simply fascinating. Simply vastly entertaining. Stage settings." (This is Mister Fitz Gee Honey talking).

"I never knew what a prosecnium arch was."

"I've got an offer for anyone with a dime—Merritt's Medicated Powder. And you know what they send with it, Fitz Gee? A postcard picture of you and me. Medicated powder is real nice. You know who I saw today—Buffano, the sculptor."

"Oh I remember him. Yes. Yes. Yes. Yes."

"He told me about his broken windows. He's found it cheaper not to replace them."

"Splendid! Splendid! The month of June is coming up and we have a new birthstone coming up—pearls for tears. I just mention that."

"That's very nice, very nice. I claim grown men should get along without college. I would leifer not go to college."

"Yes, yes I'm sure. Millicent Rogers has a fractured shoulder."

"Anna May the opera singer has a seven pound four ounce girl. She's a charming girl. We saw a lot of her last spring. In a bathing suit we saw especially much of her."

"I wonder what happens to people who get their pictures in the paper and lots of publicity and then drop out of sight."

"Maybe it's a blessed relief but I doubt it."

"I doubt it too."

"From all us Fitz Gees."

And now just to round of the picture, I'd like to pass along a fairly accurate transcription of another conversation also by two people of opposite sex, though somewhat younger than the Fitz Gees. Here it is.

"I want to talk about the atomic bomb. Wouldn't it be awful if the atomic bomb came down here."

"Sure it'd be awful. Did you read about Hiroshima? People died weeks later of radiation."

"I think Gromkyo should do something about it. He's always walking out. Walking out here, walking out there!"

"They're hard to get long with—the Russians. It's 'cause they want the Dardanelles."

The conversation is a little dated because these notes are a year old. Those remarks were made on a radio program—produced as a sort of satire on the Fitzgeralds—called "Cookies and Milk with Jack and Jill" on WNEW in New York. Jack and Jill were respectively nine and eight years old and while their conversation lacked some of the polish of Emerson's, it certainly had more cohesion than that of the Fitz Gees Honey.

Sir William Ramsay, foremost English chemist of a quarter of a century ago, indicated how coal could be converted into gas at the mine. It remained for the Russians to do it commercially. By the outbreak of World War II one station alone had produced more than 30 million cubic meters of gas, and there were others.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 10 — In September, Darryl Zanuck goes to England to set up a British 20th Century-Fox organization. What Darryl plans to do is to find a permanent studio where he will make 20th productions with top British and American actors.

Al Jolson
Radio theater

The first star to make a movie for Zanuck in London will be Rex Harrison heading the cast of John Galsworthy's "Escape". This fits in with British Mr. Harrison's plans perfectly. He's been wanting to get back to his native hearth for a visit for some time.

The reason Darryl isn't leaving sooner is that he doesn't want to go until "Gentleman's Agreement" is cut and ready for release. I imagine he'll take a print of it along.

There's been a lot of gossip that Bing Crosby and Al Jolson, who have been so sensational on the air, may be teamed in a movie. I hear through the grapevine that Al is all set to make a movie for his alma mammy, Warners.

Bing starts "Connecticut Yankee" in September, and he has one more on his Paramount contract before he produces independently, BUT a deal could be made, you know, between Bing and Jack Warner for a movie with the two songsters.

Both Al and Bing are great guys and great entertainers.

Keenan Wynn, who opens tomorrow night in "Skin of Your Teeth" for the Theater Guild, has, he believes, one of the most interesting roles of his life coming up in his next movie. He will play Porthos in "The Three Musketeers". Gene Kelly, I have already told you, is D'Artagnan. Gene, by the way, was successfully operated on a few days ago.

Keenan said that he has always liked to fence and it's one of the things he does best, so he wants more than anything else to play in Dumas' drama.

It pays to go visiting your girl friends on movie sets—at least it paid off for Nan Wynn. She had in mind only a session of girlish yacking when she dropped over to hash over old times with June Havoc on the "Intrigue" set.

Sam Bishoff, the producer, took a look at her and said, "what would you rather do than sing?"

"Act," replied Nan.

"All right, you can act the role of the girl singer in this opus," Bishoff replied and he's having the part built up. It was a lucky visit for Nan who is out for a screen and radio comeback.

Chatter in Hollywood: An amusing party is the one planned for Mike Romanoff, who has been very sick. As a sop to Mike's vanity, after his face was left on the cutting room floor in "The Other Love", the bosses of enterprise picked the pieces up, put them together and made a short, with David Niven acting as the commentator. One scene shows Mike blowing his lines 23 times. The short is called "The Other Romanoff."

When Mike is will enough he will be given a party with a premiere and all the trimmings.

One of Norma Talmadge's best remembered movies, "Secrets", has been taken out of the vault, rewritten, considerably changed and made ready for the cast of Samuel Goldwyn's "The Best Years of Our Lives". The entire cast, with the exception of Freddie March, will be used.

The lineup is Teresa Wright, Oana Andrews, Myrna Loy, and, I hear, the handless boy, Harold Russell, (will have a part, although, of course, in the original movie there is no such role. Harold is such a fine natural actor and many people would like to see him again.

The day Anna Neagle landed in New York Lady Astor introduced her to a little old Scotch lady named Prentiss. During the conversation it developed that Mrs. Prentiss, who is in her seventies, had come to the United States to visit her 17 sons. She had never been out of Scotland before. She said she was going to Maine and then to Vancouver.

"My boys have motor cars, so it will be easy getting around," the little old lady explained.

Later, when Anna commented to Lady Astor on all those 17 sons, Lady Astor said, "oh, but they're not actually her boys. They are Canadian and American G. I.'s she befriended during the war, and they all chipped in to pay her expenses to America and she will stay with each of them two weeks."

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected at Random: Georgette Winsor and Harry Cushing II, had an argument in New York and she flew out here to cool off. Within 24 hours, Cushing was in Hollywood and now everything is honkey-dory.

Laraine Day and Leo Durocher are off for three weeks at the Grand Canyon to "get away from it all."

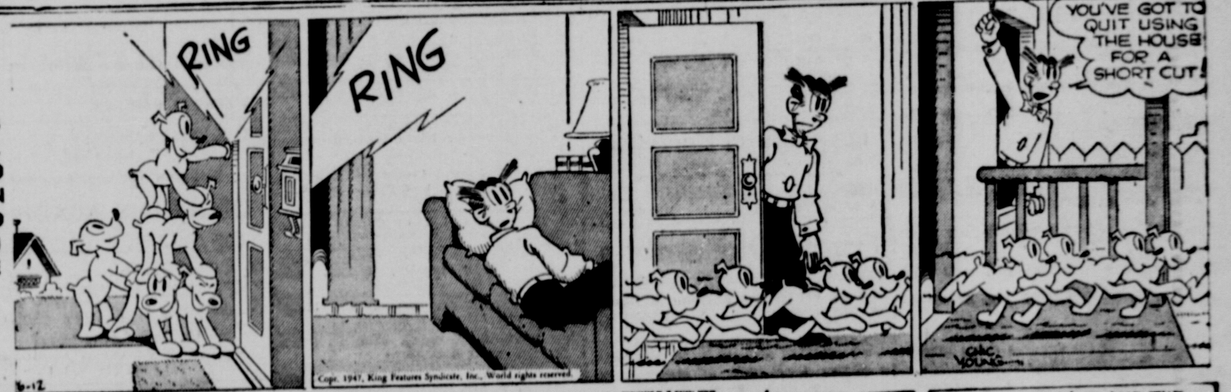
Carmen Miranda has so completely recovered from her breakdown that she'll accept an engagement at Saratoga Springs this summer.

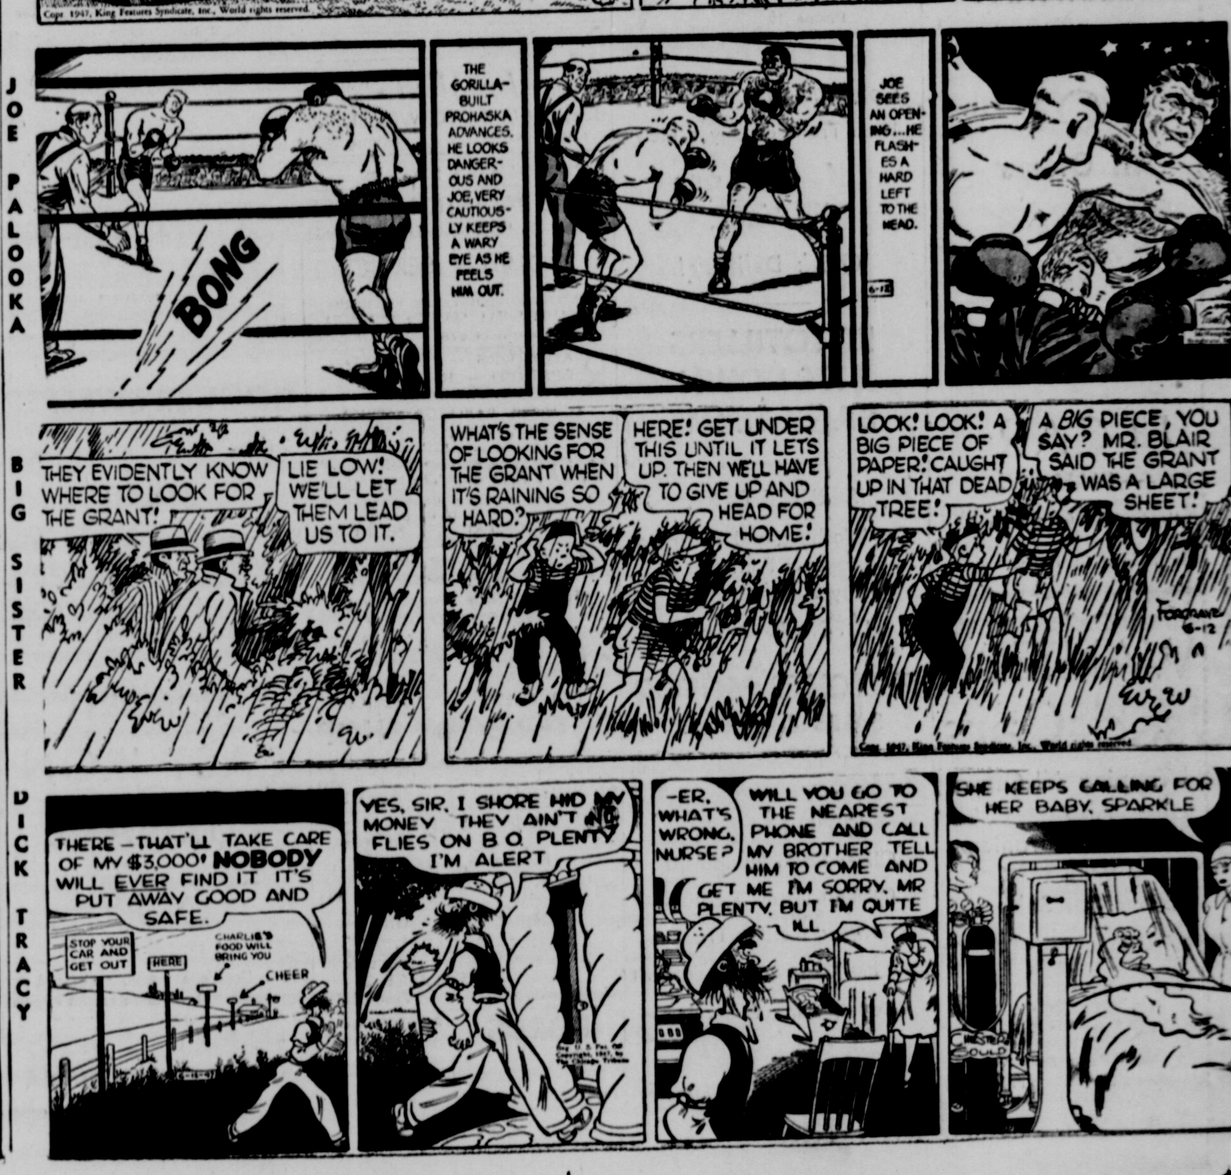
Rory Calhound, the new roar with the bobby-soxers, was with recently divorced Vera-Ellen at Ciro's.

Sabu is spending all his free moments with Jacqueline Shaffer, young sister of Mrs. Harmon Spencer Auguste. Mrs. Auguste's husband is the wealthy broker, and she was publicized as the lady who threatened to break up a Jose Iturbi recital in Miami a short time ago.

Fay McKenzie wires from New York that all is well with her and Steve Cochran. "We spend our combined salaries on long distance calls," she said, "and Steve may do a show later in New York."

I couldn't help thinking what a pretty girl Maureen O'Hara is, when I talked with her at Joan Fontaine's the other evening. Maureen looked like a peppermint candy stick, but that girl has to watch her diet. She's too pretty to put on poundage.





PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

In the summer of '39, the law was staging its biggest man hunt since the Lindbergh case. It was looking for Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, Enemy No. 1, who had been hiding out for two years. The State of New York had pinned a $25,000 price tag on him. On-his-way-up prosecutor Tom Dewey wanted Lepke for extortion and 50 murders. John Edgar Hoover wanted him just as badly, though only for narcotic and income-tax shenanigans.

Billy Rose

Assorted bloodhounds were breathing hard on gangland's dirty necks. High-ranking hoods finally told Lepke he'd have to do something to bring the heat down to room temperature. The fugitive figured it would be better to face the milder Federal rap. Besides, John Edgar wasn't hankering to try on the Governor's hat for size.

One night, a member of the black-fingernail set sidled up to Walter Winchell. "I hear tell," he said a little too casually, "that Lepke might turn himself in to your friend Hoover, if he knew for sure he wouldn't get roughed up. Especially if there was a delivery boy around he could trust."

The newspaperman inhaled the heady aroma of a page-one scoop. "Well, I'm a pretty trustworthy fellow," said Walter.

For the next three weeks, a different go-between made contact with the columist every night. Walter, who knew everybody, had never seen any of these side-talking ambassadors before. Sometimes they'd pop out of doorways. Sometimes they'd get him on one of the pay phones at the Stork Club. Most of these powwows were conducted between 4:00 and 6:00 in the morning. Winchell would relay these fragments of talk to Hoover, who had moved into the Waldorf to be on tap.

After three weeks of this, Hoover got impatient. One night he told Winchell, "If Lepke doesn't surrender in the next 24 hours, I'm going to give my men orders to shoot him on sight."

That did it. Next morning, Winchell got a phone message. "Take your wife's car, the one with the fog lights, and be at Proctor's Theatre in Yonkers at 7:00 tonight." Walter's wife, June, the only person he had confided in, was terrified. She had visions of her husband in a machine-gun crossfire. That afternoon she scattered carpet tacks on the drive, hoping Walter would get a flat when he backed the car out of the garage.

But the tacks didn't take. At a few minutes to seven, Winchell stopped for a traffic light outside Yonkers. A car eased up alongside his. A man slipped out of it and climbed in next to the columnist. "Drive back to town," he said. "Don't be nervous. We only brought you up here to see if there were any cops tailing you."

Back in Manhattan, his passenger told Winchell to park. "Telephone Mr. Hoover," he said. "He's in Room — at the Waldorf. Tell him to be at 28th Street and Fifth Avenue, southeast side, between 10:10 and 10:20."

After the phone call, Walter and the intermediary cruised around to kill time. At 10:00, the man said, "Stop. Let me out here. You go to Madison Square Park and stop at 24th Street. And do me a favor. Give this rabbit's foot to Lepke. Tell him it's from me."

As Walter drove up to the bit of greenery which is Madison Square Park, he saw the light burning on top of the Metropolitan Life Insurance building. "Hope my premiums are up to date," he mumbled. As he leaned forward to snap off the ignition, someone said, "Hello, Walter."

It was Lepke. He had grown a Groucho Marx mustache, mint julep sideburns, and was wearing dark glasses and a topcoat. The killer got in the back seat and Walter pointed the car for 28th Street. His nerves were now twanging like harp strings. He knew 18,000 city cops had memorized the wanted man's face. He was afraid some stool pigeon might have tipped off Dewey's men and that the story of the year would be snatched away from him.

As they rounded a corner, Walter heard what he thought was a tremendous crash of glass. Lepke had thrown away the dark glasses he had used for disguise. But to the jumpy columnist it sounded like a truck going through a store window.

At 28th Street, Winchell pulled up behind the parked FBI car. Hoover was sitting alone in the back seat. Walter led Lepke over. "Get in, Mr. Buchalter," said the G-man, who never addresses a criminal by his nickname. "Where are your high and mighty friends now?"

"I'm beginning to wonder," muttered Lepke, as the driver turned south toward Foley Square and FBI headquarters.

More Summer Radio Shows Will Be On Air Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, June 11—More for the summer-or-otherwise quota is due on the network kilocycles Thursday. Three networks are having one apiece.

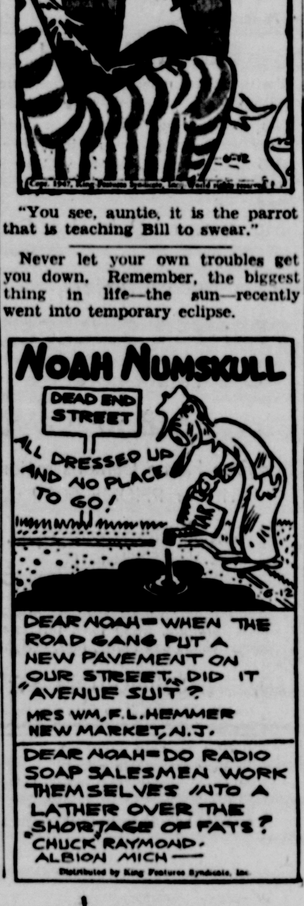
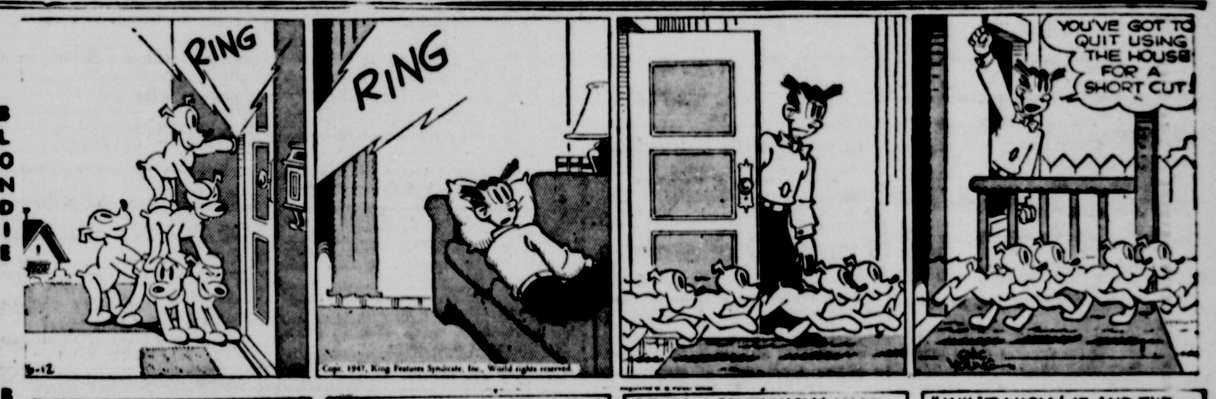
Sir William Ramsay, foremost English chemist of a quarter of a century ago, indicated how coal could be converted into gas at the mine. It remained for the Russians to do it commercially. By the outbreak of World War II one station alone had produced more than 30 million cubic meters of gas, and there were others.





CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and relatives for the kindness and sympathy shown us during our recent bereavment, the death of our husband and Father, J. Frank Young. We also wish to thank the pallbearers, those who sent floral tributes and those who loaned cars for the funeral.

MRS. J. FRANK YOUNG and SON, FRANKLIN

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Clifton M. Smith, who passed away June 12, 1944.

Memories and treasures none can steal;
Death leaves a heartache none can heal.
Some have forgotten you, now that you're gone,
But we will remember you, no matter how long.
Flowers we place upon the grave
Will wither and decay,
But love for the one who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.

Sadly missed by his loving PARENTS, BROTHERS, and SISTERS.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and relatives for the kindness and sympathy shown us during our recent bereavment, the death of our husband and Father, J. Frank Young. We also wish to thank the pallbearers, those who sent floral tributes and those who loaned cars for the funeral.

MRS. J. FRANK YOUNG and SON, FRANKLIN.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Clifton M. Smith, who passed away June 12, 1944.

Memories and treasures none can steal;
Death leaves a heartache none can heal.
Some have forgotten you, now that you're gone,
But we will remember you, no matter how long.
Flowers we place upon the grave
Will wither and decay,
But love for the one who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.

Sadly missed by his loving PARENTS, BROTHERS, and SISTERS.

Best Market Rally Of Year Hikes Industrials One To Over 4 Points

NEW YORK, June 11—(AP)—The best stock market rally of the year boosted a long list of industrial shares one to more than four points today.

Steels, motors, oils, chemicals and some farm implements, rubbers and soft drinks were principal gainers, with rails joining the list of sprinters in the final hour.

Transfers of 1,350,000 shares were the largest since May 19.

Wide movers included Dow Chemical, up 8½ at 163½, after news of a proposed 4-for-1 split, and Coca-Cola, head eight at 164. New 1947 highs were established by Standard Oil (NJ), which closed at 75½, up 1¼; Gulf Oil, ahead two at 67, Union Carbide, 3⅜ at 103¾, and Texas Pacific Land Trust, one-fourth at 24¼.

Pivotals with major gains included Chrysler, up for at 105, Santa Fe 3¼ at 77¾; United States Steel 2¼ at 67½, Goodrich 2¼ at 51¾, Montgomery Ward three at 57½, and Southern Railway three at 34.

Better advances elsewhere were recorded by Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Goodyear, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Western Union "A" (on a favorable earnings report), Southern Pacific, Publicker, Pepsi-Cola, American Woolen, du Pont, Johns-Manville, American Can and United States Gypsum. American Telephone lagged in losing ground most of the day only to show a narrow gain at the finish.

Spurts in the Curb were made by Cties Service, Northern States Power "A," American Cyanamid, Aluminum Company of America, Humble Oil and Electric Bond and Share. Turnover of 450,000 shares here compared with 210,000 Tuesday.

Demand for lower-priced rails provided the main motive power for a broad advance in the bond market.

Total volume amounted to $4,031,000, largest since May 29, against only $2,540,000 Tuesday.

United States governments in the over-the-counter market moved narrowly, the Victory Loan 2½s of December, 1967-'72 remaining at 102 31-32 bid.

Best Market Rally Of Year Hikes Industrials One To Over 4 Points

NEW YORK, June 11—(AP)—The best stock market rally of the year boosted a long list of industrial shares one to more than four points today.

Steels, motors, oils, chemicals and some farm implements, rubbers and soft drinks were principal gainers, with rails joining the list of sprinters in the final hour.

Transfers of 1,350,000 shares were the largest since May 19.

Wide movers included Dow Chemical, up 8½ at 163½, after news of a proposed 4-for-1 split, and Coca-Cola, head eight at 164. New 1947 highs were established by Standard Oil (NJ), which closed at 75½, up 1¼; Gulf Oil, ahead two at 67, Union Carbide, 3⅜ at 103¾, and Texas Pacific Land Trust, one-fourth at 24¼.

Pivotals with major gains included Chrysler, up for at 105, Santa Fe 3¼ at 77¾; United States Steel 2¼ at 67½, Goodrich 2¼ at 51⅜, Montgomery Ward three at 57½, and Southern Railway three at 34.

Better advances elsewhere were recorded by Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Goodyear, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Western Union "A" (on a favorable earnings report), Southern Pacific, Publicker, Pepsi-Cola, American Woolen, du Pont, Johns-Manville, American Can and United States Gypsum. American Telephone lagged in losing ground most of the day only to show a narrow gain at the finish.

Spurts in the Curb were made by Cties Service, Northern States Power "A," American Cyanamid, Aluminum Company of America, Humble Oil and Electric Bond and Share. Turnover of 450,000 shares here compared with 210,000 Tuesday.

Demand for lower-priced rails provided the main motive power for a broad advance in the bond market.

Total volume amounted to $4,031,000, largest since May 29, against only $2,540,000 Tuesday.

United States governments in the over-the-counter market moved narrowly, the Victory Loan 2⅞s of December, 1967-'72 remaining at 102 31-32 bid.

Hopes For Early Ending Of Strike Are Blasted

Textile Union Votes To Continue Walkout

Hopes for an early end to the strike which closed the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America May 30 were blasted yesterday after two more meetings between the company and Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, ended without an agreement being reached and without plans for immediate resumption of negotiations.

The 8,600 member Cumberland local, which comprises the largest single unit of the TWUA, voted last night to continue the strike after hearing a report of the progress made during 25 hours of negotiations between the company and union in an effort to settle the contract dispute.

James A. Holden, federal conciliator, who has arranged four company-union conferences since the strike began 14 days ago, said that he and Mrs. Robert B. Kimble, acting commissioner of labor and industry for Maryland, will continue their efforts to end the strike.

Edward R. Allan, plant personnel manager, who represented the company in the contract talks, said last night that yesterday's meeting ended without an agreement. The conciliator, he added, indicated he would call another meeting but did not set a definite time for the conference.

Allan said the company, under the union proposals, would be faced either with building more facilities for production or to slow down production to what could be produced Monday through Friday.

That, he added, would mean the loss of employment for a large number of workers. It boils down to a question of "social gains or a place to work," he said.

Mass Meeting Held

He said he would have to study the situation before another joint meeting is called and added he did not believe such a meeting will be held today.

In the opening the mass meeting held outside the State Armory, William Boyd Coleman, union president, said the union committee had not "had much success" in the negotiations, after altering the demands without giving them up.

He said that on Tuesday, the union asked the company to give answers to each of the disputed issues. On one point, that of pay for holidays not worked, the company gave way, he reported, but on other issues the answer was "No."

The committee, he said, did not have much success, and the union would have to continue the strike. The company, he declared, is "plenty stubborn" yet and will "have to be shown."

One Issue Settled

Harold Cook, assistant rayon director of the TWUA, who headed the union negotiations, reported last night that at the conclusion of yesterday's conference only one of the nine strike issues was definitely settled.

The company, he said, agreed to the union demand for payment for those for whom no work is available on the six annual National holidays. The cost to the company for this item, he said, will not exceed one-half cent per hour.

On the three other money issues, increased vacation, paid lunch period for steady day shift workers and premium pay for work performed on Saturday and Sunday the company continued to say no, he said. The company, he added, did not offer any proposals for solution of the problems and also indicated there was no likelihood of modifying their position.

The union, Cook said, modified its proposals on these issues to meet objections raised by the company and to reduce their cost to about six cents per hour, broken down to the following cost:

Pay for holidays when no work is available, one-half cent; increased vacations, one cent; premium pay for Saturdays, one and one-half cents and premium pay for Sundays, two cents.

He said no progress is to be reported on five issues which do not involve money.

No Agreement Reached

There is no agreement, he said, on any method of resolving a dispute which may arise under a wage reopening clause. On the co-operation clause, the company, Cook said, reverted to its original position which led to a dispute on the subject.

In regard to the effective date of the contract, the union holds that the effective date is May 19 while the company holds that proper date is the day of final settlement.

There was no discussion of union security during the conferences since, Cook said, both parties agreed that this issue would not be a bar to final agreement.

The only issue in the non-money group on which near agreement was reached, the union official said, is 8-20, (seniority clause) but, he added, no final agreement has been reached on the remaining points of difference on that issue.

Pledges TWUA Support

In an appeal to the union to keep the picket lines going until the company agrees to the union demands or takes them to arbitration, George Baldanzi, executive vice president of the TWUA-CIO, termed the union demands "very mild".

Baldanzi, who was here during the strikes of the early days of the organization, pledged the whole support of the TWUA to the Celanese workers.

In reference to the Taft-Hartley labor bill, the speaker said the effort "by reaction" might be the best for us since "we have forgotten how to fight." Labor's rights will be respected when it is "strong enough to keep them," he said.

Cumberland, he added, is a good place to begin the fight against the "forces of reaction."

Two questions were put to the union members by Coleman:

1—If there is anyone who wishes to go back to work under the company's conditions, answer yes? There were no affirmative votes but several hundred voices spontaneously answered "No".

2—Will be continue the strike? The reaction of the members was to continue the strike. There was no demonstration of any kind as the result of either vote.

Two Local Units Get Quarterly Pay Checks

Major Howard H. Dickey, commander of the First Battalion, 115th Infantry Regiment, Maryland National Guard last night announced the appointment of Capt. John R. Henderson, 475 Williams Street, as Battalion S-2, (Intelligence Officer).

Capt. Henderson has been a resident of Cumberland for the past 18 months and is regularly employed here as manager of the Universal CIT Credit Corporation, 81 Greene Street. He served as a Major in the 17th Air Borne Anti Aircraft Battalion, during World War II, and spent 23 months in the China, Burma, India theatre of operations. Capt. Henderson is a native of Raleigh, N. C., but came here from Clarksburg, W. Va.

Two enlisted men were also assigned to Headquarters Company. They are Irvin R. Deetz, 209 Knox Street, and Walter W. Hartman, Jr., 507 Warren Street.

Capt. Robert Powell, commanding Headquarters Company, announced last night that due to the large number of enlistments recently, there is not sufficient room in the State Armory for both Headquarters Company and Company C to drill on the same nights. Both Companies have been drilling each Wednesday at 7 p. m.

Beginning next week, Headquarters Company will drill each Thursday night for two hours, Capt. Powell said, and Company C, commanded by Capt. Robert Mattlick, will continue to drill for two hours each Wednesday night.

Members of both companies received their quarterly pay checks last night, with the total payroll amounting to $3,614.57. Each enlisted man and officer receives a full day's Army base pay, depending upon his rank, for each two hour training period attended. Checks are issued each three months by the United States Treasury, with an additional check for 15 days spent in summer camp.

Preparations have begun here for the first annual postwar summber encampment of the Maryland Guard, which will be held the last two weeks in August at Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Md.

Life guards have been engaged for the pool and an official inspection of the pool will be made a day or two before the picnic. Musical entertainment is being arranged by Herman Athey, a sound system is to be installed, and the picnic grounds will be lighted at night.

Free transportation to and from the post home and picnic grounds will be provided, and a bus schedule will be announced later, Mull said.

The group will hold a final meeting June 25 at the post home, at which time all sub committees will make complete reports. Mull said last night with a record membership, the outing promises to be the biggest and best picnic in the history of the post.

Programs Announced For Revival Event

Speaking to a congregation at Second Baptist Church last night, Dr. Joe W. Burton, Nashville, Tenn., said that life's most important question is "What must I do to be saved?"

The evangelist said that the realization of utter helplessness without Christ is necessary before the answer to that question can be found.

With two remaining services in the revival's opening week, Dr. Burton announced that his topic tonight will be "Sin's Wages." Tomorrow will be Youth Night, with young people in charge of the service.

Dr. W. J. Crowder, Baltimore, will preach during the second week of the evening revival services, according to Rev. J. C. Ledbetter, pastor.

POTOMAC EDISON COMPANY SELLS OLD NARROWS PARK

No Present Plans, New Owner Says

Narrows Park, once Allegany County's foremost amusement center and mecca of Sunday and holiday picnickers, has been sold by the Potomac Edison Company to George F. Hazelwood, Jr. Consideration was approximately $12,000.

The transaction was completed yesterday, but Hazelwood said no plans "are in view at all" for use of the eight to 10 acre tract of land which in its heyday as a park heard the quiet talk of courting couples and witnessed the good times of church pictnics.

Once known as Seiss's Grove, a popular picnic spot, the property was acquired by the old Cumberland Electric Railway Company, which later was taken over by the Potomac Edison Company, in 1892 and became a terminal and turnaround point for the city street car lines. It also was a transfer point between the city lines and the Cumberland-Frostburg line of the old Cumberland and Westernport Electric Railway. Later, however, the C. and W. used the city lines to run its cars all the way into Cumberland.

Had Miniature Railroad

The park's miniature steam railroad, the roller coaster, ferris wheel and merry-go-round were the source of many a thrill to young and old alike in years gone by, and Tuesday and Saturday nights' round and square rances with music by Prof. George R. Daisy's orchestra were occasions anticipated with delight.

First operated by Gustave Hildebrand, the Casino was also one of the park's main attraction. Later, Bill McCray, known professionally as "Craddoc, the Roman Axethrower," ran the Casino and then Charles Schoenadel took it over. Still later, Sylvester Eyerman and Conrad Felten remodeled and operated it as the Mayflower Club.

Never a summer holiday passed and seldom a Sunday when the park was not filled with picnickers, many of whom carried box lunches and others who bought a bite to eat at the Casino. Balloons, noisemakers and souvenirs could be purchased from eager young salesmen.

Scene Of Annual Picnics

SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church held a picnic at the park on the Fourth of July for years, and other churches and labor fraternal organizations likewise held annual picnics there.

Band concerts, often featuring the old municipal band, were another attraction at this once-gay spot.

Georges Creek residents, too, found Narrows Park a place for fun where they had a chance to relax, and on holidays or special occasions the C. and W. doubled its service between the park and other points on the line. The city line, too, offered more frequent service on those occasions, but the car the younger set called the "Owl," which left at midnight, was always the last car home. If you missed that, you had to walk.

However, the advent of the automobile soon put a crimp in the park's activities. People who once rode the trollies to the park started going farther afield when they got their own transportation.

98 Degrees Reading Highest In State

Cumberland thermometers reached their highest mark of the year yesterday at 98 degrees, leading the rest of the state in a heat wave that gripped the entire eastern third of the United States.

Frederick reported a high of 96, which dropped to 84 in a late afternoon cooling rain, while Salisbury checked in with a maximum of 94 degrees. Baltimore temperatures reached 92, Annapolis 83, and the District of Columbia reported 93 degrees, highest this year.

Yesterday's reading was the highest reported here since last September 9, when the mercury jumped to 99. On five days last month the temperature was 90 or above, with the highest reading 95 degrees on May 28.

Weather Bureau officials reported temperatures in the 90's extending as far north as Vermont. Relief is expected to come to Maryland early this afternoon, when a cool-air mass arrives from the west. Officials predicted a gradual temperature drop of 10 to 15 degrees, probably preceded by scattered thunderstorms.

Graduates Should Register For Jobs, Carroll Declares

An appeal to 1947 high school graduates to take advantage of the services offered by the Maryland State Employment Service in seeking jobs was made yesterday by Patrick J. Carroll, manager of the local office.

He cited some of these services as registration, job analysis and aptitude testing, vocational counseling and guidance, local, statewide, national and foreign placement of workers in positions.

Carroll said that because the modern industrial scene has become so complicated many workers take jobs "hit-or-miss," wasting money spent for training and losing time in getting ahead in careers.

To overcome this, employment counseling has been developed, which is an attempt to give job seekers more information about occupations, the labor market and their occupational capacities.

High school graduates seeking a job who come to the employment office will first be registered by an interviewer and then asked about their school work, references, hobbies, ambitions and to describe any skills they may possess, Carroll related.

This "word pictupre" of the applicant is kept on file as a permanent record. In event the applicant does not know the type of job he wants or is best suited to fill, he is directed to an employment counselor and possibly given an aptitude test to determine what he is best fitted to do.

First Aid Plans Are Made For Air Show

A Red Cross ambulance, tent and cots and subsidiary first aid stations will be set up at the Cumberland Municipal Airport Sunday noon for protection of the thousands of persons expected to attend the air show at 2 p. m., according to H. Lee Silcox, chairman of first aid for Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Members of the Red Cross Motor Corps will be in charge of transportation to and from the airport for volunteer Red Cross workers manning the emergency stations.

Silcox named Robert Thwaites as chairman in charge of first aid arrangements for the air show. The latter announced that Elmer Lancaster, LaVale; Miss Elsie Stuckey, city; Mrs. Lewis Millholland, Jr., Bowling Green, and Mrs. Wyand Doerner, instructor of nursing arts at Allegany Hospital, have already volunteered their services. Mrs. Doerner said she plans to bring student nurses from her first aid class at the hospital.

At last year's air show, about 26 cases were hanlded, mostly mild forams of sunstroke, Silcox said. Twenty Red Cross volunteers were on hand at that time.

Service to Hagerstown and Cumberland—also disapproved by the examiner—will be considered at the hearings.

New Stairway At Fort Cumberland

Construction of a new stairway between the lobby and second floor of the Fort Cumberland Hotel began this week, according to Robert Blair, manager.

The stairway is being build adjacent to the elevator and will occupy some of the space formerly taken up by the desk. The desk, however, will remain in almost its same position.

Being built by the John I. Vandergrift Company, the stairway is expected to be completed within a month, Blair said. He added that it is of fireproof construction.

The stairway will replace one removed when the lobby was altered to make room for a store several years ago.

School Lunch Employes To Be State's Best Paid

Golladay Studies Plans For Local Airplane Plant

Experts Approve His New Design

Encouraged by top airplane designers and producers in the country, who have seen his miniature model and working drawings of a new-type all plastic airplane, A. Derr Golladay, local plane designer and engineer is making plans for erection of a pilot or experimental plant for the purpose of constructing a full-sized model ship.

Golladay, who is one of the operators of the Allegany Aeronautical Corporation at Mexico Farms, has been working for more than a year on an idea for an all-plastic, jet-propelled plane, made almost entirely of a fiberglass material.

He has just returned from three weeks of conferences with several airplane company officials, government research agencies, and visits at the laboratory of the Army Air Forces Experimental Center at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. He also visited the laboratory of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics in Cleveland in order to study engines and attended the annual NACA "inspection" at Langley Field, Va., an invitation event for only top flight Army, Navy and industrial airmen.

Golladay likewise had a conference with General Curtis LaMay, in command of development and research for the Army Air Forces in Washington. Present at the conference were staff members including the command from Wright Field.

The Army Air Corps and the Army Ground Forces indicated strong interest in his plane and design, Golladay said. However they cannot encourage new aircraft companies at this time, as all development contracts are now being used as subsidies to attempt to keep the existing large aircraft makers from collapse due to the large decrease in production since the war.

Armed forces however, expressed keen interest in the fact that radar will not pick up or detect the type of ship Golladay has designed, and he was encouraged to proceed with plans for a pilot plant so a ship could be made for actual tests of every type.

If his plan for a "pilot" plant here or elsewhere can be worked out, and proves successful, then a larger plant, designed for mass production is assured, Golladay said.

Unusual Advantages

While he did not divulge all the details of the new ship, Golladay said it is designed with two tandem seats, provides maximum visibility, and is suitable for military, commercial or private use. He said his production plan calls for building both heavy and light ships.

The ship is designed for landing across ditches and on rough terrain that would demolish present landing gear. It can also be developed as an amphibious ship, and is capable of staying aloft without use of power for great lengths of time, the young designer explained.

"For instance," he said, "flying at 9,000 feet above the ground, the plane can coast or soar without engine or thrust power for a full hour before using the engine again. With power off it means the ship can glide 28 miles horizontally for each mile of altitude. This means about one-fourth the normal amount of power is needed.

Plant Plans Incomplete

While detailed plant plans have not been completed, the project creates the possibility that Cumberland may become an air manufacturing center.

"The problem is whether to start a new company, which would mean building the first few ships at my expense, and then trying for an Army production contract and commercial sales, or tie in with an existing aircraft manufacturing company which might make an Army Air Corps development contract available for building the first ships," Golladay said.

"Among the factors to be considered, if a new plant is started, is the need for tax exemptions. In fact, this item may govern the location of the plant.

"In developing this first fully molded airplane in the history of aviation, it would be impossible to know beforehand the time needed to successfully complete the undertaking. It might be done in less than a year and then again it could take five years. With no income in that time, taxes along with other expenses could cause collapse of the company."

Golladay's experience as a designer includes:

McDonnell jet-propelled "Phantom" and "Banshee", Navy carrier based fighters; Curtis-Wright "Helldivers"; Consolidated "Vultee", torpedo bomber; Martin "Mars", flying boat; Martin "Mariner", patrol bomber; Martin "B-26", bomber, sphere bomber; Fairchild "PT-19" and "XAT 13-14" and others.

In addition Golladay was structure supervising engineer and did production design work on the "B-29", superfortress, and the "F4U-1", Navy "Corsair", carrier based fighters.

Golladay is the son of Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Golladay, 403 Washington Street.

3 More Cafeterias May Be Opened

Allegany County's school cafeteria workers will be the best paid in the state when 10 per cent wage increases become effective in 1947-48, William P. Cooper, director of the school lunch program, disclosed at group meetings for cafeteria employes yesterday and Tuesday in the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company auditorium.

Cooper also announced that two and probably three more school cafeterias will be opened during the next school year.

Approximkately 100 cafeteria employes, including staff workers, attended the meetings at which the annual dinner was served in conjunction with instructions and demonstrations by Miss Flora G. Dowler, nutritionist, of the Manufacturers Heat and Light Company, Pittsburgh. Employes working in schools attended the Monday meeting and those working in schools outside the city attended yesterday's session.

Cooper said the 10 per cent pay increase scheduled for the next school year will make the cafeteria employes the highest paid school lunch workers in the State of Maryland, including Baltimore City, on an hourly basis.

Increases Given Yearly

He added that wage increases averaging 10 per cent or more have been given yearly for the past five years.

New cafeterias will be opened next year at Detmold and Jackson Schools at Lonaconing and possibly at Columbia Street School in Cumberland, Cooper said.

With the opening of those three cafeterias and establishing of three more, the program then would include every school in the county, he added.

At the meetings yesterday and Tuesday, Miss Dowler instructed the cafeteria workers in cleaning and caring for equipment when it is not in use during the summer vacation period. With the assistance of Miss Jane Marshall, local home economist for the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, Miss Dowler gave a demonstration on the preparation of school lunch desserts and sauces which will be used next year.

A movie, "Balanced Way," pertaining to nutrition, was shown. Cooper opened both meetings and Miss Dowler was intruduced by Mrs. Gladys M. Eaton, school lunch program supervisor.

Briefly outlining a history of the school lunch program in this county, Cooper said the project was launched October 14, 1940, at Hammond Street School, Westernport. During the school year 1940-41 four schools joined the program and the following year 10 more were added.

In the school year 1942-43, another 10 schools joined the program, Cooper said, while in 1944-45 one school was added. During the present school year serving of balanced lunches began in three more schools.

Serve 9,000 Children

These 29 schools serve lunches daily to 9,000 children, a total of about 1,600,000 lunches this school year, according to Cooper, who said that from September 1946 until the end of the current school year $90,000 worth of milk and $80,000 worth of meat, fish, cheese and eggs will have been purchased and approximately 13 tons of potatoes consumed.

During the past several years and part of this year it was impossible to purchase the variety and quality of food needed to serve the best balanced lunches possible, Cooper stated, but he complimented the cafeteria workers for doing their best under the circumstances and making good lunches available to the children. However, most of these restrictions have now been removed and the outlook is much brighter for next year.

In order to improve the program, cooks' training institutes have been held yearly for the past four years and two food handlers' training courses have been held under direction of the State Department of Health and the United States Department of Health, Cooper said, pointing out that the next training institute will be held September 2 and 3 and will be devoted largely to the proper preparation of a variety of foods.

Capt. John V. Deuel, author, scientist and explorer, will deliver the address to the class after an introduction by Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent. "In One Accord" will be the topic of the class oration, which will be delivered by Calvin Mahaney.

Hopes For Early Ending Of Strike Are Blasted

Textile Union Votes To Continue Walkout

Hopes for an early end to the strike which closed the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America May 30 were blasted yesterday after two more meetings between the company and Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, ended without an agreement being reached and without plans for immediate resumption of negotiations.

The 8,600 member Cumberland local, which comprises the largest single unit of the TWUA, voted last night to continue the strike after hearing a report of the progress made during 25 hours of negotiations between the company and union in an effort to settle the contract dispute.

James A. Holden, federal conciliator, who has arranged four company-union conferences since the strike began 14 days ago, said that he and Mrs. Robert B. Kimble, acting commissioner of labor and industry for Maryland, will continue their efforts to end the strike.

Edward R. Allan, plant personnel manager, who represented the company in the contract talks, said last night that yesterday's meeting ended without an agreement. The conciliator, he added, indicated he would call another meeting but did not set a definite time for the conference.

Allan said the company, under the union proposals, would be faced either with building more facilities for production or to slow down production to what could be produced Monday through Friday.

That, he added, would mean the loss of employment for a large number of workers. It boils down to a question of "social gains or a place to work," he said.

Mass Meeting Held

He said he would have to study the situation before another joint meeting is called and added he did not believe such a meeting will be held today.

In the opening the mass meeting held outside the State Armory, William Boyd Coleman, union president, said the union committee had not "had much success" in the negotiations, after altering the demands without giving them up.

He said that on Tuesday, the union asked the company to give answers to each of the disputed issues. On one point, that of pay for holidays not worked, the company gave way, he reported, but on other issues the answer was "No."

The committee, he said, did not have much success, and the union would have to continue the strike. The company, he declared, is "plenty stubborn" yet and will "have to be shown."

One Issue Settled

Harold Cook, assistant rayon director of the TWUA, who headed the union negotiations, reported last night that at the conclusion of yesterday's conference only one of the nine strike issues was definitely settled.

The company, he said, agreed to the union demand for payment for those for whom no work is available on the six annual National holidays. The cost to the company for this item, he said, will not exceed one-half cent per hour.

On the three other money issues, increased vacation, paid lunch period for steady day shift workers and premium pay for work performed on Saturday and Sunday the company continued to say no, he said. The company, he added, did not offer any proposals for solution of the problems and also indicated there was no likelihood of modifying their position.

The union, Cook said, modified its proposals on these issues to meet objections raised by the company and to reduce their cost to about six cents per hour, broken down to the following cost:

Pay for holidays when no work is available, one-half cent; increased vacations, one cent; premium pay for Saturdays, one and one-half cents and premium pay for Sundays, two cents.

He said no progress is to be reported on five issues which do not involve money.

No Agreement Reached

There is no agreement, he said, on any method of resolving a dispute which may arise under a wage reopening clause. On the co-operation clause, the company, Cook said, reverted to its original position which led to a dispute on the subject.

In regard to the effective date of the contract, the union holds that the effective date is May 19 while the company holds that proper date is the day of final settlement.

There was no discussion of union security during the conferences since, Cook said, both parties agreed that this issue would not be a bar to final agreement.

The only issue in the non-money group on which near agreement was reached, the union official said, is 8-20, (seniority clause) but, he added, no final agreement has been reached on the remaining points of difference on that issue.

Pledges TWUA Support

In an appeal to the union to keep the picket lines going until the company agrees to the union demands or takes them to arbitration, George Baldanzi, executive vice president of the TWUA-CIO, termed the union demands "very mild".

Baldanzi, who was here during the strikes of the early days of the organization, pledged the whole support of the TWUA to the Celanese workers.

In reference to the Taft-Hartley labor bill, the speaker said the effort "by reaction" might be the best for us since "we have forgotten how to fight." Labor's rights will be respected when it is "strong enough to keep them," he said.

Cumberland, he added, is a good place to begin the fight against the "forces of reaction."

Two questions were put to the union members by Coleman:

1—If there is anyone who wishes to go back to work under the company's conditions, answer yes? There were no affirmative votes but several hundred voices spontaneously answered "No".

2—Will be continue the strike? The reaction of the members was to continue the strike. There was no demonstration of any kind as the result of either vote.

J. R. Henderson Named Captain In National Guard

Two Local Units Get Quarterly Pay Checks

Major Howard H. Dickey, commander of the First Battalion, 115th Infantry Regiment, Maryland National Guard last night announced the appointment of Capt. John R. Henderson, 475 Williams Street, as Battalion S-2, (Intelligence Officer).

Capt. Henderson has been a resident of Cumberland for the past 18 months and is regularly employed here as manager of the Universal CIT Credit Corporation, 81 Greene Street. He served as a Major in the 17th Air Borne Anti Aircraft Battalion, during World War II, and spent 23 months in the China, Burma, India theatre of operations. Capt. Henderson is a native of Raleigh, N. C., but came here from Clarksburg, W. Va.

Two enlisted men were also assigned to Headquarters Company. They are Irvin R. Deetz, 209 Knox Street, and Walter W. Hartman, Jr., 507 Warren Street.

Capt. Robert Powell, commanding Headquarters Company, announced last night that due to the large number of enlistments recently, there is not sufficient room in the State Armory for both Headquarters Company and Company C to drill on the same nights. Both Companies have been drilling each Wednesday at 7 p. m.

Beginning next week, Headquarters Company will drill each Thursday night for two hours, Capt. Powell said, and Company C, commanded by Capt. Robert Mattlick, will continue to drill for two hours each Wednesday night.

Members of both companies received their quarterly pay checks last night, with the total payroll amounting to $3,614.57. Each enlisted man and officer receives a full day's Army base pay, depending upon his rank, for each two hour training period attended. Checks are issued each three months by the United States Treasury, with an additional check for 15 days spent in summer camp.

Preparations have begun here for the first annual postwar summber encampment of the Maryland Guard, which will be held the last two weeks in August at Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Md.

VFW Planning Biggest Picnic In Post's History

Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars picnic committee met last night at the post home to make plans for the annual outing of the 2,000 members and their immediate families, according to Lester Mull, chairman. The picnic will be held at Smouse's Beach, Sunday, July 6.

Arrangements have been made for an all-day affair beginning at 10 a. m. and continuing until 10 p. m., Mull said. The program of activities includes soft ball games, horse shoe contests, swimming, races and other events. Committees have been assigned to take care of refreshments and lunches, soft drinks and beer will be served.

Life guards have been engaged for the pool and an official inspection of the pool will be made a day or two before the picnic. Musical entertainment is being arranged by Herman Athey, a sound system is to be installed, and the picnic grounds will be lighted at night.

Free transportation to and from the post home and picnic grounds will be provided, and a bus schedule will be announced later, Mull said.

The group will hold a final meeting June 25 at the post home, at which time all sub committees will make complete reports. Mull said last night with a record membership, the outing promises to be the biggest and best picnic in the history of the post.

Programs Announced For Revival Event

Speaking to a congregation at Second Baptist Church last night, Dr. Joe W. Burton, Nashville, Tenn., said that life's most important question is "What must I do to be saved?"

The evangelist said that the realization of utter helplessness without Christ is necessary before the answer to that question can be found.

With two remaining services in the revival's opening week, Dr. Burton announced that his topic tonight will be "Sin's Wages." Tomorrow will be Youth Night, with young people in charge of the service.

Dr. W. J. Crowder, Baltimore, will preach during the second week of the evening revival services, according to Rev. J. C. Ledbetter, pastor.

POTOMAC EDISON COMPANY SELLS OLD NARROWS PARK

98 Degrees Reading Highest In State

Cumberland thermometers reached their highest mark of the year yesterday at 98 degrees, leading the rest of the state in a heat wave that gripped the entire eastern third of the United States.

Frederick reported a high of 96, which dropped to 84 in a late afternoon cooling rain, while Salisbury checked in with a maximum of 94 degrees. Baltimore temperatures reached 92, Annapolis 83, and the District of Columbia reported 93 degrees, highest this year.

Yesterday's reading was the highest reported here since last September 9, when the mercury jumped to 99. On five days last month the temperature was 90 or above, with the highest reading 95 degrees on May 28.

Weather Bureau officials reported temperatures in the 90's extending as far north as Vermont. Relief is expected to come to Maryland early this afternoon, when a cool-air mass arrives from the west. Officials predicted a gradual temperature drop of 10 to 15 degrees, probably preceded by scattered thunderstorms.

No Present Plans, New Owner Says

Narrows Park, once Allegany County's foremost amusement center and mecca of Sunday and holiday picnickers, has been sold by the Potomac Edison Company to George F. Hazelwood, Jr. Consideration was approximately $12,000.

The transaction was completed yesterday, but Hazelwood said no plans "are in view at all" for use of the eight to 10 acre tract of land which in its heyday as a park heard the quiet talk of courting couples and witnessed the good times of church pictnics.

Once known as Seiss's Grove, a popular picnic spot, the property was acquired by the old Cumberland Electric Railway Company, which later was taken over by the Potomac Edison Company, in 1892 and became a terminal and turnaround point for the city street car lines. It also was a transfer point between the city lines and the Cumberland-Frostburg line of the old Cumberland and Westernport Electric Railway. Later, however, the C. and W. used the city lines to run its cars all the way into Cumberland.

Had Miniature Railroad

The park's miniature steam railroad, the roller coaster, ferris wheel and merry-go-round were the source of many a thrill to young and old alike in years gone by, and Tuesday and Saturday nights' round and square rances with music by Prof. George R. Daisy's orchestra were occasions anticipated with delight.

First operated by Gustave Hildebrand, the Casino was also one of the park's main attraction. Later, Bill McCray, known professionally as "Craddoc, the Roman Axethrower," ran the Casino and then Charles Schoenadel took it over. Still later, Sylvester Eyerman and Conrad Felten remodeled and operated it as the Mayflower Club.

Never a summer holiday passed and seldom a Sunday when the park was not filled with picnickers, many of whom carried box lunches and others who bought a bite to eat at the Casino. Balloons, noisemakers and souvenirs could be purchased from eager young salesmen.

Scene Of Annual Picnics

SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church held a picnic at the park on the Fourth of July for years, and other churches and labor fraternal organizations likewise held annual picnics there.

Band concerts, often featuring the old municipal band, were another attraction at this once-gay spot.

Georges Creek residents, too, found Narrows Park a place for fun where they had a chance to relax, and on holidays or special occasions the C. and W. doubled its service between the park and other points on the line. The city line, too, offered more frequent service on those occasions, but the car the younger set called the "Owl," which left at midnight, was always the last car home. If you missed that, you had to walk.

However, the advent of the automobile soon put a crimp in the park's activities. People who once rode the trollies to the park started going farther afield when they got their own transportation.

Graduates Should Register For Jobs, Carroll Declares

An appeal to 1947 high school graduates to take advantage of the services offered by the Maryland State Employment Service in seeking jobs was made yesterday by Patrick J. Carroll, manager of the local office.

He cited some of these services as registration, job analysis and aptitude testing, vocational counseling and guidance, local, statewide, national and foreign placement of workers in positions.

Carroll said that because the modern industrial scene has become so complicated many workers take jobs "hit-or-miss," wasting money spent for training and losing time in getting ahead in careers.

To overcome this, employment counseling has been developed, which is an attempt to give job seekers more information about occupations, the labor market and their occupational capacities.

High school graduates seeking a job who come to the employment office will first be registered by an interviewer and then asked about their school work, references, hobbies, ambitions and to describe any skills they may possess, Carroll related.

This "word pictupre" of the applicant is kept on file as a permanent record. In event the applicant does not know the type of job he wants or is best suited to fill, he is directed to an employment counselor and possibly given an aptitude test to determine what he is best fitted to do.

First Aid Plans Are Made For Air Show

A Red Cross ambulance, tent and cots and subsidiary first aid stations will be set up at the Cumberland Municipal Airport Sunday noon for protection of the thousands of persons expected to attend the air show at 2 p. m., according to H. Lee Silcox, chairman of first aid for Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Members of the Red Cross Motor Corps will be in charge of transportation to and from the airport for volunteer Red Cross workers manning the emergency stations.

Silcox named Robert Thwaites as chairman in charge of first aid arrangements for the air show. The latter announced that Elmer Lancaster, LaVale; Miss Elsie Stuckey, city; Mrs. Lewis Millholland, Jr., Bowling Green, and Mrs. Wyand Doerner, instructor of nursing arts at Allegany Hospital, have already volunteered their services. Mrs. Doerner said she plans to bring student nurses from her first aid class at the hospital.

At last year's air show, about 26 cases were hanided, mostly mild forams of sunstroke, Silcox said. Twenty Red Cross volunteers were on hand at that time.

CAB To Consider Air Service Here

BALTIMORE, June 11 (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board announced today hearings on the Middle Atlantic case—involving applications for new air routes into Baltimore and other cities—will be held in Washington July 7.

In a report to the CAB the examiner failed to recommend most of the applications for Baltimore service, including those by United Airlines and Trans-World Airlines. At present the city is served only by American Airlines.

Service to Hagerstown and Cumberland—also disapproved by the examiner—will be considered at the hearings.

New Stairway At Fort Cumberland

Construction of a new stairway between the lobby and second floor of the Fort Cumberland Hotel began this week, according to Robert Blair, manager.

The stairway is being build adjacent to the elevator and will occupy some of the space formerly taken up by the desk. The desk, however, will remain in almost its same position.

Being built by the John I. Vandergrift Company, the stairway is expected to be completed within a month, Blair said. He added that it is of fireproof construction.

The stairway will replace one removed when the lobby was altered to make room for a store several years ago.

School Lunch Employes To Be State's Best Paid

Experts Approve His New Design

Encouraged by top airplane designers and producers in the country, who have seen his miniature model and working drawings of a new-type all plastic airplane, A. Derr Golladay, local plane designer and engineer is making plans for erection of a pilot or experimental plant for the purpose of constructing a full-sized model ship.

Golladay, who is one of the operators of the Allegany Aeronautical Corporation at Mexico Farms, has been working for more than a year on an idea for an all-plastic, jet-propelled plane, made almost entirely of a fiberglass material.

He has just returned from three weeks of conferences with several airplane company officials, government research agencies, and visits at the laboratory of the Army Air Forces Experimental Center at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. He also visited the laboratory of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics in Cleveland in order to study engines and attended the annual NACA "inspection" at Langley Field, Va., an invitation event for only top flight Army, Navy and industrial airmen.

Golladay likewise had a conference with General Curtis LaMay, in command of development and research for the Army Air Forces in Washington. Present at the conference were staff members including the command from Wright Field.

The Army Air Corps and the Army Ground Forces indicated strong interest in his plane and design, Golladay said. However they cannot encourage new aircraft companies at this time, as all development contracts are now being used as subsidies to attempt to keep the existing large aircraft makers from collapse due to the large decrease in production since the war.

Armed forces however, expressed keen interest in the fact that radar will not pick up or detect the type of ship Golladay has designed, and he was encouraged to proceed with plans for a pilot plant so a ship could be made for actual tests of every type.

If his plan for a "pilot" plant here or elsewhere can be worked out, and proves successful, then a larger plant, designed for mass production is assured, Golladay said.

Unusual Advantages

While he did not divulge all the details of the new ship, Golladay said it is designed with two tandem seats, provides maximum visibility, and is suitable for military, commercial or private use. He said his production plan calls for building both heavy and light ships.

The ship is designed for landing across ditches and on rough terrain that would demolish present landing gear. It can also be developed as an amphibious ship, and is capable of staying aloft without use of power for great lengths of time, the young designer explained.

"For instance," he said, "flying at 9,000 feet above the ground, the plane can coast or soar without engine or thrust power for a full hour before using the engine again. With power off it means the ship can glide 28 miles horizontally for each mile of altitude. This means about one-fourth the normal amount of power is needed.

Plant Plans Incomplete

While detailed plant plans have not been completed, the project creates the possibility that Cumberland may become an air manufacturing center.

"The problem is whether to start a new company, which would mean building the first few ships at my expense, and then trying for an Army production contract and commercial sales, or tie in with an existing aircraft manufacturing company which might make an Army Air Corps development contract available for building the first ships," Golladay said.

"Among the factors to be considered, if a new plant is started, is the need for tax exemptions. In fact, this item may govern the location of the plant.

"In developing this first fully molded airplane in the history of aviation, it would be impossible to know beforehand the time needed to successfully complete the undertaking. It might be done in less than a year and then again it could take five years. With no income in that time, taxes along with other expenses could cause collapse of the company."

Golladay's experience as a designer includes:

McDonnell jet-propelled "Phantom" and "Banshee", Navy carrier based fighters; Curtis-Wright "Helldivers"; Consolidated "Vultee", torpedo bomber; Martin "Mars", flying boat; Martin "Mariner", patrol bomber; Martin "B-26", bomber, sphere bomber; Fairchild "PT-19" and "XAT 13-14" and others.

In addition Golladay was structure supervising engineer and did production design work on the "B-29", superfortress, and the "F4U-1", Navy "Corsair", carrier based fighters.

Golladay is the son of Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Golladay, 403 Washington Street.

3 More Cafeterias May Be Opened

Allegany County's school cafeteria workers will be the best paid in the state when 10 per cent wage increases become effective in 1947-48, William P. Cooper, director of the school lunch program, disclosed at group meetings for cafeteria employes yesterday and Tuesday in the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company auditorium.

Cooper also announced that two and probably three more school cafeterias will be opened during the next school year.

Approximkately 100 cafeteria employes, including staff workers, attended the meetings at which the annual dinner was served in conjunction with instructions and demonstrations by Miss Flora G. Dowler, nutritionist, of the Manufacturers Heat and Light Company, Pittsburgh. Employes working in schools attended the Monday meeting and those working in schools outside the city attended yesterday's session.

Cooper said the 10 per cent pay increase scheduled for the next school year will make the cafeteria employes the highest paid school lunch workers in the State of Maryland, including Baltimore City, on an hourly basis.

Increases Given Yearly

He added that wage increases averaging 10 per cent or more have been given yearly for the past five years.

New cafeterias will be opened next year at Detmold and Jackson Schools at Lonaconing and possibly at Columbia Street School in Cumberland, Cooper said.

With the opening of those three cafeterias and establishing of three more, the program then would include every school in the county, he added.

At the meetings yesterday and Tuesday, Miss Dowler instructed the cafeteria workers in cleaning and caring for equipment when it is not in use during the summer vacation period. With the assistance of Miss Jane Marshall, local home economist for the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, Miss Dowler gave a demonstration on the preparation of school lunch desserts and sauces which will be used next year.

A movie, "Balanced Way," pertaining to nutrition, was shown. Cooper opened both meetings and Miss Dowler was intruduced by Mrs. Gladys M. Eaton, school lunch program supervisor.

Briefly outlining a history of the school lunch program in this county, Cooper said the project was launched October 14, 1940, at Hammond Street School, Westernport. During the school year 1940-41 four schools joined the program and the following year 10 more were added.

In the school year 1942-43, another 10 schools joined the program, Cooper said, while in 1944-45 one school was added. During the present school year serving of balanced lunches began in three more schools.

Serve 9,000 Children

These 29 schools serve lunches daily to 9,000 children, a total of about 1,600,000 lunches this school year, according to Cooper, who said that from September 1946 until the end of the current school year $90,000 worth of milk and $80,000 worth of meat, fish, cheese and eggs will have been purchased and approximately 13 tons of potatoes consumed.

During the past several years and part of this year it was impossible to purchase the variety and quality of food needed to serve the best balanced lunches possible, Cooper stated, but he complimented the cafeteria workers for doing their best under the circumstances and making good lunches available to the children. However, most of these restrictions have now been removed and the outlook is much brighter for next year.

In order to improve the program, cooks' training institutes have been held yearly for the past four years and two food handlers' training courses have been held under direction of the State Department of Health and the United States Department of Health, Cooper said, pointing out that the next training institute will be held September 2 and 3 and will be devoted largely to the proper preparation of a variety of foods.

Fort Hill Seniors To Get Diplomas

Diplomas will be presented to 208 seniors today at 8 p. m. at the annual commencement exercises of Fort Hill High School in the school auditorium by Edgar A. Dashiell, president of the county board of education. Victor D. Hetsey, principal, will announce the awards.
